STORMY SESSION PREDICTED FOR LEGISLATURE TODAY

Richardson, Johnson Factions Are Lined Up for Bitter Fight Over Speaker's Chair

BY KYLE D. PALMER
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 4.—Facing one of the stormiest meetings in its history, the California Legislature will convene in the State Capitol here tomorrow to organize for its forty-sixth biennial session. The opening will be enlivened by a contest for the Speakership of the Assembly that involves not only the immediate control of the Lower House of the Legislature, but affects conditions that may determine political developments in California for many years to come.

Behind the curtain skirmishes that have served only to store up hostility and leave somewhat in doubt the results of which faction is finally stronger, the election of Speaker tomorrow will in a large measure indicate whether Gov. Richardson and his economy administration or the Johnson-Metzger political machine holds the whip hand in State affairs.

CONFIDENT

Mr. Richardson is confident that Assemblyman Merriam of Long Beach will have at least six votes more than the forty-one necessary to elect.

Equally confident are the old guard leaders who, after an absence from Sacramento of four years are back again in force, under the command of "Boss" Alexander McCabe, Sheriff Tom Finn of San Francisco, Charles L. Neumiller of Stockton and Will Wood, ex-president of the Public Instruction Board.

Assemblyman Wood, as a matter of fact, appears to have somewhat overshadowed Mr. McCabe at a meeting of Assemblymen and Senators in finding sufficient time from his educational duties to conduct his political enterprises to the joy of the local hotels.

SURPRISES

Surprises appear to be in store when the vote for Speaker is taken. McCabe asserted today that Assemblyman Rosendale, the man who was defeated two years ago by Richardson, was pledged to the latter's support. There is a possibility, however, that Rosendale's name may not be presented and that those who oppose the present administration may concentrate a Southern vote in an effort to elect Merriam forces. Merriam leaders have been made confident Californians, members of the Los Angeles delegation.

A fight against for advantage is being made between Senator Hiram Johnson and Senator Jones, the first supporting administration interests and the other having the support of Senator Johnson and Governor's political workers in the fight for the position of president pro tempore of the Senate. Senator Jones appears to have a following more than a sufficient number to control the Senate.

CALLES HITS AGRARIANS

Seizure of Land Forbidden

Message Indicates Estates Will be Restored to American Owners

Petty Politicians, Officials Are Stripped of All Control by Order

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—In instructions issued to local agrarian commission of the Mexican states, President Calles definitely turns his back on the agrarian policy which during the past seven years helped to ruin agriculture and agricultural credit in Mexico.

Gen. Calles places local agrarian commissions under the control of the Federal government and takes from the State governors the right to seize and distribute lands in the name of agrarianism. This takes the agrarian questions out of the hands of politicians and political healers who made most of the agrarian trouble.

It is believed that automatically hundreds of estates of foreigners, which were seized during the last seven years, will be returned to their owners. This affects many American land owners and millions of acres of American-owned land.

The Federal agrarian commission is studying this question and agents of the commission are investigating to decide what is to become of the millions of acres of land which were seized by agrarian agents and State governors under late President Carranza and former President Obregon. All lands found illegally held or unworked

Sentry Fires on Auto Party Passing Through Gate at Fort Rosecrans

Victim's Recovery Doubtful; Baby and Others in Car Are Uninjured

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Charles W. Rockwell, wife of a San Diego real estate man, was shot in the back by a sentry at one of the gates to Fort Rosecrans Military Reservation on Point Loma here this afternoon. She was sitting in an automobile driven by her husband at the time and was holding a baby in her arms. The bullet from a .45-caliber service revolver lodged in her lungs. She was taken to the military hospital at Fort Rosecrans, where her condition is serious. The baby was not injured.

According to the version given by Rockwell and others in the automobile party, the sentry on duty stepped across the road at the entrance to the reservation, when they drove up. Seeing him nod, they thought he meant to proceed and they drove on. They say they heard nothing more until the shot struck Mrs. Rockwell.

Maj. Durball tonight expressed keen regret at the shooting of Mrs. Rockwell. He said the sentry, Private Sterrett, had intended to stop the automobile party only to make certain that no cameras were carried, as was his duty, and that in firing to stop the driver when the automobile passed on, he probably shot at the ground and the bullet glanced into the car. Sterrett has been arrested, the major said, and would be tried by court-martial. Mrs. Rockwell was still living at a late hour tonight and appeared to be reviving from the effects of the bullet. She is being given every medical attention available at the fort hospital, under care of the family physician and will be removed to a city hospital tomorrow.

WOMAN TO BEGIN STATE RULE TODAY

First Feminine Governor of Union to Take Oath in Wyoming

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHEYENNE (Wyo.) Jan. 4.—In an atmosphere of almost puritan-like simplicity, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, widow of the late executive of Wyoming, will be sworn into office as Governor at noon Monday. She will be the first woman in the United States to become the Governor of a State.

Because of the circumstances surrounding her elevation to the high office, accorded for the first time to a woman in the United States, Mrs. Ross requested that there be none of the customary festive ceremonies usually attendant upon an inauguration of a State executive.

The ceremonies, which will be held in the Senate chambers at the State Capitol Building, will consist merely of the administration of the oath of office by Chief Justice C. H. Potter of the Wyoming Supreme Court, and a short inaugural statement by the woman Governor immediately following.

Although the Senate chambers will be thrown open to the public, there will be no carnival air surrounding the event. Even the customary gubernatorial reception will be dispensed with and Mrs. Ross plans to retire to the Governor's Mansion as soon as the brief formalities have been completed.

Bay City Facing Bitter Struggle on Union Labor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—San Francisco is on the eve of one of the bitterest union-labor struggles in its history, as the result of the manifesto issued today by the Molders' Union, local 164, that if outside or nonunion labor is employed in any of the three plants of the Enterprise Foundry Company, there will be a general walkout of the union workers at these places.

The walkout at the three plants of the Enterprise Foundry Company is scheduled to take place tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock.

BUTCHER STILL BUTCHERS AT AGE OF 105; HAS BIRTHDAY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HOBOKEN (N. J.) Jan. 4.—Kupper Bier, a butcher, who claims to be the oldest active business man in the United States, celebrated his one hundred and fifth birthday at his home here today by eating a hearty dinner, smoking a strong cigar and refraining from giving advice on how to attain a long and happy life.

He has 142 descendants, among them fourteen children, ranging from 33 to 70 years of age. Next Sunday he will attend the wedding of his youngest son, Arthur.

SURVEY INDICATES CHILD LABOR BILL IS DOOMED

Twelve Governors Believe States Will Ratify; Nine See Defeat and Remainder Doubtful

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—For the purpose of informing the public as to the prospects for ratification of the child labor amendment to the Constitution by the necessary number of States in the legislative year now beginning, the World News Service asked the Governors of the various States for expressions of opinion as to the action their Legislature may be expected to take.

To amplify and check the statements of the Governors, the World News Service, at the same time asked its political observers in the forty-eight capitals to analyze and summarize conditions in their territories.

This nation-wide survey, now complete, indicates almost beyond doubt that the amendment will fail of ratification with the chances good that enough States will refuse ratification to block the movement to vest in Congress the power to limit and control the employment of all persons under 18 years of age.

So far but one State, Arkansas, has ratified the amendment, and three, Georgia, North Carolina and Massachusetts, the latter by referendum vote, have declared against it. To make the amendment part of the basic law of the land, thirty-five additional States must ratify it. To prevent its adoption, thirteen States must withhold ratification.

In the statements made to the World News Service by the Governors, where opinions of the outcome in individual States are given, twelve express their approval of or a belief that their States will ratify. Nine oppose the measure.

CHICAGO FACES COAL TIE-UP

Union Teamsters Vote to Strike Today After Fuel Dealers Refuse to Meet Demands

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Chicago is face to face with an industrial tie-up that may seriously affect the well being of the populace, impose widespread suffering and disrupt business conditions generally for the remainder of the winter.

Following the refusal Saturday of the coal dealers' association to grant demands of the coal teamsters' union for an increase in wages and a change in working rules, 4000 members of the union at a meeting this afternoon unanimously voted to walk out tomorrow morning.

Coal teamsters now receive 70 cents an hour. They demand an increase of 20 cents an hour and insist upon adjustments in working rules the most important of which is a request for helpers.

The coal dealers' association points out that if the working-rule changes should be made the drivers would not be compelled to handle coal, either at the loading or distributing places. This change, the coal dealers say, would be as expansive as the granting of the wage increase, which they declare the business cannot stand.

The strike, if carried on for any appreciable length of time, will affect all hotels, county and municipal buildings, water works, electric and gas companies, car lines and elevated lines, apartment-houses and office buildings. The first to feel the pinch will be those residents who were unable to put in more than one or two tons of coal at the beginning of the cold weather.

SAYS JUDGMENT DAY IS NEAR

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The judgment day is close at hand. This, at any rate, was the message brought today to Ascension Memorial Church by Christabel Pankhurst, as famous in militant suffragette circles as her mother, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. Miss Pankhurst, now a lay preacher, delivered the first of a series of talks on world events.

The ensuing year, as she saw it forecast, would be pregnant with far-reaching events, the immediate future held the formation of a great confederation of nations under the overlordship of a dictator whose role will correspond to that of the "anti-Christ" in the Bible.

"I want the people of New York," she said, "to see Christ in the newspapers as well as in the Bible. A good citizen should equip himself with the Bible in his right hand and the newspaper in his left, the great book teaching him to recognize in the happenings of these times the message which the spirit of God is delivering to humanity, namely, that the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.

"The newspapers confirm prophecy in every issue, reporting as they do the signs of the times, whether it be 'wars, or rumors of wars,' or 'earthquakes in divers places,' or just now, 'the sea and waves roaring.' The social unrest which they portray is but the same as the advance report of the apostle that 'in the last days, perilous times shall come,' to which he adds a

EDWARD VII WON FORTUNE

Bank Quiz Reveals How German Noble Lost Two Million Marks to Former Prince of Wales

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—How King Edward VII, when he was Prince of Wales, once won 2,000,000 marks from a son of Prince Radziwill, one of the leaders in Prussian demi-royalty and a crony of former Emperor William, has been revealed in connection with the investigation into the banking policies pursued by the Prussian state bank.

Dr. Karl Von Furchard, the son of a former president of the official Prussian bank, is authority for the statement that the Prince of Wales, during a visit to Berlin in the middle nineties, won $500,000 in the course of one night's gambling from young Radziwill. As the debt had to be paid within twenty-four hours the elder Radziwill pledged his vast estates to the Prussian State Bank as collateral for the cash covering his son's gambling debt.

Emperor William, who was keen to have the Radziwill family escutcheon spared a blot, intervened and the bank condescended to advance the amount needed to cover the winnings of the Prince of Wales.

Shortly after this episode, Duke Ernst Gunther of Schlesswig-Holstein, Emperor William's brother-in-law, appeared at the Prussian bank for a personal loan to be covered by his extensive agrarian estates. The bank's officials, however, believed the security inadequate, and despite the fact that Ernst Gunther was the husband of the Kaiser's sister, they refused him the accommodation.

Both episodes are recalled in connection with the official bank's alleged lax methods in advancing millions of marks to alien industrial and financial promoters on questionable security.

In this connection it is recalled that the Prussian State Bank which was founded under the regime of Frederick the Great, once was victimized by adventurers from Pless, which is now part of Poland, who, in 1872 used the bank for "kiting" purposes. This incident has an interesting parallel in the present situation, which finds the venerable financial institution involved in alleged unsound transactions with the Barmat Brothers, who, also hail from Poland.

DEBT COURT IS URGED

Tone of British Note Firm

London Again Refuses to Agree With America on Reparation Rights

Chamberlain Says Claims of United States Should be Arbitrated

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1925, by New York Times]

PARIS, Dec. 4. — In his latest note to Secretary Hughes, sent this week, Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of England, again refuses to agree that the Berlin Treaty gives the United States all the reparations rights it would have enjoyed under a ratification of the Versailles Treaty and makes a proposal that the question of American participation in the Dawes annuities for the payment of our war damage claims against Germany be submitted to arbitration.

He suggests to Mr. Hughes that an arbitral court be composed of three persons of international prominence and of unquestionable integrity, chosen by the World Court at The Hague and that all parties concerned agree in advance to abide by their decision.

The Chamberlain note is much stiffer than the first communication on the subject and appears to indicate that the British intend to stand pat on the position that unless we help collect from Germany we cannot share in the Dawes annuities.

EXPECT TO AGREE

While at several points he uses conciliatory language in referring to the possibility of an amicable settlement, the arbitral proposal which constitutes the final paragraph would appear to be the method referred to in the preceding paragraph. It has been expected here that the British would agree to the proposals in the American memorandum of November 15, submitted by Ambassador Kellogg in London by which the provision of the Wadsworth agreement for the settlement of the cost of the army of occupation would be extended over a larger number of years to embrace the sum of $300,000,000 awarded American citizens by the Mixed Claims Commission.

If, as the French had proposed, the British stand represented an assumption og a bargaining position, it now appears they would seek to drive a hard bargain and compensating the American move would be the increase in the rigor of the terms demanded.

REFUSAL SEEN

It is expected here that Secretary Hughes will refuse to permit an outside body to indicate the value of the treaty he made with Berlin and in the event his reply which is expected soon takes this stand, the problem will be left until the Allied finance ministers meet in Paris next Wednesday. It will be recalled that one of the reasons of the postponement of the meeting of the finance ministers on December 15 was to give more time for an agreement between London and Washington. The agreement has not been reached and it is entirely possible that the finance ministers will meet and adjourn without any settlement of the American demand for a share of the reparations payments.

LEGAL POINT

So far as the financial end of the problem goes, the American position is certainly not exaggerated. What we are asking for in scattering payments over a long number of years is far less in present value than the total of our claims and indeed it is possible we may go even further and as a final concession agree to surrender the priority rights we hold on reparation payments under the Wadsworth agreement. The main difference between London and Washington hinges on a legal point as to whether or not Berlin and Washington could agree to America sharing in the benefits of the Versailles Treaty to which we were not a party and in which Germany had previously given the Allies a lien on all her resources.

If Mr. Hughes were willing to drop this point and adopt the French suggestion that there be no decision on the legal aspect of the case, but that on the basis of equity of opportunism, the American claim be granted, it would seem possible to reach an agreement. If Washington insists that the Allies recognize the validity of this part of the Berlin treaty, there certainly will be no settlement during the coming week's negotiations. A careful reading of both of Chamberlain's notes would seem to indicate between the lines a desire to bring America in with the Allies on a full and official responsibility of helping collect from Germany. Both his notes refer to an adjustment of responsibilities.

NEW UPRISING IN EGYPT ORDERED BY MOSCOW

Bolsheviks Hope to Inflame India by General Massacre of British in Sudan

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4.—The struggle between the British and the Bolsheviks is becoming more violent daily. The Communist Internationale in Moscow today sent an order to its agents in Egypt to force a general uprising of the Egyptian people in the shortest possible time against all British troops, officials and civilians in the country, regardless of the cost, and against American and European residents as well.

In the order, M. Zinoviev says, a general massacre of the British in Egypt, followed by British reprisals, will set India aflame against the British rule.

The Communist Internationale's order for an Egyptian uprising, as well as the recent order for a Bolshevik uprising in the Balkans in March, is a counter measure to the British effort to organize all the states in Europe, particularly all the border states, into a united front against the twin organizations, the Communist Internationale and the soviet government, to take joint defensive measures to protect themselves from their revolutionary propaganda.

FEAR ANTIBLOC

The prospect of all Europe, with the moral support of America, forming an anti-Bolshevik bloc has struck fear and terror in Moscow. The recognition and promise of financial aid from Europe gave the soviets increased prestige and authority in Russia and crushed the morale of the opposition, particularly in the Caucasus. If Europe now breaks off relations with the soviets, in effect at least, and establishes a credit and arms boycott against them, it will be a terrific blow to the soviets and a powerful encouragement to a counter-revolutionary movement. The financial situation of the soviets is so bad that they will collapse soon unless they secure large credits. The soviets are spending their last gold reserve to buy American flour for the Red army.

In the Egyptian campaign the Communist Internationale is rushing propagandists, printed propaganda and funds to Egypt on state-owned soviet ships, which call regularly at Alexandria. The Communist Internationale has established a base in Palestine for the Egyptian campaign.

To assist in the campaign, the soviets just have organized a second shipping service to Egypt and Palestine under the name of Sovtergflott and appointed a skilful propagandist named Israel Frederbert director of the service.

The Communist Internationale is sending propagandists to Palestine in the guise of Jewish colonists.

The British Foreign Office has brought about a coalition of Rumania, Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia against soviet Russia under which they not only agree to help each other in suppressing all Communist propaganda, but Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia, who are bitter enemies on the Macedonian question, give the coalition guarantees to assist Rumania if attacked by the Reds.

It looks as if Turkey, which is still on the fence, will hold the balance of power if there is a death struggle between Bolshevism and the western powers in the near future.

MOSUL IS BLOCK

A well-disciplined and hard-fighting Turkish army could occupy the colossally rich oil and Manganese fields in Georgia and Azerbaijan at any time and it would probably give the Bolsheviks a death blow thereby. The oil and manganese revenue is absolutely vital to the existence of the soviet government.

The Turks would probably prefer today to replace their soviet alliance with a British alliance, but the British demand for Mosul forces Turkey to take Russia as an ally and it must remain allied with Russia until Mosul is settled.

The French, who are getting British support against Germany, have turned and are giving support against Russia, backing up the British diplomatic activity in the Balkans but standing aloof in Turkey.

Maj. McLaughlin, Sportsman of Chicago, is Usual "Beaming Father"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Irene Castle McLaughlin, world-famed dancer, who for ten years has swept the world with her graceful feet, gave birth to a baby girl here tonight.

"A seven-pound baby girl. Mother and daughter are doing well and Maj. Frederick McLaughlin is the usual proud and beaming father," friends announced from the hospital.

Arrival of the baby—who will probably become Irene II—sets at naught, at least for the present, rumors that Irene and her third husband, wealthy Chicago sportsman and social leader, would soon divorce.

RUSHES TO PARIS

These rumors started last September. A month previously the widow of Vernon Castle and divorced wife of Capt. Robert A. Tremaine had suddenly boarded ship and rushed to Paris.

Cables carried reports of her appearance in the night clubs of Montmartre with a "little chap with a blonde moustache, image of Vernon Castle."

Then Chicago acquaintances deduced that the third bark of matrimony for Irene and the second for Maj. McLaughlin might be drifting onto the rocks.

But Mrs. Castle-Tremaine-McLaughlin came racing back, and went into seclusion in her North Side home. Then tonight came announcement of birth of a daughter to the famous dancer.

POPULAR IN PARIS

Irene Cast'e first came into the limelight when, after a girlish escapade, she and Vernon Castle won with their twinkling shoes the hearts of giddy Paris, just before the war. Castle died in an airplane crash in Texas.

A little later Mrs. Castle married Capt. Tremaine. The marriage was short-lived. A Paris divorce court settled that.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1923, Chicago society gasped at the word that the popular Frederick McLaughlin had wed the stage beauty. They slipped away to the Orient for a honeymoon terminated by an unexpected return.

YALE IS PUZZLE CHAMPION

Cross-Word Team of Old Eli Wins Over Harvard Amid Acclaim of Frenzied Rooters

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—In a superb ninth-inning rally, with a seven-letter word meaning "a slight convex curve in the shaft of a column" on their five-yard line, the Yale cross-word team made a magnificent comeback this afternoon and dropped Harvard with a staggering vowel to the jaw, as thousands cheered.

Previously Wellesley had worsted the women's intercollegiate cross-word champions from Vassar, Bryn Mawr and Smith by the breadth of a four-letter word meaning something that men who sit in the front rows at musical comedies often have not on their heads.

It was a momentous occasion. You could tell that, because Raymond Hitchcock, the official starter, and Heywood Broun, Harvard comeback, both had their hair parted and slicked down. Mr. Hitchcock looked lovely. He wore a black deacon's coat, gray floor-walker's pants, with a King Edward VII boiled shirt and a compote of necktie. It was his unfailing good humor and quips that kept the tense crowd at the proper balance. Only once did the crowd get at all out of hand when the little altercation arose between Bryn Mawr and Smith partisans.

"Girls," said Mr. Hitchcock, with admirable aplomb, "girls!"

And the girls laughed and quieted down immediately.

The big event, of course, was the Yale-Harvard clash. Nobody knew why. Harvard was represented by Heywood (Cupid) Broun, and Robert (Shorty) Sherwood. Stephen (Vincent) Benet and Jack Thomas were the Yale two.

As Benet and Thomas trotted into the ballroom at 4:47, a mighty cheer went up. They went up the room, turned around, came down again and sat. Two minutes earlier at 4:45 p.m., Broun and Sherwood dashed down the room and as the mighty cheer dashed down after them, turned around and came back and sat.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton and C. C. N. Y. puzzles were entirely

CONGRESS DUE FOR BUSY WEEK

Action is Expected on Issues Left After Last Session

Postal Pay and Banking Bills Likely to be Disposed of

Muscle Shoals Question to be Laid Aside for Time

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With only two months remaining before sine die adjournment, March 4, next, Congress is expected this week to dispose of several important issues, which have been hanging fire since the last session, among them the postal pay question and the McFadden banking bill. The Senate has agreed to vote again Tuesday on the postal salaries measure, vetoed by President Coolidge, while the House expects to reach a vote by Saturday on the McFadden proposal.

Other legislation, including the Muscle Shoals question, which has been before the Senate for some weeks, will be laid aside tomorrow for a discussion of the postal pay and rate problem. It is expected that attempts will be made to put through the administration bill, providing for increases in both postal rates and salaries and, in the event of its failure, to send the vetoed salaries bill back to committee.

HOUR SET FOR VOTE

Such developments would come before 4 p.m. Tuesday, the hour set for a vote on the question of sustaining the Presidential veto, with the possibility that action might be taken by the Senate, which would make a vote on the veto unnecessary.

After the postal question is out of the way, the Senate will again be in position to resume consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem and to dispose of the annual supply bills, none of which has been taken up as yet.

In the House appropriation bills, four of which already have been passed, will be relegated to the background tomorrow to permit consideration of a wide range of measures on the unanimous consent calendar. Action on these bills will be made possible by the announced decision of supporters of the Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board not to call the proposal up tomorrow, when, under the rules, consideration would be in order.

DEFICIENCY BILL

On Tuesday the House is expected to reach a final vote on the army supply bill and, after devoting Wednesday to miscellaneous measures, to take up on Friday an urgent deficiency appropriation bill, which will carry among other items more than $100,000,000 to be used in refunding taxes illegally collected.

Leaders plan to dispose of the deficiency bill in one day, paving the way for consideration Friday and Saturday of the McFadden proposal to change the banking laws, particularly with regard to branch banking.

During the week, the House committee investigating the aircraft industry will resume hearings, while the Senate subcommittee, which has before it the Cramton bill to place prohibition enforcement under a separate bureau in the Treasury Department plans to hear additional testimony in opposition to the proposal.

MEXICAN HOMESTEADS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MEXICALI, Jan. 4.—Territorial officials are completing their plans for the colonization of government land near Mexicali and numerous applications for the land have been filed with Secretary of State Martines. Nearly 10,000 acres of rich valley land will be thrown open for settlement near Colonia Zaragosa. Tracts of ten to forty acres are being selected by Mexican families for homesteads. Additional pumps are to be installed before an adequate supply of water will be available for the new entrymen.

It is the asserted plan of Gov. Rodrigues to encourage the homesteading of all farm land of the government in the Northern District of Lower California as rapidly as water is made available. The homesteads are restricted to Mexican citizens.

ure or give the opinion that their States will refuse approval. The others either refrain from giving their opinions or frankly say they are in doubt. The symposium of Governors indicates that these States may be expected to ratify the amendment: Arizona, California, Illinois, Oregon, New Mexico, Nevada, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Refusal to ratify is indicated by the Governor's statement in Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Texas, Idaho, Vermont, New Jersey, Maryland, Kentucky, South Carolina, Colorado, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota and Tennessee are the doubtful.

In several States, either under the terms of existing law or statutes to be enacted, the question of ratification is expected to be sent to a referendum. That is the present program in New York, and New Jersey is expected to follow suit.

According to the reports of the World News Service correspondents, the Legislatures reported favorable to ratification are those of Arizona, California, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Those rated as likely to refuse ratification are: Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas and Utah. As doubtful, and in this category is placed all States where the trend is not shown to be definitely for or against, World News Service correspondents place Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Washington and West Virginia.

NOT GEOGRAPHICAL

Examination of the results of the survey shows no cleavage of opinion on geographical lines. The South, which, generally speaking, has been deficient in child-labor legislation (for years the chief argument for Federal regulation has been child labor in Southern cotton mills) is as a section no more opposed to the amendment than is the Middle West, nor is Rhode Island, which has suffered more from the competition of child labor in Southern mills than any other State, more kindly disposed toward the amendment than is North Carolina, which provides much of the competition.

The reports generally agree that the stiffest and apparently most effective opposition comes from the Grange and other farm groups, rather than from organized manufacturing groups.

Another point of general agreement is that opposition to the measure is based mainly on reluctance to centralize power in Washington, to a belief that regulation is a matter for the States, to opposition by farmers to anything that may make it possible for Congress to forbid employment of minors on the farms, and, in some instances, to a feeling that a law, eminently proper for New York or some other industrial State, might be unduly onerous and unworkable in a State almost purely agricultural.

Curiously enough, in neither the statements of Governors nor in the correspondents' reports is any reference made at what was an important, if not the important, factor in causing Massachusetts to vote against the amendment—opposition by church men.

are to be returned to their owners.

In districts where the government owns arable lands these will be divided in preference to other lands. All small land holdings will be exempt from agrarian seizure and lands being worked and handled in conformity with the agrarian law will be respected, no matter how large, when they help to fill the national granary.

Gen. Calles's position on the agrarian question has created a most favorable impression in financial and agrarian circles and he large landowners and the chambers of commerce have signified their intention of backing Gen. Calles's agrarian policy.

Chambers of commerce throughout Mexico are to hold meetings to consider the agrarian position of the government with a view to helping the President.

The monetary commission, which Gen. Calles has raised to the status of a bank, will, it is said, when it begins functioning in February, extend agrarian credit and force the other banks of Mexico to do the same. This should help agriculture. It stated semiofficially today that plenty of foreign capital will be obtained ready to capitalize the new government bank under certain conditions which the commission and government are now considering.

CONVICTIONS ARE RESULT OF SHAKE-UP

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The constant vigilance of government agents, particularly with reference to defaulting bank and corporation officials who make their escape and scatter to the four corners of the earth, is markedly emphasized in the recent captures and convictions brought about as a result of the reorganization by the Attorney-General of the bureau of investigation and the increased efficiency in the morale of the forces of that bureau.

Several of the more important "big business" cases recently "closed" and which Director Hoover has called to the attention of the Attorney-General, include the conviction of Former President Hyde, of the Commercial National Bank of Charleston, S. C., and Cashier Dick, involving an amount of approximately $660,000.

In Los Angeles six defendants involved in a small fraud case affecting the Osborne-Fitzpatrick Oil Company have been indicted; B. I. Swinger, principal defendant in the Midland Packing Company case of Sioux Falls, S. D., has been convicted and sentenced to four years at Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $1000, the case requiring the constant attention of Department of Justice accountants for a period covering a year.

A case of considerable magnitude recently brought to a close is that of Louis Fisdell, accused of conspiracy to violate the Bankruptcy Act, and defraud creditors and others of the Champion Tool Company. Fisdell was arrested in Chicago and indicted in New York, while a score of other defendants have likewise been apprehended. Some of the concealed assets have been recovered and returned to the trustee.

FARM BOY KILLS SON OF TOURIST

Kansas Youth Confesses Shooting at Colorado Boy Crossing Pasture

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

RUSSELL (Kan.) Jan. 4.—Charles Fisher, Jr., 19 years of age, confessed here today, according to county officers, that he fired on a tourist car which was crossing a pasture on the Fisher farm late yesterday, resulting in the death of the small son of Mr. and Mrs. John Foley, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Fisher made no explanation, except to say that the motor car was trespassing on his land. The youth's father was present when the shots were fired.

Foley was returning to Colorado with his family after a Christmas celebration with relatives at Atchison, Kan.

Because of the circumstances of the Foley family, they were unable to take the body to Colorado Springs. A fund was raised by Russell citizens and clubs today to aid the family in continuing their journey.

It is understood that this is preliminary to a later national conference wider in scope.

In accordance with Marconnot's request, relatives and friends will be admitted on request to view the body through the glass top of the casket and the vault will be opened to the public on church holidays set aside for veneration of the dead.

LEGISLATURE TO CONVENE TODAY

The apparent certainty of Breed's victory is said to be responsible for the determination of Lieut.-Gov. Young, recovering after an operation for appendicitis, to preside at the Senate opening session tomorrow, despite his weakened physical condition. Under the Constitution the pro tempore president of the Upper house has authority, in the absence of the Lieutenant-Governor, to name the Senate's committee personnel, a prerogative demanded by Young several years, despite complaint from many Senators.

The first biennial message of Gov. Richardson, in which he will discuss the affairs of the State under his administration will be read to a joint session of the two houses Wednesday afternoon. His bienniel budget, which is expected to represent a recommendation for appropriations approximating $100,000,000, will be submitted Thursday or Friday.

GOVERNOR'S AIM

It is the purpose of the Governor to expedite legislation and the deliberations of the Legislature in order that the first half of the present session may be concluded within a period of three weeks. Inasmuch as the first half of the session is devoted almost exclusively to the introduction of proposed laws, administration leaders believe that a recess may be taken not later than the 25th inst.

Aside from the question of reapportionment of legislative districts, which has been the subject of considerable bitterness during two preceding sessions, proposed highway legislation, State finance, various measures relating to taxation and proposed amendments to existing laws will have the principal attention of the State's lawmakers.

REPRISAL THREAT

Should Gov. Richardson be unable, however, to gain a working majority in each house the outlook for beneficial legislation is not encouraging. The friends and political supporters of Senator Johnson are determined to regain their hold on the State government and thus pave the way for what they term a "come back" in the next gubernatorial election.

They propose to defeat every administration measure submitted during the session and in their efforts to obtain votes for a machine candidate for Speaker are threatening to vote solidly against the proposals of all legislators favoring the Richardson regime.

NEW CURE FOR LUNGS EFFECTIVE

Sanocrysine Pronounced Genuine as Remedy for Tuberculosis

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Sanocrysine, an inorganic salt of gold which has been developed by Prof. Holger Moelligaard, Danish scientist, as a cure for tuberculosis, received an unqualified indorsement from Dr. Peter C. Clemensen, Chicago surgeon, in his first report to the Chicago Health Department made public yesterday. Dr. Clemensen was sent to Copenhagen to examine the possibilities of the new specific after announcement of its discovery was made at a health officers' convention in Columbus, O., last October.

"My impressions, so far, are that the thing is all that is claimed for it and then some," Dr. Clemensen wrote to Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen. "You need have no fear about it being genuine. It is bona fide, scientific and good.

"It cannot be used on advanced tuberculosis where the lungs are almost gone and the patient is weak; it will not reproduce tissue. But it absolutely cures the beginning tuberculosis where there is no nephritis or syphilis and complications.

"I will not go into details about its merits now, or the remarkable chemical composition of the salt, which is chemically an inorganic salt of gold, bearing the formula, AU 03 S2. That is, it is aurithic-sulphuric acid. It looks like a white faceulent powder of a crystalline appearance.

"It is negatively charged in salt, very soluble in water, anhydrous, very sensible and easily oxydizable. It is injected intravenously, exactly like salvarsan. They have now produced a new serum which neutralizes the tuberculosis toxins."

POSTAL SALARY BILL IS OPPOSED

National Commerce Chamber Committee Reports

Proposed Uniform Increase Considered Unsound

Suggests Sliding Scale in City, Rural Districts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Uniform nation-wide increases in postal salaries, as proposed in the bill vetoed by the President and to be considered in the Senate this week, are opposed as contrary to sound principle in a report made by the postal service committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which is being sent out for a referendum vote of business organizations.

The report presents a series of recommendations proposing changes and improvements in the postal service. It will be voted on by the 1400 business bodies making up the national chamber's membership.

Instead of nation-wide pay increases, the chamber's committee advocates readjustment of postal salaries by a proper classification on a differential scale. In such a procedure it sees the only possibility of meeting conditions, both in the large cities, in industrial centers where wages in other occupations are high and cities of much smaller size where the cost of living and all wages are on materially lower levels. The committee advocates also that an emergency fund be given to the Postmaster-General to be used when the Civil Service Commission certifies that salaries in a particular place are not high enough to obtain new postal employees.

Efficiency in the postal service, the chamber's committee believes, should be the first consideration both with Congress and with officials of the postal service itself. In fact, the committee gives its attention to questions of efficiency in the service before it deals with the question of salaries.

POSTAL MEASURE BEFORE SENATE TODAY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — The postal salary increase issue, complicated by the administration's proposal to provide for postal advances as well as salaries, comes before the Senate tomorrow.

The pay measure, pending since President Coolidge vetoed the bill passed at the last session of Congress, is to come up under an agreement which also provides that a vote on the veto must be taken not later than 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Before debate can open tomorrow afternoon on the pay increase veto, however, Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the administration bill, increasing both postal salaries and rates, has told the Senate he will seek adoption of this measure. This would forestall, if successful, a straightout vote on the veto.

Administration leaders are doubtful today, however, of the prospect of immediate action tomorrow on the administration bill in view of the announced intention of some of the members to have a vote first on the veto. If the measure is blocked until after the veto vote, its future, of course, depends to some extent on the result of the veto ballot.

Complicating the desire of Senator Moses for immediate action further, is the announced intention of Senator Oddie, Republican, Nevada, a member of the Postoffice Committee, to move for elimination from the bill of the proposed 1-cent-a-pound increases on advertising matter in publications subject to first and second-zone rates.

PRISON HEAD IN COLORADO UNDER FIRE

Governor Files Charges Against Warden Asserting Inmates Abused

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DENVER (Colo.) Jan. 4.—Gov. William E. Sweet has filed a formal complaint with the State Civil Service Commission charging Thomas J. Tynan, Warden of the State penitentiary at Canon City, with official misconduct, neglect of duty, incompetency and inefficiency, according to a story published in the Rocky Mountain News.

The Governor charges Tynan, as Warden of the prison, "has wrongfully and unlawfully caused and permitted prisoners to be shackled hand and foot over a 'horse' and flogged on the bare body with a heavy lash."

After being flogged in the manner described, the Governor charged, prisoners have been ironed with ball and chain and confined in dark and unsanitary cells and given only bread and water for periods ranging from ten to ninety days.

P. J. Hamrock, a member of the commission, when asked about the case, declared no charges had been filed with the secretary of the commission up to the time the office closed Saturday night. Mr. Hamrock said that it was possible that copies of the charges might be in the hands of the commission, but that in order to be filed, they would have to be placed in the hands of the secretary. This, Mr. Hamrock said, was not done Saturday.

Gov. Sweet, in his complaint, asks the removal of Warden Tynan, the newspaper says.

The charges were brought by the Governor, according to the News, after a report had been made to him by the National Society of Penal Information, with headquarters in New York. The report of the society, it was said, followed an investigation of Colorado penal institutions by Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the society, last February.

SCOTT DIVORCE SUIT NEARS END

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALPENA (Mich.) Jan. 4.—The hearing of the divorce suit of Frank D. Scott, Congressman in the Eleventh District, against his wife is nearing its end.

Two more days will probably be sufficient to lay bare to the world the life stories of the two principals. During the hearing the farmers of the district who for ten years have sent him to Washington as their representative have been treated to word pictures of life in the national capital, that to them are almost unbelievable and they are asking questions which nobody seems able to answer.

QUESTIONS ASKED

Some of the questions being asked are: Was the Scott apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel, Washington, the rendezvous for Army officers and others in official life, who came to drink and spend the evening with beautiful women, as Scott and others who have testified for him assert, or was it a gilded cage for a woman whose husband thought her a social butterfly, unsafe out of his sight, as Mrs. Scott painted the picture while on the stand Saturday.

Was Frank Scott displeased with his wife because of her companions in Washington social circles, as he has charged, or was he proud of her after she came home after being a guest at the White House with an autographed picture of President Harding?

Was Scott embarrassed in his home district because of rumors of his wife's conduct as intimated by witnesses or did he directly rebuke her because she refused to use tooth picks in small-town hotels as others did to get votes?

SEED FOR THOUGHT

These are some of the questions being asked throughout the Eleventh Michigan Congressional District in Northern Michigan. It all gives voters a seed for thought, gossip and question asking.

Mrs. Scott threw the court into an uproar late Saturday when she charged that her husband had used profane language in addressing her as he stepped from the witness stand after giving three hours' testimony. She said that her husband speaking in a low tone, had become profane in telling her that the testimony she had given was false.

Scott denied the charge, saying, however, that he told her she had been lying, but nothing more.

Jules Nehring Dropped From Steuben Bund

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Jules Nehring, associated for many years with activities for German-American advancement in the United States, today announced he had been dropped from membership in the Steuben Society because of his protest against radical leaders pledging the organization to support Senator La Follette for President.

Mr. Nehring said he also had called upon the society to disband.

"I do not believe," he asserted, "that the society, under present leadership, represents the aims or sentiments of the great majority of Americans of German origin. It seems to have departed from the purpose for which it was founded, which was strictly patriotic and therefore ought to be disbanded.

Omaha Contractor Whose Wife Was Slain Re... Cool; Still Held After Mental Test

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OMAHA, Jan. 4.—Cool and collected and denying all... the State, John Warren Hahne, Omaha contractor and ... still held without bonds in the City Jail tonight ... first-degree murder in connection with the death of his ... Mae Hahne, formerly Mrs. Hiram Bennett of Janesville, ... Colorado Springs, Colo. Mrs. Hahne's body, the head ... twelve deep wounds, was found in the basement of their ... afternoon.

While Hahne received a mental examination by Dr. G. Alexander Young, mental specialist, today, relatives from Denver, Tulsa and Minneapolis arrived in Omaha and made plans for defense and possible aid in the prosecution. Only one arrival, Wirt Hahne of Minneapolis, a brother of Hahne, declared himself ready to aid the defense, while the other arrivals, Ed Schaffer of Tulsa, Okla., a brother of Mrs. Hahne; Mrs. Charles Lacroix, sister, and Mrs. Vera Johnson, a niece of Mrs. Hahne, both of Denver, declared themselves as unable to shed any light on the deed.

No results of the mental examination today by Dr. Young were announced.

Meanwhile friends, relatives and neighbors, together with Hahne himself, related a colorful tale of Hahne's career, which extended from a district politician's job for Tammany in New York to the race tracks in Kentucky and the social world of San Francisco. According to Hahne and friends, Hahne at one time was a "power" in Tammany affairs in New York at about 1911. Hahne also admitted that he at one time gained considerable notoriety in San Francisco by following a wealthy Omaha widow, Mrs. Katherine Shery, some distance to sea via airplane, showering the deck of the steamer she was on with flowers as a remembrance of his love. It was after this episode, he said, that he married the second time.

Police also were investigating the report that Hahne killed his partner, a man named O'Brien, in New York in a hotel several years ago. He denied this, saying that O'Brien was not killed but that someone had attempted to kill both him and O'Brien.

Another search of the Hahne home today failed to disclose the missing jewelry worn by Mrs. Hahne, and her diary. Police say they believe "the diary went the same route that the jewelry did, after Mrs. Hahne's murder—taken by Hahne."

Police are also working on the theory that Mrs. Hahne was first struck while she was eating breakfast in the dining-room and that, after being felled at the side of the buffet, she was again beaten and thrown down the stairway where her head was badly hacked and beaten by the bloody hatchet and hammer hanging on the work bench, "the handles of the tools being washed thoroughly."

Defense counsel for Hahne declared today a fight would be made to prove the realtor's innocence "beyond any doubt."

ST. LOUIS POLITICIAN SUED FOR $100,000

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—Col. Nicholas M. Bell, veteran Democratic politician, and his sister, Mrs. Lucy M. Dietrichs, both of 4442 West Pine Boulevard, were named defendants in a $100,000 alienation suit brought in Circuit Court by Mrs. Daphne Doyle Bell, Shreveport, La., fourth wife of Christian Peper Bell, son of Col. Bell. The wife charges that Col. Bell and his sister induced her husband to separate from her November 3, last, after they had been married only six weeks.

The marriage took place in Texarkana, Ark., September, 23, last, the suit states, and they lived happily together until about the beginning of November, when her husband's father and aunt began an effort to separate them.

In addition to using other means to influence his son, the daughter-in-law charges Col. Bell threatened that if he did not separate from his wife he would be disinherited and disowned. Enticed by the defendant, the petition continues, Bell abandoned his wife November 3, and since that time has remained away from her.

FLORIDA LAUDS TAX EXEMPTION

State Barrier on Income Levy is Praised

Inheritances Are Also Freed From Assessment

Believe Financiers Will Flock to South

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) Jan. 4. Business men, property owners and, in fact, persons in all walks of life throughout Florida are congratulating themselves for their shrewdness in erecting a barrier against a State income or inheritance tax.

The barrier was put up at the election last fall when the voters approved by an overwhelming majority a constitutional amendment prohibiting the Legislature from passing laws levying taxes on income and inheritance.

PUBLIC PAYS

When the measure was first proposed the cry was raised that it was designed to favor the wealthy, to relieve them of carrying their share of taxation and to put a heavier burden on the shoulders of the less wealthy. Those behind the proposal, however, won the voters over by the unanswerable argument that no matter how heavily the State taxes corporations and wealth, the tax ultimately is paid by the public in one form or another.

It is openly admitted, however, that the antitax amendment was put over as clever advertising scheme for Florida and to boom the State as a haven for wealthy people anxious to find some place of abode where their wealth will not be "taxed to death."

EFFECTIVE ARGUMENT

In other words, Florida has recognized that one very effective way to influence people of wealth is to make the State attractive to the pocketbooks of such people. This was the most effective propaganda put out by the antitax people and it was this propaganda that gave the antitax amendment a 6 to 1 majority.

Florida hopes to attract people of wealth by assuring them that they can establish their residence here in the certainty that the State will not attempt to charge them for the privilege in the form of income or inheritance taxes.

In return for this consideration Florida knows that she will get her revenue from these people in a legitimate way. They will invest their money in the purchase of land and the building of homes, and the promotion of industrial and commercial enterprises, all of which will mean more employment in the State and resultant prosperity.

LABOR BILL CONCESSION PLAN IS HIT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—A compromise which would accept the basic plan and principle of the Barkley bill for settlement and mediation of labor disputes was condemned tonight in a letter to Representative Everett Sanders of Indiana by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Representative Sanders led the fight last year on the Barkley bill. Some time ago, following amendment of the bill and the inception of negotiations between administration and insurgent leaders, for the formulation of a compromise measure, Representative Sanders asked Mr. Hooper for his views to date.

"No system," replied Mr. Hooper, "is more admirably adapted to keeping the public in the dark than that of mediation. The operations of mediation and conciliation must necessarily be secret to be successful.

"The arbitration provided for in the Howell-Barkley bill is the same system that broke down under the Newlands law. Arbitration could not be had except by the consent of both parties. In its practical application, it was an entirely one-sided system. Demands of the employees were arbitrated and demands of the carriers were refused arbitration.

"The primary interest of the public in railroad labor questions," said David E. Lilienthal, labor counsel associated with D. R. Richberg in drafting the bill, commenting on Mr. Hooper's letter, "is continuity, economy and efficiency of transportation. These are served where the contracting parties are satisfied with their agreements, as they are when they have made them themselves. The pending legislation substitutes for the principle of legalistic decision that of voluntary agreement and collective bargaining, supervised except in emergency, only by mediators."

Missouri Pacific Chief Expects Continuation of Expanding Business

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Jan. 4.—Acquisition of several new lines, making the system the largest in the United States, and the handling of a record volume of traffic, were the outstanding accomplishments of the Missouri Pacific during 1924, according to a statement issued here last night by L. W. Baldwin, president.

By virtue of its purchase, in conjunction with the Western Pacific, of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad, and its acquisition of the controlling interest in the Gulf Coast lines, carrying with it the ownership of the International Great Northern, the Missouri Pacific became the largest system in the country, the statement said.

"Volume of traffic," President Baldwin said, "from the first of the year of 1924 to the date of the latest complete figures, set a new high record over any similar period in the past. A total of 1,477,668 cars of revenue freight was handled within that time, a mark exceeding by nearly 125,000 cars the previous record made for the same period in 1923."

Growing increase in the use of automobiles caused a considerable falling off in passenger traffic, the statement adds. Many trains and other service were provided at a considerable loss, a decrease in passenger earning of $1,169,000 being noted.

"From all present indications," the report concludes, "the country may reasonably expect a continuation of the improvement of the existing prosperous conditions. An attitude of optimism concerning the business conditions of the country, industrial, commercial and agricultural, seems justified."

Another Flood Hits Leningrad; Industry Halts

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LENINGRAD (Russia) Jan. 4. Another flood visited Leningrad yesterday and early this morning the water was eight feet above its normal level.

All the big factories in the outskirts of the city, including the great Putilov Iron Works, are inundated. Train services have ceased. All the Communists have been mobilized to meet the emergency. The population of the city has fled to various high points for refuge.

REICHSTAG WILL CONVENE TODAY

Coalition is Necessary for Majority

Ebert Faced With Tangle Over Cabinet

Monarchists, Communists, Lose Strength

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—The new Reichstag will convene tomorrow, faced by a political situation that is as confusing to the German people as it is bewildering to the foreign onlooker, the recent elections having indicated that Germany, by no means is at the end of her violent political struggle.

The two extremes of Monarchism and Communism have become smaller than in the previous Parliament. The Communist delegation has been reduced from sixty-two to forty-five, and the Ludendorff National-Socialists from thirty-two to fourteen. But no party has anything like a majority, and even the parties that seem most alike cannot command a clear majority.

It seems obvious, therefore, that to effect any sort of government that will command a safe majority there must be a mixing of elements that ordinarily do not mix. Or, if that proves impossible, things might carry on for a while longer under a minority government, which enjoys the benevolent neutrality of a powerful non-government group or groups.

NONPARTISAN CABINET

President Ebert's decision to solve the existing Parliamentary crisis by the formation of a non-partisan Cabinet is viewed by the newspapers as an emergency measure, which is destined to keep national politics in a state of latent unrest.

Chancellor Marx is expected to have the new ministry ready for formal appearance at a plenary session of the Reichstag at the end of the week.

The attempt to bridge over the present Parliamentary deadlock with a so-called nonpartisan Cabinet recalls the crisis of two years ago when failure to form a coalition government induced President Ebert to authorize Wilhelm Cuno, the Hamburg shipping leader, to accept the Chancellorship at the head of a government which failed to command a majority in the Reichstag. Its tenure of office was vouchsafed chiefly through unanimous approval by the Reichstag of its policy of passive resistance to the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr—an unarmed and unequal fight which ultimately wrecked German currency and economics and forced Germany to surrender after eight months of futile opposition.

It is generally assumed that the three middle parties—the Clericals, the People's party and the Democrats—will permit their present delegates, Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Minister of Defense Gessler, to return to their present offices. It is not yet evident that Marx will be able to recruit other members of a Cabinet from either the Nationalist or Socialist parties.

While the new government may count on a sufficient majority in the Reichstag when national issues, such as that affecting the Allied decision to remain on the Cologne bridghead, are up for action, a nonpartisan Cabinet is destined to find itself bereft of any necessary support on measures affecting internal affairs where differences between the Socialists and some of the bourgeois parties are likely to confront it with heavy opposition.

IMPORTANT ISSUES

The state of disorganization obtaining in the central government in consequence of the parliamentary impasse occurs at a time when Germany is confronted with the necessity of dealing with important foreign issues, among which is the question of reacting to the decision of the Council of Ambassadors to defer Allied evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead and the negotiations Germany is carrying on with France and Belgium for formal control treaties.

As the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, which deny Germany reciprocal customs accommodations, expire January 10, Germany already has decreed that after that date the most favored nation clause will be applied only to such countries as accord German products similar treatment. Among the most important trade pacts concluded but not yet ratified by the respective countries, are those between the United States and Germany and Great Britain and Germany. The negotiations with France and Belgium have reached a deadlock, which will preclude the conclusion of formal agreements before January 10. Belgium is said to demand for an indefinite period differential treatment for German chemicals, ceramics and glassware and iron and steel products and machinery.

EVACUATION OF RUHR

While the questions affecting the trade agreements are viewed as problems wholly separated from the issues growing out of the occupation of the Rhineland and the Ruhr, it is realized in official quarters here that they nevertheless are especially closely interwoven with the French and Belgian attitude on vacating the Ruhr, of which continued occupancy of the Cologne bridgehead by England automatically becomes an integral part of the entire range of Germany's foreign relations, which will come up for discussion in the Reichstag.

Therefore, Chancellor Marx is desirous of appearing before Parliament with a Cabinet which commands sufficient assets in the way of strong personalities and a constructive program of foreign and internal issues to vouchsafe it tolerance on the part of the newly elected Reichstag.

The situation in Prussia, where the Diet meets Monday, still remains unclarified, as failure to solve the situation in the Reichstag makes the resurrection of the four-party coalition, comprising the Clericals, Socialists, Democrats and People's party, doubtful for the time being.

HINTS MOVE BY NICHOLAS ON SOVIETS

Munich Newspaper Says France and Others Favor Attack on Bolsheviki

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Hints that Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia intends a military attack against the soviets, aided by France, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, and the Balkan States, are contained in an article published by Meunchener Neueste Nachrichten, the leading Munich newspaper.

The nucleus of Nicholas's army, the newspaper says, will be remnants of Gen. Wrangel's forces now assembled in the Balkans. French nationalists, notably ex-President Millerand, are named as especially favoring the asserted forthcoming attempt to wrest Russia from the Bolsheviki.

Poland, it is said, has been offered Ukrainia as the price of her aid and Germany is warned that German soil—probably Bavaria—may be used for mobilizing Nicholas's troops.

The newspaper publishing this news is known to be close to ex-Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, rival of Duke Nicholas for the Russian throne and there is a strong probability that the report is printed to prejudice Germans against Nicholas by hints that Germany may be used as an instrument by Nicholas and his French supporters in attacking the Soviets.

The Munich newspaper urges Germany not to participate in any such movement and warns the German people against any sudden friendship toward Germany evinced lately by adherents of Nicholas. Ex-Grand Duke Cyril is now living at Coburg, Germany, where he is suspected of brewing plots of his own.

ELKS WELCOME THEIR RULER

Highest Officer on Visit to Visalia Lodge

Stage Lines Plan Scheme of Competition

Irrigation Districts Conclude to Arbitrate

VISALIA, Jan. 4.—Hon. John R. Price of Columbus, O., Grand Exalted Ruler of the B.P.O.E., will come to Visalia on Wednesday, the 14th inst. Members of the Visalia Lodge, No. 1394, are making elaborate plans for his entertainment.

The Exalted Ruler will be accompanied by Dr. Howard B. Kirkland, chairman of the Grand Lodge committee on State associations; Edgar F. Davis, president of the California Elks Association; George Breslin, Exalted Ruler, of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99; Clarence Staples, District Deputy of the central district of California and W. B. Martin, Exalted Ruler, San Luis Obispo Lodge, No. 833.

Fully 1000 Elks of Fresno, Hanford, Tulare and Porterville are expected to be present on this occasion, according to James T. Boyer, local secretary.

Following the banquet, an address will be given by Mr. Price. On Thursday, he will go from here to Bakersfield, from there continuing to Los Angeles, en route to his home in the East.

A special entertainment program will be arranged.

COMPETING LINES

VISALIA, Jan. 4.—Joe Miller of Visalia has been notified that his application of some months ago for a single stage line franchise, covering all lines he has been operating, including the Visalia-Hanford, Hanford-Fresno, Fresno-Los Banos, Los Banos-Tracy, and Los Banos-Merced runs, has received sanction from the State Railroad Commission.

Since the hearing at which he requested this franchise, Miller has sold everything north of Fresno to the California Transit Company, which, according to rumor, is gathering its forces to fight the Pickwick stages, northern division, which have entered the valley.

The Pickwick Company has purchased Roberston's Fresno-Coalinga run via Lemoore and has a run between Taft and Lost Hills. It has asked permission to extend its lines between Coalinga and Lost Hills, thus paving the way for the outlet into Los Angeles in direct competition, though a longer route, with the present service. This would complete the San Francisco-Los Angeles line by way of the Coast and valley and would cross the Coalinga Mountains and the Cholame Pass.

OFFICER RESIGNS

VISALIA, Jan. 4.—George H. Hudson, for the past year prohibition agent for Tulare county, has resigned. This action became effective on the first of the month.

Grover Hill, formerly county prohibition agent, and a member of the staff of the District Attorney, will assume the duties carried on by Hudson, under direction of the attorney's office.

BEST TO COMPROMISE

TERRA BELLA, Jan. 4.—Present indications are that the Terra Bella Irrigation Company will not be involved in a water litigation. This company recently filed suit against F. K. Simmonds and others in connection with a flow of water claimed by the district, but the case has gone off the court calendar at Visalia for lack of prosecution and may be adjusted, according to report.

Two such actions were filed within the past year and gave promise of developing into bitter contests, both having been compromised and litigation saved. The other involved waters of the Tulare River.

It is believed that study made of the seven years' suit of the Tulare Irrigation District against the Lindsay-Strathmore Irrigation District and its cost of $500,000, with no decision yet handed down, impressed litigants in both cases that it might be beter to compromise rather than to fight.

The Kaweah Delta suit is believed to have saved farmers and growers hundreds of thousands of dollars elsewhere by its example, also to have resulted in a union of factions in seeking a common solution for the county and southern section of the San Joaquin Valley.

ATTEND STATE MEET

LINDSAY, Jan. 4.—W. E. Gilmlan, acting farm adviser of Tulare county, and M. A. Lindsay, [illegible]ant, are in Berkeley attending the annual conference of the extension service department of the State Department of Agriculture, which opened Saturday and which continues until the 8th inst.

The program includes discussion on agricultural lines by many prominent men. Among the speakers will be A. C. Hardison, president of the State Farm Bureau Federation; B. H. Crocheron, State Director of the Extension Service; Carl C. Plehn, and Dean Thomas F. Hunt.

BUILDS CEMENT PLANT

THREE RIVERS, Jan. 4.—Work is soon to begin on construction of a cement plant on local holdings of the Los Angeles Lime and Cement Company, according to C. W. Burmeister, representative, a recent visitor here. Burmeister engaged men and started operation arrangements. This property is located on the South Fork of the Kaweah River. It has huge fields of lime and cement, enough, it is said, to supply the demand for a century.

T. JEFFERSON'S "HOSS"

Says The Nation: "There is no finer picture in American history than Thomas Jefferson riding unattended into Washington for his inauguration and hitching his steed to a post."

A fine picture, but no photograph. That the picture exists is due to an English tourist named John Davis, who spent a winter in Washington, and "fell into the society of several wags, who imposed upon his credulity by relating absurd anecdotes of the President and others in authority, which he conscientiously noted down and afterward published as facts." So says William Eleroy Curtis's biography of Jefferson.

The truth is that Jefferson, as Vice-President, was living at a Washington boarding house, and thus did not have to ride into the city. He was escorted to the Capitol by a battalion of soldiers. He walked between the only two members of John Adams's Cabinet, who had the courtesy to remain in Washington for the inauguration of the new President.

The camera has done a good deal in more recent times to make history accurate.—[Detroit News.

WAGE LAW SUIT TO BE DROPPED

Stenographer Asserts She Will Ask Dismissal

Attack on Constitutionality of Act Unwitting

Action if Tried Would Affect 150,000 Women

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—An attack on the constitutionality of the California minimum wage law for women was suddenly ended today with the announcement by Miss Helen Gainer, Los Angeles stenographer, that she would ask the State Supreme Court to dismiss the suit brought in her name. The case, if tried, would affect the earnings of more than 150,000 women workers of the State.

Miss Gainer said she will ask a change of attorneys before Superior Judge Cabaniss next Friday in order to speed the dismissal, substituting Judge William A. Beasley, local attorney, and Attorney William J. Palmer of Los Angeles, in place of State Senator T. C. West of Alameda county, who originally filed the suit. Miss Gainer said her present attorney was not disposed to move for a dismissal.

START OF SUIT

In the suit which was filed before Superior Judge Cabaniss last July, Miss Gainer alleged that the minimum wage law is unconstitutional and interferes with her contractual rights to work in a candy factory as a "learner" at $6 a week. The law fixes a minimum wage for women workers of $16 a week.

Miss Gainer's plea for an injunction against the Industrial Welfare Commission was denied by Judge Cabaniss and the case went directly to the State Supreme Court for review.

In a statement made in Judge Beasley's offices yesterday, Miss Gainer stated she had been put in a wrong light and wanted to clear up the situation. She said in part:

GIVES EXPLANATION

"I became involved in this case against the Industrial Welfare Commission unwittingly, and without realizing that I was being made plaintiff in a case involving the constitutionality of the minimum wage law of California and threatening the welfare of the women wage earners of the State.

"I do not care to occupy that position for I, too, am obliged to earn a livelihood, and I am in sympathy with all other women who do so.

"I have made many efforts to have those who now appear as attorneys of record for me in the suit to bring about its dismissal. This has not been done, however, so I intend to move the court within the next few days for a change of attorneys."

Before filing of the suit, Miss Gainer was a private detective, she said today. She was instructed to apply for a position in a candy factory to establish her status as a worker, she stated.

Committee Favorable to Purchase of Clover Field

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 4.—According to information received this morning, the conference tomorrow night of the committee investigating the purchase of Clover Aviation Field by the city, to be held in Mayor Steele's office, is expected to bring about a definite proposition for submission to voters so that bonds may be voted.

Immediate action in the matter of purchase is favored by Frank E. Bundy, chairman of the committee. The Douglas Aircraft Corporation, which has promised to establish a modern factory on the grounds in the event of purchase, and Stanton Brothers, owners of the property, will be represented.

Clover Field covers approximately 173 acres and is being held for $800,000, the original price quoted the city by the owners some weeks ago.

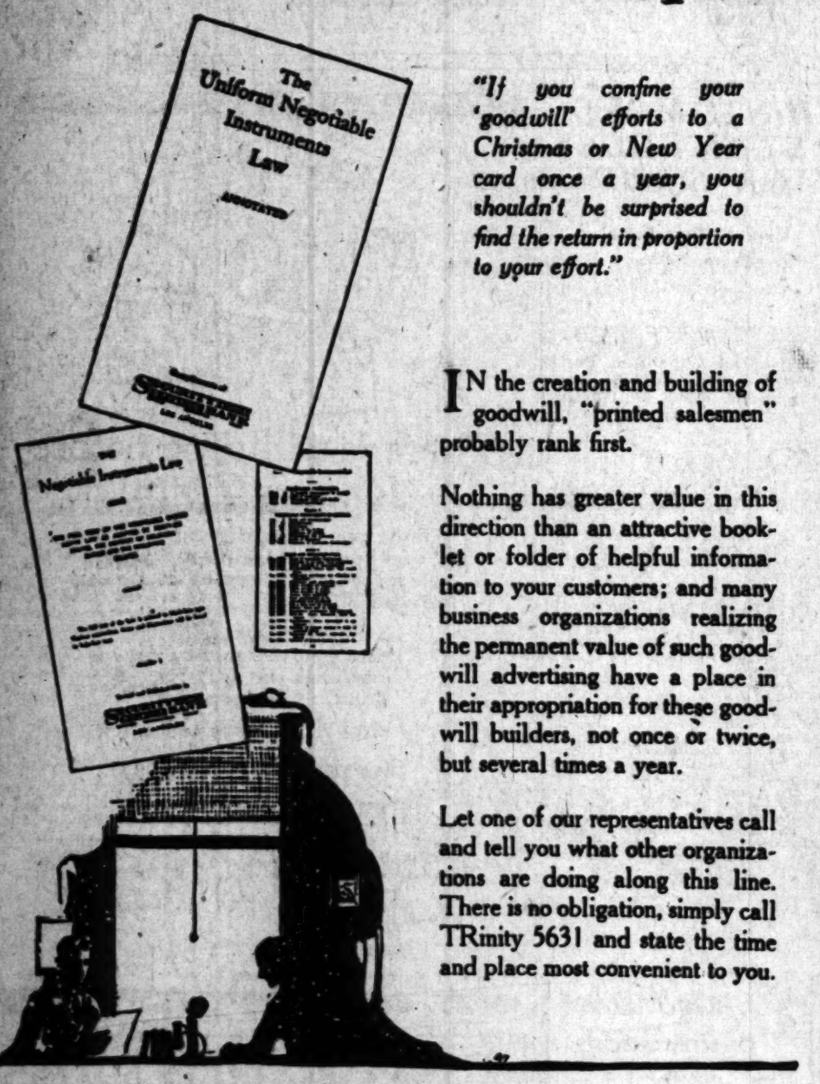
SIM CRABILL SAYS



"If you confine your 'goodwill' efforts to a Christmas or New Year card once a year, you shouldn't be surprised to find the return in proportion to your effort."

IN the creation and building of goodwill, "printed salesmen" probably rank first.

Nothing has greater value in this direction than an attractive booklet or folder of helpful information to your customers; and many business organizations realizing the permanent value of such goodwill advertising have a place in their appropriation for these goodwill builders, not once or twice, but several times a year.

Let one of our representatives call and tell you what other organizations are doing along this line. There is no obligation, simply call TRinity 5631 and state the time and place most convenient to you.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

Discovery Heals Rupture Without an Operation

Kansas City, Mo., (Special)—A discovery which experts agree, is the latest scientific marvel for curative effects in reducible rupture, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known rupture specialist, Dr. Andrews, 1539 Rupture Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds no fears for those who have a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' wish to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Times who writes him. He wants one user in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to get rid of rupture for good, without operation, take advantage of Dr. Andrews' free offer. Write him today.—Advertisement.

NEW SCHEME TO SPAN BAY TOLD

Architect Proposes to Join San Francisco, Oakland

City Said to Lack Vision to Back Huge Project

Transportation Problem Said to be Ignored

BY S. FRED HOGUE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—I have met in San Francisco a man with a vision, a dreamer, perhaps, but one who can point to past achievements as proof that some of his dreams at least can take the form of concrete material achievements. He is L. C. Mullgard, the architect who built the Court of the Ages of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, who has built bridges in various parts of the world, and who has formulated a realizable plan for spanning the bay from San Francisco to Oakland, provided the public will grasp the absolute necessity of such a plan, provide the funds and overcome the opposition of powerful private interests that seek to preserve the present ferry monopoly.

One who has followed the progress of San Francisco for twenty-five years, and compared it with that of other localities less favored by nature, cannot escape the conclusion that the city by the Golden Gate is not keeping up with the procession.

LOOKS TO BAY

San Francisco is not alive to the transportation problem; never has been, and a condition of inescapable stagnation results. San Francisco looks only to the bay, and not beyond it. The San Francisco of the last century was content to live by its harbor. That was the period when the central and eastern parts of the State were not developed, and Southern California had just begun its notable battle to eliminate the desert.

Almost surrounded by salt water, San Francisco looked for prosperity only to the sea.

But the face of the land has changed, while that of the sea remains unchangeable; and San Francisco has not done the things that are necessary to gain her share of the profits of the changed conditions.

One coming from the outside appreciates this at first glance, but the populace of San Francisco, who are notorious home dwellers, have not awakened to the value of their wasted opportunities.

For other communities science has shortened time and space, but the time required to pass from the peninsula to the main land has not been shortened as much as five minutes in twenty-five years; and the facilities for such transportation, either by highway or by water, have increased but little in that time.

FEW AUTOMOBILES

The automobile has revolutionized transportation and travel for the rest of the country, but not for San Francisco. With the exceptions o, the trucks and taxis, it is more nearly a motorless city than any other of as much as half its population in the country.

For this there are two contributory causes:

There is not a single wide paved boulevard leading from the city, even down the peninsula and space for automobiles is so limited on the ferry boats that the delays in crossing the bay reduce exit from the city to the north and the east to a low minimum.

Judging from my own observations, I should say that there are at least five automobiles in Los Angeles for each one in San Francisco. With many of us they are regarded as a perhaps necessary nuisance. We seldom appreciate what we have; but after viewing the semimotorless streets of San Francisco, I do not think I shall ever speak unkindly of the automobile again.

SEES HANDICAP

Architect Mullgard is one who has appreciated this handicap of his native town. He has traveled much, seen much and reflected on what he has seen.

At the Bohemian Club last week he showed me a sketch of the proposed bridge across the bay and gave me some interesting details. The plan has already been made public and is under consideration by various civic bodies; but the project has not taken definite form. Engineers do not dispute its feasibility; but both they and the bankers say it is too grandiose, that San Francisco is not yet ready for it.

The bridge would span the bay from Townsend street to the border line of Oakland and Alameda. Its extreme length would be six miles. The construction would be steel and concrete. He proposes a superstructure that would rise 200 feet above the water, over which the causeways would pass; the grade would not be heavier than 6 per cent.

PLAN REJECTED

The water below the central arch would be about sixty feet at the deepest point; and the foundations would be sunk probably fifty feet into the earth under the water. There would be two roadways, one over the other.

Mr. Mullgard has rejected the plan of part bridge and part tunnel, something that has been often proposed. His objection is shared by engineers and architects, although little is said about it here on the outside. There is always the menace of another earthquake like that of 1906. Such a convulsion would be very likely to crack the walls of the tunnel, just as it did those of the water and gas mains. If it came when the tunnel was occupied, the loss of life would be horrible to contemplate, and the project would be ruined.

Mr. Mullgard proposed a plan of construction that would be as substantial as that of any of the skyscrapers on shore, and it is illuminating to recall that none of these was seriously injured by the earthquake.

WOULD COST MILLIONS

This plan is for a bridge like other bridges have been built, although on a more comprehensive scale. But such a bridge might cost when completed as much as $100,000,000, and the traffic charges alone would not be sufficient to make it a profitable investment.

But Mr. Mullgard has envisioned something greater still. He proposes that the great steel arches of the superstructure should be inclosed. He would make of every one of them from the water to the causeway a great building, available for commercial and industrial purposes. The great central arch would be a pier at which seagoing vessels would land; there would be floating docks attached to the pier. He would add five miles to the docking space in San Francisco harbor. A building would be twenty stories down from the causeway, in place of twenty stories high.

Such a project entails the initial expense of possibly $150,000,000 in the beginning. The other buildings in the superstructure could be completed as needed.

WITHOUT VISION

The plan has been pronounced by experts to be practicable, but it goes over the heads of nearly all the people with whom I have talked. And I marvel at the lack of vision, even of the men who are leaders in civic and industrial activities here. Put Los Angeles in a similar position and I am sure it would be done. For men of mature years are looking to the future in Los Angeles, while in San Francisco their eyes are still turned to the past.

I listened with sympathy to Mr. Mullgard when he began to speak of the bridge plan, because my memory went back twelve years. I was then publishing a paper in San Francisco, was one of the thirty directors of the world's fair and consequently one of the body to whom he submitted his plan for the Court of the Ages. The majority of the directors then said it was impractical; that the expense would not be justified; that it was not essential to the success of the fair. But Mr. Mullgard persisted. One by one enough directors were won over to secure a majority, and those who visited the exposition can attest to the glorious result.

PLAN RAILWAY TO DEVELOP PROVINCE

PEACE RIVER DISTRICT NEEDS TO BE SET FORTH AT CONFERENCE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VICTORIA (B. C.) Jan. 4.—Enormous development of the Peace River district of Northern British Columbia, supposed to be one of the richest areas in North America, is foreshadowed by the action of the Canadian government in calling John Oliver, British Columbia Premier, to Ottawa, to confer on plans for tapping the resources of the district by railway.

Representatives of the Province of Alberta, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways also will attend the conference to lay out plans for the proposed railway link. The scheme shaped at this conference will be submitted to the Canadian Parliament for ratification at its forthcoming session, it is expected.

Already the Peace River country is producing large quantities of grain and other agricultural products but its development is stifled by lack of railway communication. When it is able to ship its products to the world's markets it is believed that a huge influx of settlers will follow. It is expected to become one of the heaviest grain-producing areas in the world.

The picturesque turban worn by some of the orientals requires from ten to fourteen yards of material in its making.

Wet Precinct Overrules Wish of Dry Town

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Jan. 4.—An instance of where the vote of about three square miles will force an area of thirty square miles to have beer by the glass has come to light.

The municipality of Burnaby, as a municipality, went dry at the taking of the recent plebiscite on the beer question, but the vote against the measure was not sufficiently large to offset the votes of the three square miles of territory that is added onto the municipality in making a provincial riding.

Burnaby as a municipality went dry by 163 votes, while Burnaby as a provincial riding went wet by one vote.

THIEF'S PLEA NOVEL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—J. W. Wahl, about 50 years of age, has been held for trial on a charge of grand larceny. He admits taking a horse, the property of Bert Lauzon, from Grand Canyon and of riding it away, headed for Wahl's home in San Diego. He lost the animal the second night of his westward journey. He says he thought the horse was kept at Grand Canyon for the convenience of tourists.

PROVINCE CASTS EXCLUSION GAGE

British Columbia Votes for Treaty Abrogation

Calls Dominion to Rescind Pacts With Asiatics

Proclaims Intent to Expel Oriental Intruders

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VICTORIA (B. C.) Jan. 4.—The most drastic steps ever proposed officially for counteracting the growth of Canada's oriental population are suggested in a series of blunt resolutions passed unanimously by the Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, which bears the burden of the dominion's Asiatic problem almost alone. These resolutions, prepared by the provincial government and carried without opposition in the Assembly suggest:

(1.) That Canada immediately withdraw from all treaties which limit in any way her right to regulate and prohibit Asiatic immigration.

(2.) That Canada sign no more treaties which restrict the right of provincial governments to exercise full control over Asiatics, both in industrial and social activities.

(3.) That all industrial establishments in this province immediately replace their oriental employees with white men.

DECLARATION OF WAR

The Legislature's resolutions, which undoubtedly reflect the determination of Western Canada to bring an end to the influx of orientals, followed speeches by leaders of both parties in the Assembly in favor of the most sweeping antioriental action. Restriction of Asiatic immigration, it was agreed, would not meet the present situation—the movement must be stopped altogether. Final adoption urging Canada's withdrawal from her present treaties with Japan came as a climax to a number of less vigorous proposals. The resolutions as finally approved have been forwarded to Ottawa with the request that the Federal government take early steps to make them effective.

Every branch of business in Western Canada is feeling the competition now, William Sloan, Provincial Secretary, declared in proposing the government's anti-oriental resolutions. While few had worried themselves about the situation a few years ago, he said, the chorus of protests from all over the country is almost unanimous.

Mr. Sloan urged British Columbians to adopt the slogan, "No truck nor trade with the foreigners in our midst," and to adhere to this determination. Only in this way can the alarming growth of orientals in business and the expansion of their influence be curtailed, he asserted.

Mr. Sloan emphasized that he did not consider the Legislature's resolutions on the oriental question as mere matters of form. Largely as a result of the determined stand taken by this province before, he said, the Federal government has practically stopped Chinese immigration into this country. It was safe to say, he remarked, that the door to the North Pacific has been slammed in the face of the Chinese and he hoped that it would remain shut for all time.

Unless Canada withdraws from her present treaty obligations it will be impossible to curb the oriental menace, Mr. Sloan warned. The British Columbia Assembly, he recalled, has passed in recent years thirty-eight statutes designed to regulate the activities of orientals in business, and each has been rejected because it contravened treaties with foreign nations like Japan.

The flow of Chinese immigration has stopped, Mr. Sloan admitted, but Japanese immigration continues and Japanese are exercising an ever-increasing influence in business her. British Columbia faces a much more serious Japanese problem than California, he said, and he quoted figures to show that there is a larger proportion of Japanese to whites here than in the American State.

British Columbia's inability to handle the oriental situation unless Canada withdraws from her present treaties was demonstrated while the Legislature was still in session, when a bill designed to prevent the employment of orientals and white girls together in the same homes as servants was declared ultra vires of the treaty between this Dominion and Japan. The measure consequently was dropped.

Texas Cattle and Birds Said to Appreciate Accidental Luxury

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 4.—The great gas torch which burns continually on the premises of the Dixie gasoline plant in the North Brown county oil and gas area near Brownwood was the means of saving the lives of several hundred head of cattle during the nights of the recent blizzard, when the mercury dropped to near zero.

The cattle collected near the great torch and spent several nights there during the freeze, while innumerable birds swarmed into the trees to the south of the blaze and roosted until the cold spell was broken.

MEMORIALS PLANNED TO CALVIN, JR.

Mercersburg Academy to Honor Memory of Young Coolidge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MERCERSBURG (Pa.) Jan. 4. Three memorials to Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the President, who died last July, are planned as integral parts of the campus and buildings of the Mercersburg Academy, where he was a well-loved student.

The memorials will take the form of a cross in the new academy chapel; a sunshine corner devoted to birds, flowers and trees, in some part of the campus, and a portrait of young Coolidge to be executed by one of America's best painters.

Mrs. Coolidge has requested that she be permitted to make the cross her gift to the institution in memory of her son. The sunshine corner, suggested by Mrs. Coolidge, will be the academy's own memorial and will commemorate the boy's delight in the beauties of nature. It will consist of a series of bird baths to attract the feathered wood folk, a sun dial and seats where the boys may gather when at leisure. It will be surrounded by shrubs, flowers and trees.

In addition to these memorials Mercersburg Academy has provided a memorial issue of the Academy News, in which are gathered recollections of young Coolidge, both in the life of the school and in that of the nation.

COUNCIL TO FIX BLAME FOR CRASH

City Truck Hit Auto as Driver Attempted to Save Documents

C. G. Smith was driving a city-owned truck when a gust of wind came along, a zephyr or two blew into the driver's seat and wafted some official papers and documents into the air. Smith grabbed for the swirling papers and the truck swerved and bumped into an automobile owned by Mrs. E. W. Atherton, which was standing at the curb. Damage to the automobile—$49.32.

All this was set forth in a report of the Board of Public Works which will come before the City Council's finance committee this afternoon. Mrs. Atherton asked that the city pay the repair bill on her automobile. The board said that Smith was a careful driver and had been told to guard carefully any books, papers, documents or maps entrusted to his care. In endeavoring to obey these instructions, the board said, Mrs. Atherton's car was struck.

While taking the position that reckless city drivers should be punished and made to pay personally for any damage done by reckless driving the Board of Public Works commissioners said that in this case Smith was endeavoring to rescue important public documents and that the city should pay the damage to Mrs. Atherton's automobile.

SOME WAVE LENGTHS BARRED TO AMATEURS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Under revised regulations governing amateur radio station operators, just issued by the Commerce Department, amateurs must cease using the wave length band between 105 and 110 meters. This section of ether capacity is being taken up by commercial and government stations. Amateurs who operate a spark set, which the department classifies as a source of much interference, are instructed to use only the wave length band between 150 and 180 meters, until such time as they have installed a transmission system productive of less trouble to other radio communication.

ATTEMPT TO ROB PARIS JUSTICE HALL FOILED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Jan. 4. — A daring attempt was made last night to abstract the judicial records from the Palais de Justice here. Military guards, during the night patrol, discovered that one of the doors of the room where the important "casiers judiciares" are kept had been forced and sounded the alarm. Reinforcements of soldiers and police quickly surrounded the building. However, their search showed that the burglars had escaped.

MUSSOLINI IN WAR ON OPPOSITION

Premier Starts Drive to Overcome Fascists' Foes; Prevent Disorders

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ROME, Jan. 4.—The measures announced by Premier Mussolini in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday for overcoming opposition to the Fascisti government within forty-eight hours are already being put in force. The Fascisti railway militia have prevented the execution of a plan unearthed by the police of stirring up disorders on the railways as recently evidenced by incendiary fires in Rome, Florence and Parma.

Simultaneously, the prefects throughout the kingdom have been authorized to make searches and dissolve all political clubs of antipatriotic character, while various other sections of the Fascisti militia have been mobilized in order to strengthen the police.

In various parts of Italy the Fascisti military carried out demonstrations. In Rome the local legion, 1500 strong, engaged in tactical maneuvers with machine-guns. There was assumed to be a sudden attack against Rome by an enemy assembled at Civita-vechia, the legion being divided into two groups for the maneuvers.

The suppression of the centers of agitation together with the muzzling of the opposition press and reinforcement of the police, the Premier believes will break down the opposition. The Messagero asserts that Mussolini has realized the impossibility not only of collaborating with the opposition, but in living in peace and that all attempts at pacification and normalization have failed.

FINANCIER SEES CLEAR ROAD AHEAD

Nation Has More Money and Credit Than Ever Before, Says W. B. Joyce

"Not within the business life of the average man has there been such a clear road ahead for business expansion in the United States, is my judgment of the business and financial outlook of the United States," stated William B. Joyce, chairman of the board of directors of the National Surety Company of New York, who has just arrived in Los Angeles to spend the winter.

"The nation has more money and credit than ever before, with every foreign nation knocking at our door for it, which means if loaned, the enormous purchasing of local products by foreign nations," said Mr. Joyce. "There also appears to be increased buying power among our own people."

"Nowhere on earth has nature been so generous as to Southern California. I have great confidence in its future and particularly Los Angeles. There are more people in the United States who desire to locate here than there has ever been before.

"There have been, of course, many untruthful statements regarding Southern California circulated throughout the East, but these will be a blessing in disguise. Never mind what they say about you—just keep them talking."

Friends in Youth, Friends in Trade, Partners in Life

Years ago they were childhood friends.

With the coming of maturer years, playtime partnership developed into a business partnership that thrived and prospered.

So, in the natural sequence of events, a life partnership seemed the logical milestone on the trail of romance for Edwin E. Weber, local automobile dealer, and Carolyn E. Wagner, who were formerly associated in business at 1957 South Los Angeles street.

Although friends of the couple often predicted the match, they were surprised to learn of the ceremony which was read by Rev. James L. Gordon at the First Congregational Church in San Francisco Saturday afternoon.

The bridegroom, at present, is Pacific Coast representative for a motor truck company. Following a honeymoon, the Webers expect to live at 1606 South San Pedro street.

COLORED SATIN CREPE MONTE CARLO VOGUE

KASHA IS ALSO FAVORABLE DRESS MATERIAL OF RIVIERA SEASON

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 4.—Satin crepe in pink, emerald green, rosewood, silk Ottoman and natural-colored kasha are the most successful dress materials of the Riviera season. Kasha cloaks trimmed with brown fur are prominent at sundown on the terrace at Monte Carlo and the Promenade des Angelaise at Nice.

Brown in various shades is also a favorite color at this time of the year. It is fashionable in jaunty little walking suits, with the straight silhouette.

Some frocks of natural-colored kasha have the narrow straight line effect, but the skirt has an apron tunic unobtrusively attached at the low waist line and extending nearly to the hem. Beneath this tunic, which is split in the front, the skirt seems narrow, but its width is extended by an inverted box plait at the left. Tunic, skirt and pleat all combine to make walking easy and achieve the straight line effect.

Youth Steals Police Patrol for Joy Ride

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SANTA ROSA, Jan. 4.—Frank Pretchel, 19 years of age, of Willows, got into an automobile here tonight and started to drive it away. He did not see a man sitting in the car as it was dark.

"Where are you going?" the man asked Pretchel.

"I am going for a ride," Pretchel is asserted to have replied.

"You are going for a ride, all right," said the man, and he did.

The car Pretchel got into was Santa Rosa's police patrol and the man sitting in the car whom Pretchel did not see, was Chief of Police George W. Matthews.

At police headquarters Pretchel said he was acting under the hypnotic influence of a man in Willows from which town he said he had walked to Santa Rosa.

TRIAL IS DUE IN BIG CREEK WATER SUIT

Question of Right to Store Run-Off is Involved in Damage Action

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FRESNO, Jan. 4.—Preparations for the trial of an action brought by the Herminghaus heirs against the Southern California Edison Company for an injunction restraining further work on the power company's $400,000,000 Big Creek development has been completed, it was announced today.

Trial of the action is scheduled to start tomorrow morning before Superior Judge J. M. Woolley in the Superior Court here, with James F. Peck and John W. Preston appearing for the plaintiffs and Edward F. Treadwell, W. M. Conley and the legal staff of the Edison company for the defendants.

The Herminghaus heirs claim to be riparian owners of 18,000 acres of land on the San Joaquin River, which they claim will be deprived of the natural flow of the river should the Edison company elect a system of reservoirs and tunnels to divert and store water for power purposes.

The action questions the right of a power company to store water, a point which has not heretofore been at issue in California courts.

The Edison company claims to be a riparian owner by virtue of property owned, leases and permits and licenses granted by the Federal government.

Roy V. Reppy, general counsel for the Southern California Edison Company, and George Trowbridge, his assistant, left last night for Fresno to participate in the case. R. H. Ballard, vice-president and general manager of the company, sa'd.

"It's a case for damages," said Mr. Ballard. "Some months ago the complainants asked for a temporary injunction but the court refused to grant it. Now the case goes regularly to trial."

TOBACCO PRODUCTION IN NATION [illegible]

DECREASE OF [illegible] POUNDS REPORTED BY DEPARTMENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Production of all types of tobacco grown in the United States was smaller in 1924 than in 1923, the Department of Agriculture reported today, the total crop being 1,243,000,000 pounds, as compared with 1,515,000,000 pounds. The cigar types showed a decrease of 200,000,000 pounds and the crop for chewing, smoking and export were reduced 60,000,000 pounds.

The reduction in [illegible] the department is due largely to the ing in practically all the tobacco-growing sections of the decreased yields in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Connecticut. The largest decrease was in the bright or flue-cured [illegible] tions of Virginia and the Carolinas, where production of the known as the old [illegible] types was 441,000,000 pounds, as compared with 152,000,000 pounds for the preceding year. Production of the burley, which is the most important single type of tobacco, was 311,000,000 pounds, or 37,000,000 pounds less than a year ago.

NOTE UNEARTHS HATCHET DEATH

Chinese Found Dead Several Days After Attack

Tong War Peace Truce Fails to Come in Time

Police Cannot Find Traces of Man's Slayers

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The secret temporary peace enforced on the warring tongs by the merchants of Chinatown did not come in time to save L. K. Fan. Stabbed with knives and carved with a high-binder hatchet—which is more like a Filipino bolo than a hatchet—ten days ago, his body was found in his room at 22 Orchard street. The police have not yet found out anything about him beyond the information in an anonymous letter which led to the discovery of his body.

REGISTERED LETTER

The letter came by registered mail addressed to the janitress of the house. Not realizing that she was entitled to open it, Mrs. Rose Greenfield took it to the landlord. It read:

"Will you go to Apartment 13 and see what has happened to L. K. Fan. We are his friends, but we dare not come to see him. Three weeks ago he left a house where he was cook on Long Island. They have not seen him since. They telephone every day, but we do not hear from him."

Mrs. Greenfield said that she went to Fan's room more than two weeks ago to collect the rent. She found a new padlock on the outside of his door. Fan visited his room but seldom. He always paid his rent.

KNIVES, CLEAVER USED

On the floor, half-naked and tangled in the bedclothes, lay the body of a man the police believe to be that of L. K. Fan. He had been stabbed fifteen times—five times in the right side, as many in the left, with other wounds in different parts of his body. Lest he might still survive these, his foes had slit his throat with a cleaver.

Knives—large and small, thin and sharp—were found about the two rooms. Some bore what appeared to be bloodstains and were taken to police headquarters for analysis. Letters, some in Chinese, some of commercial significance only, were taken in hope a clew to the murderer's identity may be found.

Detectives of the homicide squad believed the man had been attacked while he slept in the bedroom adjoining. Stains on the bedclothes bore that theory out.

The victim had been small but powerful, and must have summoned his last atom of energy to resist the attack, for he had dragged himself ten feet to the middle of his immaculate kitchen, but died there, tangled in his blankets.

WOMAN VISITOR

Fan came to the Orchard-street house as the room-mate of another Chinese who disappeared a month later. His only visitor since then has been a white woman.

Neither the Hip Sing Tong nor the On Leong Tong claimed him officially as a member, but this is not regarded by the police as significant, as many of the victims of the assassins lately have been neutrals who were working for peace.

Firemen Called Out to Control Water Gusher

Called to 432 South Main street yesterday the fire department found a geyser of water instead of flames was causing damage to near-by property.

The gusher, caused by a broken fireplug, was stopped by shutting off the supply from the water main and passers-by, roomers at 417½ South Main street, and customers in the Best Ever Lunch, 409 South Main street, commenced to dry themselves and their belongings. The damage was found to be nominal.

The fireplug was broken when a three-ton safe, being hoisted from the sidewalk to a truck in front of the Standard Jewelry Company at 432 South Main street, fell when a rope slipped. Someone pulled a fire alarm and brought the department.

Action on Strip of Land Facing Library is Due

The City Council will this morning consider the application of Dr. Hamilton Forline for a forty-year lease on the seventeen-foot strip on the north side of Fifth street, between the old and new Fifth streets and facing the new Public Library, on which the applicant proposed to building business buildings.

The Council on Friday rejected the application on the ground that business buildings should not be located on this narrow strip facing the new Public Library. At the desire of Councilman Gregory, the matter was reconsidered and will be heard today. Some of the councilmen as well as members of the library board desire that this narrow strip of land should be developed as a public park.

KAHN LAUDS LOCAL SINGER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Lawrence Tibbett, Los Angeles baritone, received today a letter of congratulation from Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, for his success Friday night as Ford in "Falstaff," in which he literally took his audience by storm. It added a climax to his happiness.

The young singer—he is only 28 years of age—also set at rest today reports that professional jealousy had prevented him from taking a curtain call alone until the audience made it certain it would not be denied. He declared both Antonio Scotti, who sang the title role, and Director Gatti-Casazza urged him to go before the curtain unaccompanied. Both insisted, he said, that the applause was for him.

Tibbett is not only American born but American trained; he has never even been in a European musical school. He recited some incidents of his career today.

"I was born in Bakersfield, Cal., in 1896," he said. "When 17 I began to sing in church choirs and small concerts. I hoped to save some money and go to college but the war came and I enlisted.

"When I came back it took me three days to persuade Grace Mackay Smith to marry me. We had attended the Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles at the same time.

"I needed money then and joined a theatrical company with which Tyrone Power was touring the West Coast. The company lasted a little more than two weeks. I played Marcutio in "Romeo and Juliet" and Iago in "Othello."

"I decided to come to New York, but it took a year before I could make the decision effective. Here we have had times of feast and famine. I did some concert and church singing at first. Last year I entered the Metropolitan Company."

Mr. Tibbett had sung Valentnie in "Faust," Silvia in "Pagliacci" and the Kings Herald in "Lohengrin" before his striking success of Friday night.

MORE LAND TO COTTON SUGGESTED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—There is no immediate danger that this country will lose its position of dominance in the world cotton markets, but the situation demands more aggressive efforts to stabilize production, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States declared today in a report on conditions suggesting increased yield per acre as a remedy.

Steady decline in production and rise in the price of cotton in the United States, the report said, have caused increasing activity abroad to develop other cotton areas, while demand for finished mill products is lessening.

Increased yields per acre automatically would reduce production costs and return the grower a just margin of profit, the report declared, and would permit of a sale price that would tend to increase consumption. Adverse weather conditions, the boll weevil, labor shortage and poor farming were given as the most serious obstacles to increased production in this country.

Rossi's Counsel Gives Out Denial on Memorandum

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ROME, Jan. 4.—Advocate Rumualdi, counsel for Cesare Rossi, author of the famous "Rossi memorandum," written in his own defense and charging Mussolini with being the instigator of numerous "aggressions," has issued a statement declaring that after a more careful investigation, he could say that the publication of this memorandum was not authorized, either by Rossi or himself, or by any member of Rossi's family.

Rumualdi concludes his statement by emphasizing the grave danger which factious political indiscretion might cause Rossi, who is in prison accused of a crime (complicity in the assassination of Deputy Matteotti,) for which the punishment is life imprisonment.

LAND BANKS' STATEMENT OPTIMISTIC

Federal Body Will Offer Smallest Bond Issue in Last Five Years

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Improved agricultural conditions have made it possible for the Federal Land banks to inaugurate their 1925 financing program with the smallest offering of bonds in the last five years. The issue, comprising $30,000,000 of 4 1-2 per cent bonds, will be placed on the market tomorrow by the twelve banks in association with a nation-wide syndicate headed by Alex Brown and Sons of Baltimore.

Two factors have contributed to the reduction in the amount of current new financing, according to a statement by the farm loan board. These are the improvement in farm conditions, resulting in a slightly lessened demand for new loans, and a substantial increase in payments. At the same time steady and substantial purchases of farm loan bonds by the Veterans' Bureau for the government's insurance fund are credited with providing a large portion of the funds needed for loaning purposes.

"The Federal Land banks enter the new year in a very commanding position," says the statement, "with their capital reserve and undivided profits grown to $66,000,000 and their total assets just under the $1,000,000,000 mark—which they will pass in January."

The new bonds will be priced at 101¼ and interest to yield over 4.30 per cent to the redeemable date 1935, and 4 1-2 per cent thereafter to redemption or maturity in 1955.

Cut in Holiday Wages Rankles City Inspectors

City inspectors who formerly received two and one-half days' pay for holiday work and under new ruling by the City Council are now receiving but one and one-half days' are "very much dissatisfied and are complaining bitterly," Inspector of Public Works Rook has reported to the Board of Public Works which in turn passed the matter on the Council. The finance committee of the City Council will consider the matter this afternoon.

Under the provisions of the city charter, city employees are permitted to stay at home holidays and receive for the day a full day's pay. When called upon to work on a holiday, they had been paid a day and one-half day's pay, making a total of two and one half days' pay for the holiday. The result of the adoption of the new policy is that the inspectors now receive for their holiday work a half day's pay.

Contractors on public work who are anxious for the work to continue on holidays now have an opportunity, said Inspector Rook, "to pay the inspector a sum of money secretly to make it worth the inspector's while to stay on the job" on a holiday. This is an intolerable situation, the inspector said, and one which would lead to further abuses. Inspector Rook has recommended that the Council provide that at last a day's additional pay be given inspectors who work on holidays.

OFFICER IS BEATEN UP ON BEACH

Fire Warden Attacked by Gang During Investigation at Lonely Cabin

Deputy Fire Warden D. R. Smith was brutally beaten and seriously injured on a lonely stretch of the beach north of Topanga Canyon early yesterday morning by several men who apparently resented his investigation of their suspicious actions, according to a report filed yesterday at the Sheriff's office.

Deputy Sheriff W. E. Harris and former Deputy A. M. Cooper were detailed to investigate the assault by Assistant Chief Deputy Robert Jones, and last night had obtained several clews to the assailants.

About two weeks ago Deputy Smith arrested a man asserted to have been attempting to break into a cabin about 800 yards north of the canyon's mouth. The prisoner was charged with burglary. At midnight Saturday night, while Smith was patrolling the beach, he observed several men at the same cabin acting in a suspicious manner.

Smith approached them and demanded their business. One of the men slipped behind Smith, and before he could draw his gun and defend himself, struck him over the head with a club.

Smith dropped to the ground and the others set upon him, stamping him. The injured man was found early yesterday morning and emergency treatment applied. It was stated that he is not fatally injured.

Harris and Cooper obtained a description of one of the men, and also learned that they were driving a Studebaker car, recently painted gray, with a white stripe an inch wide around the body.

The man is described as being about 23 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds, with dark skin and dressed in a blue serge suit.

It was stated that the men were probably hijackers or bootleggers, waiting for the landing of a rum ship, as this locality has often been used for smuggling of illicit liquor.

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't delay! Get a box of Doan's Pills. Give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Los Angeles Folks:

W. E. DeLEIPIRD, Painting Contractor, 1868 E. 37th St., says: "As a painter I used strong paints, the fumes of which, in all probability, affected my kidneys. When I worked in a cramped position I had catches in the small of my back. My back was lame, sore and achy. My kidneys were weak and ached too frequently. Doan's Pills stopped the backache in a short time, and my kidneys were put back to normal."

MRS. S. A. CROCKER, 1147 E. Forty-sixth St., says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and disordered them. My back became lame and weak and there was a dull soreness through the small of it. I tired quickly at the least exertion and always felt languid. During the day the trouble was worse, especially if I were on my feet any length of time. Doan's Pills proved to be just what I needed, for one box from the J. & J. Drug Co. drove all this trouble from me."

When he warmed up I knew he had all his stuff. The Giants soon realized it, too.

Johnson had that vast throng in an almost continuous uproar as he mowed down the New York batters. When he fanned George Kelly, after purposely passing Young in the ninth, I felt like joining in the cheers. Again in the eleventh he repeated the performance. Then I knew my confidence had not been misplaced. I saw the world's championship within our grasp.

WHITE POLO SQUAD WINS

Scores Victories Over Purples and Yellows in Fast Games at Midwick Country Club

BY BRAVEN DYER

Officials of the Midwick Country Club became exceedingly generous yesterday afternoon and provided the general public with a liberal offering in the way of 12 chukkers of polo, during which three separate squads did their stuff for the approval of something like 4000 fans, the largest crowd to find its way to the Alhambra field this season. The lavish entertainment introduced plenty of thrills to the spectators, who seemed well pleased with the abundant program.

The Whites, led by Arthur Perkins, star No. 3 man of the Midwick regulars, walked, or rather rode, off with most of the day's honors. Pitted against the Purples for the first four chukkers they won a tough battle, 3 to 2, and then cleaned up on the Yellows, 9 to 4, in the next four periods. This gave the Whites a total of 13 points for the afternoon, as against but five for the Purples, who rated second by virtue of their 3-to-0 victory over the Yellows in the last four sessions of the sport.

CREDIT TO PERKINS

Much of the credit for the Whites' triumph must be given Perkins, although the general all around team play of the victors was better than that of their rivals. As a defensive player there are few men on the Coast who have anything on Perkins and he saved his team time and again with his powerful back-hand drives that propelled the ball away from the danger zone. C. B. Wrightsman, riding in No. 1 berth, totaled five goals in the eight chukkers that he was in action and this also had a lot to do with the win. Harvey Pattee, who does most of his polo playing with the Riverside riders, appeared in No. 3 position for the Whites, and Neil McCarthy, another newcomer, showed well in the back berth.

The Purples were easily the best defensive club of the three, mainly because reliable Carleton Burke was guarding the lavender-hued squad's goal. While the Whites scored only two goals against the Purples, Burke's pony inadvertently kicked the ball through the posts for their third marker, which was just enough margin for the Whites to win by. The Yellows didn't get a point against Burke's team.

Teddy Miller did his best to keep the Yellows in the running, but a tremendous spurt on the part of the Whites in the fifth chukker saw four goals made, which was enough to put the Canary-colored quartet out of the running.

The round-robin affair was staged in order to determine the best junior players on the Midwick squad. Friday and Sunday the Midwick juniors go against Santa Barbara on the local field and the task of trimming the Northerners is tough enough to give Burke, Perkins and the rest of 'em plenty of worry. On the strength of yesterday's showing it looks as if Wrightsman, Wigmore and perhaps Miller and Burke would make up the team to meet Santa Barbara. It is a low-goal outfit which keeps Perkins, Miller and Burke from playing at the same time.

Time—Whites, 12; opponents, 0; Purples, 8; opponents, 3; Yellows, 4; opponents, 12.

BREAKS TIA JUANA RECORD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 4.—A new track record for the 1⅛-mile route at Tia Juana was established this afternoon when Buckhorn II galloped the distance in 3:01 3-5 to win the Elks' Handicap, one of two feature races on the day's program.

Buckhorn II, himself, held the former Tia Juana record for the distance, the old mark being 3:03 flat. Luster was added to his performance today because he packed 103 pounds, compared with ninety-three when he made the original record. Buckhorn II trailed the field for the first mile, showing his real stuff in a gruelling stretch battle when he overcame Glanmore, which had led from the start. East Indian was third.

Osprey again demonstrated today that he is the class of the steeds now quartered at Tia Juana, this sterling runner hanging up his fifth victory of the season. His latest triumph was in the sixth race over the mile route.

Sunnyland offered stout opposition at the beginning but Osprey pulled in a comfortable lead and was four lengths in front at the wire. Cherry Tree, which has performed indifferently this season, came to life and closed fast to take second money. Spread Eagle was third.

Bobby Allen at 53.30 to 1 won the third race, largely as the result of a lot of crowding at the barrier, which practically eliminated the two favorites, Top O' the Morning and Bon Box. Bobby Allen was away clear while the others were getting started and he and Runleigh, another outsider, which led to the head of the stretch, staged a pretty race. Runleigh succumbed to the pace and Bobby Allen came over. Top O' the Morning moved up fast and finished with a terrific rush that all but overtook the leader. Sweet and Low was third, Runleigh fourth and Bon Box fifth.

The first race, for two-year-olds, at two furlongs, was taken by the heavily played Jack, Jr., Lady Allen placing and Guess the Time, getting third money.

First race, two furlongs: Jack Jr. (Doyle) won; Lady Allen (Lilley) second; Guess The Time (Smith) third. Time, :23.

Second race, five furlongs: Excuse Me (Hoagland) won; Dr. Hays (Craig) second; Lamsted (Young) third. Time, 1:01.

Third race, six furlongs: Bobby Allen (Crater) won; Top o' the Morning (Roberts) second; Sweet and Low (Greenwood) third. Time, 1:14.

Fourth race, mile and seventy yards: Wild Jack (Barnes) won; Poor Puss (Ellis) second; The Lamb (McHugh) third. Time, 1:46.

Sixth race, one mile: Osprey (Walls) won; Cherry Tree (Barnes) second; Spread Eagle (Hoagland) third. Time, 1:38.

Seventh race, one and three-quarter miles: Buckhorn (Young) won; Glanmore (McHugh) second; East Indian (Hooper) third. Time, 3:01 3-5. New track record.

Eighth race, five furlongs: Knighthood (Roberts) won; False Face (Baker) second; My Reverie (Griffin) third. Time, :59 3-5.

BOXERS IN UNIQUE GO THIS WEEK

Mickey Walker, Holder of World Welter Title, Faces the Heavier McTigue

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Mike McTigue of Ireland, world's light-heavyweight champion, will furnish the excitement in the main event of the coming week's pugilistic program when they meet in a Newark (N. J.) ring on Wednesday night in a twelve-round no-decision match.

This match will be unique in that it will be the first time a champion has stepped up two classes to meet another champion. Although Walker will enter the ring lighter than McTigue, there will not be any great difference in their weight. Walker will scale over the 150 mark, while McTigue will likely weigh between 160 and 165.

Several other good matches are scheduled for the coming week. Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., will meet Frankie Ritchie of New York here on Monday night. In Brooklyn on Monday night three ten-rounders will head a program of matches involving Joey Silvers of New York and Caddy Demarco of Pittsburg and George Lavigne of Brooklyn and Paddy Ryan of Pittsburg.

Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, who recently ascended to the world's bantamweight throne by outpointing Abe Goldstein, former champion, will risk his title in a six-round match in Brooklyn Wednesday night when he meets Angie Pisano, a local bantam.

Lightweights will meet at Madison Square Garden on Friday night when Tommy O'Brien of Milwaukee faces Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., former world's junior lightweight champion, in a ten-round match.

Friends of Johnson intimated that his contemplated visit to Los Angeles is on baseball business.

WESBROOK BESTS CASEY

Walter Wesbrook, one of Southern California's best-known net satellites, defeated Ray Casey, the celebrated San Francisco slugging southpaw, 7-5, 6-4, in an exhibition match played yesterday on the Hotel Huntington courts before a fairly large crowd. Wesbrook had quite a bit of trouble returning Casey's terrific drives, but managed to come through in the pinches to capture each set.

In an exhibition mixed doubles affair, Casey got partial revenge on Wesbrook by pairing with Mrs. William Henry and trouncing Wesbrook and Miss Marion Williams. The match was a hard-fought struggle, going three sets. The final score was 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

YOST ROASTS LATE GAMES

Athletic Director of Michigan is Against Post-Season Contests and a Lot of Other Things

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Fielding H. Yost, for twenty-four years a famous gridiron coach at the University of Michigan, taking inventory tonight of the intercollegiate athletic situation of the nation, sounded a warning against post-season intersectional games, voiced his objections to athletic professionalism, and declared that not more than four football games a season should be scheduled that would require the players to be keyed up to the highest pitch, mentally and physically.

Yost, the Wolverines' director of athletics, sets forth his views in an article on the "administration of intercollegiate and interscholastic games." Briefly, the veteran coach says that sport is good only as sport; that when it interferes with studies, evil results are likely to follow. If intersectional games are to be played at all, they should be scheduled for the regular season so as not to prolong the training period of the players, he believes.

EIGHT GAMES

In all events, the gridiron season should close by Thanksgiving time and there should be not more than eight regular games on any schedule, Yost counsels.

"No boy should ever be permitted to absent himself from any class for athletic purposes," Yost writes. "This defeats the purpose of both classroom and athletics. Practice periods must be arranged in conjunction with classroom schedules and all conflicts avoided."

He opposes the idea of post-season games because he says they establish a bad precedent and any attempt to determine a national championship is wrong because there are too many good teams in the country to consider in such an attempt.

"In general, intersectional games that require much time away from classes are unwise," Yost says. "If played at all, they should be scheduled for the regular season so as not to prolong the training period.

NO USEFUL PURPOSE

"There are too many good teams in the country today to attempt to determine any so-called national championship and it makes no difference anyway. Post-season games are usually planned to bring two outstanding teams together but they do not determine anything of value and serve no useful purpose."

Yost, whole-heartedly opposed to professionalism in football, says all college athletics are based on the principle of "play for play's sake," and the influence of athletic professionalism makes youths dissatisfied to play the game for its own sake and leads them to regard athletic prowess as a marketable commodity, destroying the real purpose of athletics.

ADAM WALSH TO BE AT LEGION FRIDAY

Adam Walsh, captain of the Notre Dame football team, will be present at the Hollywood American Legion bouts Friday night and will be given a wrist watch by the post. The main event will feature Tommy Carter and Ace Hudkins, the boys to go ten rounds for the Pacific Coast lightweight championship.

BERT COLIMA PUTS IN HARD DAY'S WORK

Bert Colima has been working steadily at Dutch Myers's camp. He dons the mitts every day and indulges in plenty of rope skipping and shadow boxing to keep his speed well tuned up. Bert will be ready for any opponent from now on at any time.

GENE SARAZEN BUSTS RECORD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HOLLYWOOD (Fla.) Jan. 4.—Gene Sarazen, formerly national open champion, again lowered the record for the eighteen-hole course today when he sank a long putt on the last hole for a 67. He was paired with Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, in match with Tommy Armour and Bill Mehlhorn, western open champion. Sarazen and Diegel won one up after trailing two down at the end of the morning round of nine holes. Sarazen first shattered the course record Christmas with a 68, two under par.

SANTA BARBARA RECORD BROKEN

Abe Mitchell Shoots Course in 66 Strokes

Local Star's Putting Verges on Sensational

Golf is Best Ever Seen on Northern Green

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 4. Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, British professional golfers, today defeated George Von Elm of Los Angeles and Gwynn Bowen, local professional, over the La Cumbre Golf and Country Club. Links by 3 up and 2 to play, after one of the most brilliant exhibitions of golf ever seen in the West.

The foursome had a best ball of 59 for the afternoon round, and Mitchell smashed the course record by three strokes when he holed out for a magnificent 66. Never in the history of golf in this section has such golf been seen as was unfolded by Mitchell in the afternoon and especially on the last nine, which he shot in 30, five strokes under par figures. The total medal scores for the day were: Mitchell 141, Duncan 144, Von Elm 145, Bowen 147.

SURPRISES GALLERY

The great Mitchell drove several greens over the 300-yard mark, enabling him to clip off a flock of birdies and eagles the like of which has never been seen in these parts. On the last nine he had a two and five threes. Duncan played very fine golf also, but it was a Mitchell day, and it was just as well that it was, because Von Elm had a putting streak on the final nine that was simply uncanny. Time and again he sank twenty-footers if not to win, it was to save a hole.

The best ball of the winners in the morning round was 71, while their opponents had a 72, which left the British team 1 up when they adjourned to lunch. Duncan started the second session in truly characteristic style by winning the first two holes and had a birdie for a win on the third, but Von Elm sank a magnificent twenty-footer for a half. The most sensational shots of the day, strange to say, were executed by Duncan at almost the same position and at the same hole, the third, where he was stymied by threes. It was impossible for him to pitch over them, so he used his spoon both in the morning and afternoon with the extraordinary result that he laid both of 100-yard approaches dead to the pin.

George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, famous British professionals, will appear at the Hacienda Country Club Wednesday afternoon when they face Charles Guest and Harry Pressler in an 18-hole exhibition match.

On the morning of the Duncan,

Expect Crowd of 90,000 Will Witness Next California-Stanford Football Ga

ENLARGE CARD GRIDIRON BOWL

Stanford Authorities Plan to Remodel Stadium

Palo Alto to Have Biggest Field in America

Public Will Now Have Good Chance to See Game

BY WILL FREDERICKS
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

PASADENA, Jan. 4.—California and Stanford football teams, if present plans mature, will meet next November before an audience of 90,000 persons at an enlarged Cardinal stadium on the campus at Palo Alto.

Before leaving Pasadena yesterday members of the Stanford Board of Athletic Control staff made known new plans for increased seating capacity in the Palo Alto stadium.

Engineers already are at work drawing plans, and determining the best methods to pursue in construction. Chief points in the rebuilding of the Card bowl will be first, the closing of the present open end of the stadium, and second, raising the embankments all around the bowl.

The present stadium at Stanford was built five years ago, and at the time was twice the size of any bowl on the Pacific Coast, seating 65,000 persons. At the time it seemed more than sufficient. Two years later California completed the Memorial Stadium at Berkeley, seating 75,000. Last November when the Cards and Bears met in their famous 20-to-20 engagement the Berkeley authorities were forced to build additional bleachers on the hill at one side of the bowl, to care for 6000 added fans, while 10,000 were admitted to standing room above the bowl and many others were turned away.

Anticipating even greater demand next season the Stanford officials went to work immediately after the November 22 battle, and now they have definite procedure in mind for construction which will enlarge the seating capacity by 25,000 before the next Card-Bear meeting.

The Stanford Stadium is used for track and field competition as well as football. The 220-yard straightaway, which now runs tangent to the oval from the open end of the bowl, will be left under a high archway under the embankment which will close this end.

Stanford's new stadium, if built according to present plans, will be the largest on the Pacific Coast by 15,000. The growth of popular interest in football on the Pacific Coast is well represented in the continued Stanford construction program over the last six years.

In 1919 when the California-Stanford game was resumed it was thought that the bleachers at Palo Alto, accommodating 20,000, would not be filled. But many were turned away. When the Cards built their 65,000-capacity stadium certain unkind folk suggested the Stanford had everything but a football team, and that the bowl would never be filled. But it was all but filled in the dedicating game, a 43-to-7 affair.

Last November the seats at the Berkeley stadium were sold only to alumni of the two universities, and the general public was not even let in. With a 90,000 bowl at Palo Alto Stanford hopes to care for part of the general football public as well as for students and alumni of Berkeley and Palo Alto.

The Card bowl is unlike any other on the Pacific Coast. It has a place all its own on the large Stanford campus, with immediately adjacent parking area for as many as 30,000 automobiles. It has no tunnels. All entrances are by the over embankment stairways. The outer surfaces of the embankments are covered with greenery. There is no concrete in the structure.

Some engineers engaged in preparing new construction plans favor a second deck for the new Stanford bowl, but most authorities at Palo Alto believe the plans outlined above will be followed.

BUCKY HARRIS'S LIFE THROUGH CAMERA'S EYE

It's the same grin young Mr. Harris had when he was just that kid Bucky working in the colliery. But look at him now! He is receiving at the hands of President Coolidge a silver cup presented to him by the citizens of Washington for winning the pennant as manager of the Senators—and the youngest manager ever known in the big leagues at that. Below is shown the youngster who said that maybe he didn't weigh much but he was going to show 'em some day and get into the big leagues. He did. Stanley Harris at the age of 13 appeared to be on form about as unlikely looking a prospect as ever picked up a bat in the back lot. At the lower right is shown Bucky Harris, star. He said he was going to get there and here he is after he did it.

BUCKY HARRIS A SEMIPRO AT FOURTEEN

Stanley Harris, more widely known as Bucky, youngest big league baseball manager on record and pilot of the 1924 world's champions, the Senators, went to work in the coal mines at the age of 13 and was a semipro player when he was a year older.

His remarkable story of pluck and determination in the face of adversity begins on November 8, 1896, when he was born at Port Jervis, New York. And he was born on Ball street. He moved to Pittston, Pa., when he was 5 and at once began to hope. Baseball ran in the family, his father had been a semiprofessional pitcher for Hughey Jennings and an elder brother, Merle, also became a semiprofessional.

Stanley Harris, at work at 13, besides being a star in the Sunday school team, quickly turned into a semiprofessional.

His chance came in 1916 with the Tigers—and they let him out. He failed twice more in the same year with lesser clubs. And when he landed a job with Norfolk, the war disbanded the Virginia League. But he kept on.

With Reading in 1917, with Buffalo with the International League in 1918; then headed for military camp when the armistice was signed, and back to Buffalo in 1919, a year memorable for the fact that McGraw watched him work out at the Polo Grounds and passed him up.

In 1919, Harris, who could have been sold to other clubs, picked Washington because he thought he would have a chance to play regularly from the outset. He made his big league debut in New York in 1919 in a double-header. The next year he became Washington's regular second baseman and in 1924, at the age of 27, was made manager of the team, being the youngest big league pilot ever known. He won the American League pennant for the first time in Washington's history and was one of the individual stars for Washington in the World Series.

LIFE STORY OF BUCKY HARRIS

a jubilant pack of fans at our heels. There the boys were singing and shouting. I was so dazed I don't remember whether I joined them or not. Probably I did. Realization that I had led a club to victory, in what has been called the greatest world's series in the history of the game, hadn't struck home yet.

Not once that afternoon had I thought of the prestige or money that would go to the victors. It was just a ball game to me—a contest for which to fight every inch of the way and to win if that was possible. This was the attitude of all our players while on the field in the championship series and the American League campaign, too. From the opening of the season I had preached that our job was to do each day's work to the best our our ability and to let tomorrow and yesterday take care of themselves. If we lost a game we didn't worry and hold useless postmortems. We tried to profit by our mistakes and let it go at that.

YOUTHFUL BOSS

And now the season was over and I was manager of the world's champions at 27 years of age. Even with the Washington players rejoicing, the congratulations and shouts of the joy-maddened mob outside, I couldn't realize my good fortune. Six years before I had been working in a coal mine. Only five years previous I had come to the Washington club as a green major-league recruit.

I left the clubhouse still in a near daze and went to my hotel. Friends dragged me to the lobby. There a seething crowd was celebrating Washington's victory. It began to dawn on me just how much the triumph meant to the people of Washington. A young boy in the crowd shouted: "Hurrah for 'Bucky!'" When the cheer was taken up I had to blink my eyes and rub the back of my hand across them. It came away wet.

Later I went to pay my respects to Judge Landis, the ruler of organized baseball. Looking down Pennsylvania avenue from a window of his rooms, all Washington seemed to be celebrating. Newspaper men who had seen the Armistice Day jubilation in the national capital, in other great American cities and in Paris, said this was the greatest demonstration of our day. The display of carnival spirit awed me. For the first time I realized what a truly wonderful hold baseball has on the people of this country. Before my eyes I saw a city gone mad over our victory. And from the messages of congratulation that began coming in from all over the country I knew Washington's joy was shared elsewhere.

WHAT COP SAID

Still I didn't quite grasp what it meant to be the leader of a world's championship club. I had been cheered, and took that as part of the day's work, just as when jeers greeted a bad play. Soon after leaving Judge Landis's suite my standing as a person of real importance in Washington was driven home.

Accompanied by several friends, I got in a taxicab to join the parade of triumph. By a coincidence, there was a sticker which read "Bucky," pasted on the windshield. No one in the crowd recognized me by this for there were hundreds of other taxis so labeled. Finally we were held up by a traffic policeman who declared no autos could pass. Our driver argued the matter.

"Only the President can get by here," the cop declared as if to wind up the argument.

"Man, I got 'Bucky' Harris in this bus!" the driver came back.

"Why didn't you say so at first?" the traffic man protested. "On your way." And he let us through. Then I knew I had reached the top in the baseball world.

PREP FIVES IN SECOND ROUND

Undefeated Jefferson and Lincoln Teams Meet

Hollywood Cagers to Make Debut Next Friday

Manual Squad Must Win to Keep in the Running

BY ROBERT E. RAY

City League basketball faces will tangle in the second round of their cage schedule next Friday afternoon when three contests will take place on local prep courts. The number of undefeated quintets will be reduced at least by one in this round, with a possibility that two heretofore unbeaten squads will taste defeat.

Probably the feature game of the afternoon will bring together Lincoln and Jefferson on the Democrat court. Both the Railsplitters and Democrats copped their opening-round tilts, and one is bound to be eliminated from the running when they collide. Coach George Costello's Jefferson outfit, which kicked over the dope bucket by walloping Manual last week, is favored to take the Railsplitters into camp, but they may be forced to swallow a little of their own medicine Lincoln won from Franklin, not considered a contender.

Rivaling the Lincoln-Jefferson set-to for top interest, is the Manual Arts-Hollywood struggle, to take place in the Toilers' big gym. It will mark the Hollywood fives' debut and they will take the floor anxious to win and get off to a good start in the gonfalon chase. In practice the Foothillers have made an imposing record, but whether they can do as well in a league tilt, is something else again. Motts Blair's Manual squad will go into the fray pepped up to retrieve the laurels it lost by the Jefferson defeat. The Artisans must win to stay in the title running. If Manual loses, it will be the first time in four years the Toilers have not either won or tied for the championship.

The third game on for Friday takes place at Franklin, where the the Kitefiyers hook up with L. A. High. Post prestige makes the Romans favorites, but when their crushing 22-to-4 defeat at the hands of Poly is considered, the Franklin chances for victory look bright. Voyle Brennen's Poly Yellowjackets, who overwhelmed L. A. High last Friday and placed themselves in the ranks of the contenders, draw a bye this week.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

Pat Lester, the big boy from Tucson, is entirely too nice a young man to be trying to become heavyweight champion of the world. Pat, who is about as Irish as any direct descendant of Teutonic ancestors could be, has pretty nearly everything that a good heavyweight should have, except the one essential—the old killer instinct. Pat is big, fast, strong and can take 'em, but he wouldn't have the heart to swat flies.

When he mauled around the ring with long Ralph Smith the other night at Hollywood, Lester ought to have knocked the tall boy's head off in the first round. He pretty nearly did it with a right-hand smack to the whiskers that had the long heavyweight leaning over like the Leaning Tower of Pisa which, incidentally, drew more applause than any of the actors the opening night of "Romola" at Sid Grauman's Theater.

Lester was much stronger than Smith and never had a mark on him, while his opponent looked like somebody had busted a bottle of tomato catsup over his head from the first moment of the bout until the end. The Tucson boy started off with a good head start as a result of his first wallop, but didn't seem to have any desire to press his advantage or lead at any time and as a result of Smith's aggressive methods grabbed the decision.

Incidentally, it might be mentioned that Tucson is one real live sporting community. The fans down there pore through the papers with twice the interest of a local sport and they read every word that has to do with Arizona athletes of any kind or description. The whole town turned out to welcome Notre Dame's eleven and during its four-day stay the entire community was at their disposal. Rockne tried to hold a secret practice, but somebody saw the players leave the hotel and he had 500 spectators.

Everybody in Tucson knows Pat Lester, who was born and raised there and once played on the University of Arizona football team under Coach Fred McKale. Likewise, they are tremendously excited over Tommy Carter, who burst into fame in that bustling community and then moved to Los Angeles to capture the Pacific Coast lightweight championship. They will be all excited over Tommy's bout over ten rounds next Friday night at Hollywood.

There is certainly a wide divergence of opinion over the effect of Southern California's climate on football teams. Most of it leads one to suspect that the effect is largely mental because invariably a good percentage of the players report that it didn't affect them at all. Neither Chick Meehan of Syracuse nor Gwynn Henry of Missouri offered any climatic alibi to their defeats at the hands of the U.S.C. Trojans.

Rockne believes that his men were handicapped by the climatic change and the long trip, but not to such an extent that he wouldn't try it again. Glenn Warner, who has brought more teams to the Coast than anybody else, says his teams weren't affected. The Navy team last year reported that it was O.K., as did Penn State and Washington and Jefferson in previous years. Ohio State was affected by the heat, the Ohio State-California game having been played on the hottest New Year's Day in history.

It looks very much as though Greasy Neale of W. and J. had the right dope when he got here the day before the game and let it go at that. Penn did that up at California and, while the team sagged in the middle of the game because of the muggy heat, it didn't lack in condition for it had more punch in the last quarter than it had in either the second or third periods. Missouri did the same thing and Coach Henry reported that the two things that slowed up his team were injuries to VanDyne and Smith, which might have happened in any climate, and the weight and power of the Trojan reserves.

Big Belmont Stable Will be Sold Off

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Announcement that the racing stable of the late Maj. August Belmont, chairman of the jockey club, will be sold by public auction this winter unless disposed of previously by private sale, was made today by the executors of the estate. It was stated, however, that no decision has been reached regarding the final disposition of the nursery stud, Mr. Belmont's great Kentucky breeding establishment, which is considered as one of the greatest thoroughbred nurseries in the world. The announcement by the executors was as follows:

"The racing stable of the late August Belmont, consisting of the 4-year-olds, Ladkin, Ordinance, Lucky Play and Blind Play and seventeen 3-year-olds, will be offered at public auction in this city prior to March 1 on a date yet to be determined unless purchased as a whole privately prior to the announcement of date of sale."

It is evident that the executors have decided that the stable shall be sold as a whole and that offers for individuals of the twenty-one head that are to be disposed of will not be considered.

New Feather Champ Much Like Bat Nelson

...KARD LAUDS LEWIS KAPLAN

...He Packs a Real Wallop Around With Him

...Champion Has Respect for Danny Kramer

...ders Him One of Gamest Boys in Business

BY HARRY NEWMAN
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—"Lewis Kaplan is a second edition of Battling Nelson," said Tex Rickard, the promoter, in Madison Square Garden today. "He's about the same type of that fighter, except that he probably can seek a shorter than the great battler. Battling Nelson did not go in for quick knockouts, but he took the heart out of any fighter by the way he could assimilate punishment. He it is with Kaplan. He can take it all day long and he gets ready he is there with the goods. It is going to take a fighter to beat that kid."

Rickard was talking down the Garden tower after he had met with Young Kaplan, the 19-year-old brother Frank Flourney's stable of the featherweight brilliant both to talk about himself and ready to unfold his views on the ability of Danny Shea of Philadelphia, whom he met last night. As a matter of fact Kaplan is satisfied that he is the gamest man he ever met in the ring and thinks that the boy deserves a world of credit for his display of grit.

"I have been fighting five years," he said, "and I am sure I never met a tougher boy. While he never was dangerous every moment I was in the ring I was obliged to stand up and I fought with care accordingly. I'd like to give Dan another chance, however but I think I will go in a few weeks before I meet my next opponent."

In reply to a query as to how he would take on Johnny Dundee if the latter decided to return to the featherweight division, he said:

"I'd be glad to do so. Dundee has come back some and will find me ready for him. I am going to California where I expect to fight a few no-decision bouts. On my return the champions can get all the chances they want at me."

Kaplan was born in Russia twenty years ago and during his ring career has been fighting, he has had but six decisions in nearly

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

Qualitative analyses will be given in this department of The Times to correspondents sending small minerals free of charge. Make each sample of an ounce or so in weight. Be sure to write a letter stating what tests are desired and give the approximate locality from which samples were taken. Do not pulverize the specimens. Give your name and address on paper wrapped with samples.

Alumns

NEPHI (Utah) Dec. 15.—Question: I am forwarding by today's mail a sample of material. Will you please advise me if it carries anything of value. It contains a water soluble salt of some kind. SUBSCRIBER.

Answer: The sample reacts negatively for nitrates. It seems to be a mixture of two alums; halotrichite (iron alum) is present with some kalinite (potash alum.) It might be well to prospect a little at the locality from which the specimen was taken in the hope of finding better grades of sulphates. If the samples are from incrustations on rocks, then, the probabilities would be that the discovery will amount to very doubtful financial gains, by mining, etc.

Free Gold Absent

BISHOP, Dec. 15.—Q.: I am sending by parcels post a sample of a clay formation. Could you tell me if it has any commercial value? Is there any likelihood of there being any mineral at any depth? This sample is off the surface. Of what does the sample consist? AN OLD SUBSCRIBER. R.

A. The specimen contains no minerals of commercial value. It seems to be a mixture of aluminum silicate, volcanic ash, and pebbles, and it is impossible to figure on what may be found at depth.

To Samples

OCEANSIDE, Dec. 16.—Q.: I send you two samples of rocks from Southern Oregon. Would be pleased if you would test them for gold, silver and platinum. L.

A.: The two samples react for iron and arsenical sulphides. There is no free gold or native platinum present. For silver and other gold values, kindly consult assayers.

Iron Oxides

MONTERELLO, Dec. 17.—Q.: I am sending you a small specimen of rock and wish you could let me know if it contains any mineral of commercial value. I am thanking you for the past many favors you have done for me. W.

A.: The sample is a good grade of iron oxides. The metallic-lustered matter in the specimen is magnetic iron ore, with limonite (hydrous iron peroxide) and hematite (iron peroxide,) in fair percentages.

Free Gold Absent

CARTAIC, Dec. 17.—Q.: Please let me know the classification, and give analyses of the three samples. They were taken from Fish Creek district, near Red Rock. R.

A.: Sample No. 1 is hornblendic rock in part. Pyrite present, and cyanite traces. No. 2 is ferruginous (iron-bearing) quartz containing a low percentage of altered pyrite. Gold should be found in this ore by fire assays. No. 3 is a slab-like piece of very impure limestone carrying iron oxides.

Platinum Absent

REDLANDS, Dec. 17.—Q.: I am sending you in cigar box three samples of ore and one tin box of concentrates taken from the ore. There is an element in this ore that is in question; it is very heavy, and when it is panned, the "string" resembles very fine gold of slightly greenish cast. Will you kindly advise me what this element is. K.

A.: The massive samples react for iron, diallage, arsenic, titaniferous iron, manganese, clay and sulphur. The concentrates contain magnetite and titaniferous iron. The sulphates present are chiefly of iron, and seem to be a mixture of copiapite (one of the iron sulphates) and arsenopyrite. The matter you find as of greenish gold shows diallage, hornblende, arsenopyrite and magnetite.

Free Gold Absent

CORONA, Dec. 13.—Q.: Herewith please find four pieces of rock which I will thank you to classify. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 are from the same outcrop. E.

A.: Sample No. 1 is lime carbonate with a slight strontium reaction. Nos. 2 and 3 black tourmaline (common Schorl variety.) No. 4 is quartz containing needle hornblende, acicular tourmaline, and one color of pyrite (microscopical) resembling gold.

Fertilizer Material

GAVIOTA, Dec. 18.—Q.: Under separate cover I am mailing you a sample of rock, which considering most of the deposit appears to be fossilized shell, it occurs to me that possibly the rock would make cement, and whether it will or not is what I would like to know. The formation is in an immense valley ten miles or so from the sea, but undoubtedly is a marine deposit. The exposed rock runs around the valley and, almost, at a distance, takes the form of an artificial wall. M.

A.: The particular sample a lime carbonate containing a low percentage of phosphoric acid, and probably is of marine (and not fresh water) deposit. It would appear that such limestone would make a rather poor cement; it lacks the necessary iron oxides, and is rather high in alumina silicate. Tests on a quantity of five pounds should, however, give better results than on samples rather small for a practical conclusion.

Base-Metal Sulphides

SANTA ANA, Dec. 19.—Q.: Inclosed samples are from Kern county, California, twelve miles from Caliente. No. 1, I wish to know the character of the rock; is it flint or chert, and how did it become so bleached out? No. 2 is found in the center of some of the larger pieces of No. 1; the miners call this Antimony, is it such? Fire assays of No. 1 run very high, but pannings only show fine gold. The extraction with stamps and Chili mill, is about 45 to 50 per cent. R.

A.: Sample No. 1 is greatly altered base-metal ore, and it is cellular quartz. Antimony, arsenic, and iron oxides present with more or less lime silicate and traces of magnesia. The leaching you refer to is probably from pseudomorph after sulphides present, and action of the elements including water. Your low assays probably occur from slimes. Sample No. 2 is Stibnite (antimony sulphide.)

Free Gold Absent

Quartzitic Rock

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Q.: Please give analysis and present value both in rock state and the ground, and, who is in the market for such mineral? F.

A.: Iron oxides appear on one side of the sample. Prices for grade represented by the specimen are surely problematical. We know of no market for such rock.

Actinolite

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of rock from a large deposit near Los Angeles. It is believed to be Blende (zinc sulphide.) Will you kindly test the sample, and, is it of any commercial value? J.A.D.

A.: There is no zinc present in the specimen. It is a variety of acicular and radiated green actilite (hornblende,) and it has low values for mineral specimen, in small lots.

Impure Silica

GLENDALE, Dec. 20.—Q.: Qualitative analysis on enclosed rock, please. Is it of any value? I.

A.: The sample contains silica, aluminum silicate, low percentage lime carbonate, and traces of magnesia.

Feldspathic Rock

RECORD SET IN EXPORT OF OIL

Almost 50 Per Cent Sent to Pacific Ports

Proportion Reported Largest in Recent Months

Total of Twenty-four Tankers Leave in Week

Almost 50 per cent of the exports of petroleum from Los Angeles last week were destined to Pacific Coast ports, according to an analysis of the tanker shipments for the week. The total sent to Pacific domestic destinations was 755,611 barrels, of an aggregate total of all shipments for the week of 1,648,822 barrels.

This record shows the largest proportion of tanker shipments to Pacific Coast points in recent months, although for some time shippers of petroleum have been increasing the proportion of their exports from the local harbor to other ports on this Coast.

Shipments to Atlantic ports during the week totaled 846,049 barrels, while foreign shipments were only 253,162 barrels. The latter shipments were all to foreign ports in the Pacific including Pisagua, Antofogasta, Yokohama and Ioco, B. C.

Twenty-four tankers left Los Angeles Harbor during the week. Of these fourteen carried crude oil, five carried fuel oil, three carried gasoline and two carried mixed cargoes of crude, fuel, gasoline, diesel, distillate and kerosene.

Strike Made While Sinking Well for Water West of Brownfield

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BROWNFIELD (Tex.) Jan. 4.—Calculations of geologists have again been upset, and the old adage, "oil is where you find it," has scored again. This time the scene of the prospective new oil field is in the elevated South Plains region of Northwestern Texas, twenty miles west of Brownfield.

It is by no means certain that oil in paying quantities will be developed, but the fact that crude oil was struck in a hole which was being drilled for water and that it quickly filled the hole for a distance of seventeen feet, is sufficient to cause much excitement among land owners and oil field operators. The oil was found at a depth of 330 feet.

Sam C. Arnett of Lubbock, and others, are preparing to drill test wells in the vicinity of the discovery well. The surface altitude of the country where the oil was found is about 3200 feet. The locality is more than 700 miles from the nearest producing oil field and is within about forty miles of the New Mexico line. There are several counties in this part of Texas in which no test well has ever been drilled.

RAMSDELL SEEKS BIDS ON FLOTATION PLANT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 4. — The Ramsdell Mines Company operating the Sunshine group in the Sierritas, has asked for bids for a $40,000 flotation plant. Announcement is made of intention to install modern compressor equipment and to enter upon an era of large ore production. Already the Ramsdell interests have made shipments to El Paso of high-grade silver-lead smelting ore.

OIL LEASE ASSIGNED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4. — An assignment of an oil lease from Charles A. Son to the Transport Oil Company has been placed on file at the County Recorder's office which described forty acres of land northwest of Pentland Junction.

The assignment, which is on a United StatesUnited States government oil lease, declares a one-half, undivided interest subject to a royalty of 1 1-4 per cent to David S. Bachman and 25 1-4 per cent to the Snowlene Oil Company and specifies terms of $5000.

The exact location of the property is the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of Section 33, 12-33.

MARKETS OPEN YEAR BUOYANT

Revival in Agriculture is Stressed in Outlook

Even the Conservatives Are Strongly Optimistic

Firmness is Being Forecast in Commodity Prices

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4. — With year-end opinions from business men and bankers decidedly optimistic, the markets began the new year with a fresh demonstration of buoyancy.

The profit-taking that many had expected to appear failed to materialize, while new buying made itself felt in no uncertain fashion.

Throughout the annual forecasts ran an insistence that the underlying economic situation was the most favorable in years. The revival in domestic agriculture was stressed as putting a distinctly new appearance on the domestic outlook, while the Dawes plan was declared to have marked the declaration of economic peace in Europe. The conclusion drawn from these circumstances was that business revivals would develop on both sides of the Atlantic and that these revivals would, in the natural course of events, support each other.

CONSERVATIVE OPTIMISTIC

Conservative commentators who always list the unfavorable as well as the favorable factors plainly threw the weight of their opinion on the side of optimism. A few, however, were inclined to interpret the burst of optimism as something in the nature of a reaction from the discouragements bred of the five years of economic warfare that succeeded the political peace declared at Versailles and to make allowances for a certain exaggeration of hopes. But even these were free to admit that 1924 was a year of great progress and that all factors augured well for 1925 business.

Coming down to the more detailed aspects of business, most of the authorities predicted moderately higher money rates in the year ahead.

Firmness in commodity prices during the coming six months was generally forecast. Beyond that period, few of the experts cared to go. Some wished to wait to see what effect a revival in European production would have on competition in world markets.

BANKERS' VIEW BULLISH

Most bankers took a bullish view regarding the prospects of sterling exchange. Assuming a continuation of co-operation in Europe they believed that the pound readily would be returned to par. At the same time there was recognition of the fact that the British were likely to be conservative in the matter, wishing to be sure that the movement rested on a firm economic foundation. That the restoration of the gold basis for sterling would mark a great step forward in the improvement of world trade, was generally admitted.

Similarly, it was felt that a settlement of the question of the Allied war debts would do much to bring a return of stability and world prosperity. In this connection, many bankers believed that settlements should and would be arrived at, based, like the Dawes plan, on the debtors' capacity to pay.

HOPE RAISED AT DEEP TEST

New Effort to be Made for Production on Discovery of Increased Pressure at Torrance

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORRANCE, Jan. 4.—Marked increase in the gas pressure at the Lora J. No. 1, the Jameson Oil Company's deep test well on East Palm street in Lomita has revived prospects for the discovery of a second sand in this field and offset the discouragement caused by the Shell Company's decision to abandon the bottom of the hole at Kettler No. 2, which was drilled to 5400 feet in quest of a second productive zone.

After four comet jobs failed to shut out the water in the Lora J. Jameson concluded that the water was coming in from the bottom at 4750 feet. Last week the crew went in with cable tools to plug back the hole to 4700 feet, in an attempt to overcome the water trouble.

Saturday morning, when the pole had been plugged back fifteen feet, a sudden increase in gas pressure was noted. Observers were inclined to believe that the plug at the bottom will eliminate the water and give the company a fair opportunity to make a production test. This belief is strengthened by the increase in gas pressure.

SEEN AS CERTAIN

That oil exists below 4870 feet, the point at which the water string was landed, is regarded as a certainty. Every time the well was swabbed after a new cement job it made considerable oil, but the gas pressure on those occasions was so low that many operators doubted the possibility of a flowing well. The increase in pressure, noted yesterday, indicates, according to observers, that during previous tests the gas was passing out where the water was coming in—at the bottom of the hole.

While these developments at the Lora J. were the talk of the field, Jameson was running the first string of drill pipe into the Rogers No. 1 on Pennsylvania avenue, near Acacia street, in Lomita, where another deep test will be made. The Rogers is one of five wells recently bought by Jameson from Bush & Voorhis. It was drilled originally to 3800 feet. Last week the Jameson crew shut off 200 feet at the bottom of the hole and started drilling yesterday morning at 3800 feet.

HOLE ABANDONED

After landing a fish at 5300 feet the Shell Company on Saturday morning definitely decided to abandon the bottom of the Kettler No. 2 and plug back the hole to 3800 feet for production from the shallow formation.

This decision ends a seven months' quest by the Shell for a second sand. The Kettler was drilled to 3800 feet, where small production was obtained. It was deepened to 4900 feet and bridged back to 4500 feet. At that stage several cement jobs were necessary before the water was shut out. After a successful cement job the hole was drilled to 5300 feet, although progress was halted four times by difficult fishing jobs.

Another abandonment of interest was announced here yesterday by the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company. Its Francis No. 1 on Western avenue, north of Torrance, will be abandoned at 6400 feet. The company had intended to drill to 7000 feet in this wildcat, but two weeks ago 3000 feet of drill pipe broke off and dropped to the bottom of the hole. After recovering portions of the long string the company decided to abandon.

The Francis is not located in the proven area of the Torrance field, but was distinctly a wildcat hole. Erroneous reports have alluded to it as a deep test in the Torrance field. The well is actually more than a mile from any producer.

Whether the C.C.M.O. company intends to make other experience on its big Francis lease north of the Torrance field has not been announced. The Francis is on the eastern edge of the property, which extends back about three-quarters of a mile to the west.

Two new wells were completed here last week, both by the Standard Oil Company. Sentinel-Joughin No. 19 on the southern edge of the Joughin ranch near the General Petroleum Corporation's Poggi property is making 375 barrels a day. It was drilled to 3820 feet. The other new Standard producer is Domingues No. 14, in the northeastern extension, pumping 100 barrels a day from 3765 feet.

The Joughin completion marks

Shell Company Ignores Jinx in Starting Year

Leading all other companies in the State, so far as daily petroleum production is concerned, the Shell Company of California evidently takes no stock in jinxes. It started the new year off with the first new well in the State for the year by completing its Reyes No. 13 which is yielding 1360 barrels a day. In addition to the two obvious thirteens in this combinations the first three figures in the depth of the well, which is 4182 feet, make thirteen.

Owing to the fact that drilling operations were slowed down a great deal by the holidays, only four new wells were completed in the Los Angeles basin last week. They were as follows:

TORRANCE

HUNTINGTON BEACH

DOMINGUES

Old Producer is Recompleted by Midway Concern

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 4.—Field activity here last week was confined to the recompletion of an old producer by the Petroleum Midway Company. It redrilled its Brown No. 2, which was originally completed at 3648 feet, and got a flow amounting to 355 barrels a day.

This well was placed on production some months ago, but it developed sand trouble and the casing went bad, so the crew redrilled it and got satisfactory results on the second job. The well is located on the south side of Quincy street, offsetting the Standard Oil Company's Thompson No. 1 and the Union's Newland No. 2.

The Standard has just completed a new rig for its Bolsa No. 30, on the Bolsa Chica Gun Club grounds. This hole will be several hundred feet from present production in the field.

TEST GAS SUBSTITUTE

French Say Product is More Powerful, Cheaper

Exhaustive tests by the French artillery laboratories at Vincennes are said to have justified the claims made for a new motor fuel extracted from debensolized coal tar by a process invented by M. Makhonine, a Russian engineer.

When used in heavy trucks and tractors, according to Le Matin, the fuel developed much greater power than gasoline and gave slightly higher mileage to the gallon. Its cost is said to be only one-tenth that of gasoline. Further experiments are to be made with forty trucks, which will cover between 2000 and 3000 miles each.

Carload Goes From Riga Property To Philadelphia

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Renewal of interest in Arizona asbestos is noted. A carload of asbestos has been shipped to Philadelphia from the Riga property.

About thirty tons of material a month is being shipped from the San Carlos claims in the White Mountains, forty-five miles from Springerville, to the Asbestos Limited Company of New York.

Two grades are being supplied, the higher bringing $435 a ton. It must be brought down on mules for six miles to a wagon road, making production rather expensive.

STANDARD SUSPENDS ITS PERSUS DRILLING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—An agreement naming the Persus Oil Company as the lessor and the Standard Oil Company as lessee has been filed at the office of the County Recorder whereby the Standard Oil Company is permitted to suspend drilling operations on the Persus company lease for a period of six months. Drilling must be resumed within the stated time or the lease will be surrendered by the lessee, the agreement stipulates.

DRILLING CODE UPHELD

Texas Company is Forbidden to Operate Near Lease Line

AUSTIN (Tex.) Jan. 4.—Authority of the Oil and Gas Division, State Railroad Commission, to enforce Rule 37, regulating distance between oil wells, was sustained by the Guadalupe county District Court in a suit brought by the Oil and Gas Bureau, represented by the Attorney-General's department, against a Seguin company, the Quick Development Syndicate, Inc. A perpetual injunction restraining the company from drilling a well within less than 150 feet of the property line of another, without an exception to Rule 37 was granted, together with a penalty judgment.

H. E. Bell, chief supervisor of the Oil and Gas Bureau, announced the ruling will assist his department in preventing "congested town lot drilling," in the new oil town of Wortham, where many small leaseholders are seeking to drill wells in the town.

Six million square feet of window glass made in Belgium is to be shipped to the Pacific Coast of this country.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—Supplementing about 1560 acres in oil leases in the dry bed of Buena Vista Lake, southeast of the Elk Hills oilfields, R. H. Anderson has filed for record two additional oil leases from the Buena Vista Lake Reservoir Associates.

Each lease is for a quarter-section of land, the first for the northeast quarter of Sec. 26 and the second for southwest quarter of Sec. 25, 9-24.

Terms call for drilling to commence within 180 days from date of lease, April 18, 1924, monthly extensions of $250 a month for twenty-four months, on each lease. The oil royalty is fixed at one-sixth. Drilling requirements call for one well to each ten acres.

An interesting feature of the agreement is the statement of interest of the Buena Vista Lake Reservoir Associates as follows: Miller & Lux, 53.9483 per cent; Carmel Cattle Company, 10.1345; Kern County Land Company, 4.5627; W. T. Wells, .663, and R. F. Barnett, .663 per cent.

KERN TRACT LEASED

G. W. Getty Obtains His Second River Oilfields Holding

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—George W. Getty has added another holding to the list of leases that he has acquired here in recent weeks. He has leased from Francis and Maude McDougall, the northwest quarter of northeast quarter of Section 26, 28-27, thereby acquiring his second holding in the west front extension of the Kern River oilfields. Under the terms of the agreement one-eighth oil royalty and four wells 4000 feet in depth are features. Drilling is to commence in three years.

After a test of the upper oil sands at 3470 feet in Cauley No. 2, on Section 16, 28-27, Marland Oil Company officials have decided to go deeper in expectancy of a satisfactory products from the second or third sand. It is said that No. 1 is a consistent producer. No. 2 is 1100 feet northwest of No. 1, and it is reported that the indications are better than shown in the first test.

World-wide Financial Reports

BOND MARKET REMAINS FIRM

New Year Opens With Prices Maintaining Steadiness

Observers Concede Benefit in General Conditions

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The bond market entered upon the new year with prices maintaining the firm tone which characterized trading throughout 1924. Underlying evidences of strength were supplied by the contraction in the volume of business as money rates tightened at the close of the year and the quick recovery of prices and expansion of trading which followed the improvement in the money situation.

Despite an early period of reaction and the holiday interruption, the market made definite progress during the week and closing levels were substantially higher than at the end of the preceding period. A slight strain was imposed by liquidation to meet year-end requirements, but the selling was readily absorbed without unsettling the market.

With the trend of the bond market governed largely by the swing of money rates, many market observers in their 1925 forecasts predicted that prices this year would rule slightly below the high levels attained in 1924. The demand for time funds, it was held, would expand gradually with an increase in trade and this development would be reflected in higher money rates. It was conceded, however, that the bond market would share in the general financial and business improvement which was forecast for the new year. The response of the market to the usual January reinvestment demand is expected to give an indication of its strength.

French bonds at one time reacted sharply in reflection of the threatened storm over the debt funding situation but rallied quickly when France was reported to have submitted proposals for a settlement. The debt uncertainty, coupled with the expiration of the recent loan syndicate, caused the new French 7s to fall several points below their offerings price.

Price movements in other sections of the list were not significant. Semispeculative rail issues continued in demand with fresh buying attracted by favorable developments, including heavy advance subscriptions to the New Haven's refunding bond issue.

With the week broken by a holiday, new financing contracted in volume to $25,076,000. The total for the holiday fortnight, however, amounted to $81,000,000, as compared with about $61,000,000 for the corresponding period a year ago. The most important offering of the week was the $10,000,000 note issue for the Krupp Works of Germany, which was promptly subscribed. Several additional foreign loans are scheduled for offering next week together with a $30,000,000 issue of Federal Land Bank 4½s.

The expected failure of Mexico to make any payment on its debt at the close of the year put the government in default on the full 1924 interest of $17,500,000. Although payments were first defaulted last July, the international committee of bankers on Mexico has not yet declared a formal suspension of the agreement.

Total bond and note maturities in 1925 aggregate $1,063,114,320, of which $370,408,760 are railroad issues.

BOND ISSUES OF UTILITIES SET RECORD

Millions in Stocks Are Authorized by Railroad Commission in 1924

During the twelve months ending December 31, 1924, the Railroad Commission authorized public utilities to issue $287,857,847.95 of stock, bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness, the largest amount ever authorized by the commission in any one year since March 23, 1912, the effective date of the Public Utilities Act. The year during which the commission authorized the next largest amount of securities was 1914, when applications involving the issue of notes and certificates were passed upon favorably. The total for 1914 included the issue of $55,000,000 of bonds by Southern Pacific Company.

In addition to granting applications to issue $237,875,847.95 of securities during 1924, the commission denied applications to issue $100,000 of securities and dismissed without prejudice applications to issue $1,178,357.79, making a total of $239,154,205.74 acted upon during the year.

In 1923 the commission authorized the issue of $196,302,985.79 of securities, denied requests to issue $206,150 and dismissed without prejudice $5,653,556.99. The applications to issue securities passed upon during 1923 aggregated $202,662,642.78, as compared with $239,154,205.74 for the year just ended.

Since March 23, 1913, and up to and including December 31, 1924, the commission has authorized the issue of $1,841,150,435.91 of securities.

First Wildcat of New Year in Kern is Started

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—Spudding in the Mills-Kern No. 1 on Section 10, 27-28, in the Piper district ten miles north of the old Kern River oil fields on the Woody Road, marked the first wildcat well of the new year to be started in Kern county.

The operators are from Los Angeles and Long Beach and, it is asserted, they have undertaken a test in this territory after thorough investigation of the possibilities of commercial oil development.

Another venture in the same area is scheduled by the Modoc Petroleum Corporation, which is reported to have obtained leases on Section 15, 27-28.

T. A. Piper, pioneer in the district, drilled a number of test holes in the area last year, with some oil showings, but no commercial results.

ADMONITION OF GREELEY IS REVISED

Mining Man on Business Trip Here Calls Mexico Land of Opportunity

Horace Greeley's famous admonition to young men is in need of some revision, in the opinion of Martin J. Conroy, mine operator and engineer of Mexico, who is in the city to buy $1,500,000 worth of machinery and supplies for his great silver mine holdings in the State of Sinaloa.

The admonition should be rewritten to direct young men to Mexico. Mr. Conroy is convinced because Mexico in the next few years will experience the greatest development in her history.

Mr. Conroy is the general manager of a group of silver mines at Copolitos and Lobitos, in the State of Sinaloa, which are to go on production in a short time. He has spent the last twenty-eight years in the southern republic and predicts a remarkable era of prosperity for that country.

"Mexico," says Mr. Conroy, "has settled down to work. The late revolution was in a sense a necessary evil. It served to settle many internal questions as well as the disruptive jealousies of some of the politicians. It also brought convincing proof of the government's ability to deal with internal disorders."

RICH ORE FOUND

Claude and E. T. Eckel Back from Deposit in Mohave

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JEROME (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Claude and E. T. Eckel of Jerome have returned from Eastern Mohave county near the Aquarius Mountains, with samples of remarkable ore from a find they made.

The material is quartz so filled with garnet as to have a reddish hue, speckled thickly with coarse gold and showing silver bromide.

Assays give up to $1100 gold and 400 ounces silver. The brothers have located ten claims and propose to get their development stake by packing ore to the railroad.

SIGNAL HILL HAS BEST YEAR

Field's 1924 Output Greatest, with New Production Virtually Stopped; Daily Yield Drops

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 4.—Although new production in the Signal Hill field has virtually ceased, the field yielded its greatest annual output of petroleum in 1924, according to unofficial figures. These figures show a total production of about 70,000,000 barrels, or nearly 2,000,000 barrels more than the 1923 output. Total production for the field since its discovery is about 162,000,000 barrels.

From a daily output of about 240,000 barrels at the beginning of 1924, the output declined steadily until, at the close of the year, the average daily yield was 124,000 barrels. A few wells are being drilled in proven territory, but the field is definitely outlined with but faint chance for extension from sands now revealed, geologists declare.

Oil royalties collected by the city of Long Beach from the Signal Hill field during 1924 broke all previous records, it was revealed here today. A tabulation of the receipts shows that oil companies operating leases on city-owned lands in the field paid to Long Beach a total of $1,526,112.80 during the twelve months' period. According to officials this record should be duplicated in the present year. Total income to the city from oil in 1923 was $663,618.42.

Back of this Enterprise are Men High in the Affairs of a Great City!

Baron Rothschilds, financial giant and man of vision, when approached for credit extension by a worthy but temporarily embarrassed contemporary, replied "I will do better than make you a loan. I will allow you to be seen walking down the street with me."

He knew the value of association, the faith placed in his great name. Investors then, as now, wisely appraised the value of an enterprise by the names of the men who backed it.

So when the individual directors and the members of the Board of Governors of Credit Finance Corporation were invited to become active in the affairs of this enterprise, their first query naturally enough was "What company do I keep?"

The names of their associates-to-be more than satisfied them. For they are the names of men high in the affairs of a great city.

These men are proud of the company they keep. They are proud of their associates. They are proud of the enterprise to which they have entrusted not only a substantial sum of money but, more precious than this, their own good names.

They are not content to sit passively by and merely allow the use of these influential names, as has so often been done in the past. These men want to go to the front and tell their fellow townsmen why they believe in Credit Finance Corporation—why they are associated with the enterprise.

In one of the most startling departures from the usual form of financial advertising ever inaugurated, a series of messages will be launched in the financial page of the Los Angeles Times. Each of these announcements will be a personal message from one of the directors or governors of Credit Finance Corporation. Each message will be signed by the writer.

He will tell why he became active in the affairs of this enterprise, why he believes a profitable future will crown its activities, why he was willing to entrust his good name into the keeping of the men who, with him, shape the destiny of this company.

Watch for this series of messages. They are the sincere expression of men whose judgment and integrity are unquestioned in a community in which they have become successful and in which they will continue to have their social and commercial being.

We believe that the frank, outspoken expression of these men heralds a new era in acquainting the public with the purposes and possibilities of financial enterprises. The initial message will appear next Thursday morning.

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—Oil fields of the San Joaquin Valley produced approximately 7,617,989 barrels more petroleum in 1924 than in 1923, according to a preliminary survey of production figures just completed. The estimated production of the Kern county fields and the Coalinga field for 1924 was 71,346,584 barrels against 63,728,595 for the year previous.

According to the last report of the American Petroleum Institute there were 6978 producing wells in San Joaquin fields last year and this number is gradually growing as the proved oil acreage is fast assuming the proportions of a veritable empire from which petroleum may be obtained.

There are practically 75,000 acres of proved oil land in Kern county, much of this having been added during the past year as a result of the activities of the Shell Company, the Marland, the Standard, and other large concerns taking heretofore untried territory and drilling it up to the production point.

Production of oil in the San Joaquin Valley for 1924 by months was as follows:

January, 6,759,597 barrels; February, 4,659,488; March, 6,044,798; April, 6,067,197; May, 6,365,258; June, 6,272,733; July, 6,408,453; August, 6,409,340; September, 5,957,327; October, 6,288,742; November, 6,056,430; December, 6,056,325.

Production of natural gas in Kern county practically trebles that of any other county in the State; according to the last available figures the year 1924, totaled 50,000,000 cubic feet. Much of the gas produced is sent in pipe lines to Southern California but because of a surplus and a lack of pipe-line facilities, much of the gas is allowed to go free into the air. The San Joaquin Light & Power Company steam plant at Buttonwillow uses a large amount of gas from which to operate its huge electrical generators.

Forest of Derricks Tells Eloquent Story of Year's Activity in Oil Production

Howard Copper Strike Growing Richer at Depth

Word has been received from Arizona that the ore body which the Howard Copper Company has been drifting in, on the 500-foot level, for two weeks is continuing, and has increased in value to 5.5 per cent copper, $7.44 in gold, and some silver to the ton.

It is anticipated that even richer ore will be uncovered as work progresses in the development of the ore, which is increasing in size with the continuance of the drift.

This 500-foot level, it is stated, is about 650 feet below the outcrop where high grade ore was discovered some time ago. Company stockholders are elated over the report, and officials regard the future outlook of the property as being most promising.

The holdings of the Howard Copper Company are located in Black Canyon, near Turkey, Yavapai county, about thirty miles south of Jerome. Ralph Roseberry, M. E., has charge of mine operations. Main office, Los Angeles.

GRANITE HALTS WORK ON COMANCHE NO. 3

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—Drilling operations on the General Petroleum Corporation well, Comanche No. 3, have been halted by the striking of granite between the 3200 and 3400-foot level, according to reports received here. This well is at a point south of the Comanche No. 1, between Comanche Point and the Tejon Canyon district.

Overton to Pick Site for Milling Plant at Vidal

J. H. Overton of Los Angeles, president of the Overton Mining and Milling Company, has gone to the company's property in Riverside county. During his absence he will decide upon the site for the custom milling plant to be constructed at Vidal, a few miles from the mine.

Machinery for the plant, it is stated, will soon be on the ground, as well as the lumber to be used in the building of a store and general hotel, the latter for the accommodation of the mill employees of the company.

A further analysis and determination of the values contained in the uranium and vanadium product, it is stated, show that the 1 1-2 per cent of the oxide present in the uranium ore has a value of $364 to the ton in metal radium, bringing the ore values up to about $700 a ton. Company officials and stockholders are greatly encouraged over the discovery of rare metals in the ores of the mine.

NATIONAL BANK OF PHOENIX WILL BUILD

PHOENIX, Jan. 4.—The Phoenix National Bank is to build its own home, according to Vice-President R. M. Phillco, the site to be opposite the Federal Building, on North First avenue, between Monroe and Van Buren streets. There has been purchased from the Babbitt Brothers Trading Company a plot of 300 by 150 feet, the west half of what locally is known as the Central Block on which plans were made, several years ago, for erection of a modern hotel of large size. The eastern half, fronting Central avenue, is in the hands of a syndicate of business men, with inclusion of Valley Bank interests.

It is reported that the price paid for the western half was $210,000, this for the bare land. In it the bank will erect modern office buildings.

His Hint to Hunters

A brace of quail, without card or label, arrived at the house. As the recipient did not know whom to thank for the gift, he wrote to all his friends who were hunters, asking each if he was the thoughtful donor.

In each case the reply came: "No, but I will not forget you."

Very soon his larder was full.—[Exchange.

Good Progress is Made in Cut on Gold Ledge

W. H. Wise of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer of the Gold Dust Mining Company, with holdings at Oatman, Ariz, states that occasional fifty-ton shipments of $30 gold are being made to the Tom Reed mill; this ore being taken out in the performance of development work.

Recent reports from the mine, sent in by Mine Superintendent Charles Watters, are to the effect that good progress is being made in the driving of the cross-cut on the 300-foot level, being sent out to intersect and develop the new-found ledge at greater depth.

Considerable interest is being shown in the Oatman district over results obtaining from the carrying on of this work; and, if the cross-cut on the 300-foot level opens up ore-bodies as large and rich as those exposed on the 200-foot level, the value and permanency of the mineralization in that portion of the district, it is believed, will be quite thoroughly established.

The Gold Dust Company is also drifting on the easterly end of its property with the expectation of opening up large bodies of good ore at the juncture of three veins.

Old-Timers May See Black Range Faith Justified

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OATMAN (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Justification appears to have come to the old-timers' faith in the Black Range section of the camp, at the extreme end from the first discovery at Gold Road. Tom Reed is about midway on the dyke formation under which the gold is found in green quartz.

Black Range has an especially attractive formation with a great untilted dyke, but most of its early exploration undoubtedly was away from the values. A year or so ago United Eastern took a flyer on the property, with intent to reach the mineralized area by extension of workings on the 500 level of the adjoining Nellie property, but money failed when several hundred feet of drifting remained to be done.

Now, on the 180 level of the Black Range, ninety feet south of the shaft, report is made of the cutting of eighteen feet of good milling ore.

NEW LEASE IS FILED

Marland Company Obtains Claim on San Emidio Tract

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 4.—A new oil lease of approximately eighty acres in the San Emidio district has been filed at the office of County Recorder Charles Shomate. The lease was obtained by the Marland Oil Company, with offices in San Francisco, from John B. Merritt, attorney in fact for J. B. Merritt and Frances Merritt, his wife; William C. Merrit and Maybelle Merritt, and J. C. Merritt and Alice R. Merritt. Specifying the beginning of drilling operations within a period of five years the lease, which is for a term of twenty years, mentions one-eighth royalties.

The description appearing on the lease locates the holdings as: west half of the southwest quarter of Section 34, 32-26

OIL RESERVE EXTENDED

Colorado Area Segregated and Utah Acreage Increased

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — An area of 23,000 acres in Colorado was segregated as naval oil shale Reserve No. 3, and nearly 5000 acres in Utah was added to naval oil shale Reserve No. 2, by the Interior Department through the Geological Survey during November, 1924. During November the Geological Survey reported upon the structural relations of lands embraced in 453 applications for prospecting permits under the oil sections of the Leasing Act of February 25, 1920, thus bringing the number of such reports rendered since the passage of the act to 27,401. Over 400 such applications were pending in the survey, November 30, 1924.

ROSECRANS IN LIMELIGHT

Phenomenal Development of Field Marked by Lack of Oil Stock Promotion Schemes

For four years the Los Angeles Basin has not been without its spectacular oil-field development. First it was Huntington Beach, then Signal Hill, then Santa Fe Springs, and now it is Rosecrans.

It was the Rosecrans field that took the pro out of promotion. The word motion is peculiarly significant in connection with the development of this field—it has been on the move ever since the first gush of crude oil was splayed to the top of the derrick of the Union Oil Company's Rosecrans No. 1, less than a year ago.

FIFTEEN PRODUCERS

There were five companies and ten derricks in the field before anyone put a well on production there, and the break-neck development has progressed at an almost unprecedented gait since then until now there are fifteen wells on production there, with more than seventy drilling, rigging up or standing idle.

Standing at the outskirts of the city, on the way to the harbor, the forest of derricks at Rosecrans and Athens-on-the-Hill is a fitting monument to the enterprise of California operators in 1924. It tells the story of the quest for oil rather than the quest for suckers. It is doubtful if more than $250,000 worth of promotion paper has been sold in connection with the development of the entire field. In striking contrast to this condition of affairs is the fact that before Santa Fe Springs or Signal Hill had seventy-five derricks piercing the skyline upward of $10,000,000 worth of units and stock in the wells had been sold.

Present production at Rosecrans is 8000 barrels daily. This is obtained from the wells of six companies—the Union, Barnsdall, Associated, Superior, E. J Miley and Marland Oil Company.

The producing wells are: Union Oil Company's Howard Park Nos. 1 and 2, Rosecrans No. 1, Chandler No. 1, and Gray No. 1; Barnsdall company's Rosecrans Nos. 1 and 2, O'Dea No. 1; Associated Oil Company's Higgins No. 1 and Wanka No. 1; E. J. Miley's Athens No. 2; Miley and Marland's No. 1 and No. 2; Superior's Maxwell No. 1 and No. 2.

Of the seventy rigs in the field, nineteen are operated by Union drilling crews. These include seven Howard Park wells; four Rosecrans, two Trust, and one each on the Gordon, Jamison, Padelford, Zins, Horowitz and Hursey leases The Associated has six rigs, the General Petroleum, Miley and Petroleum Midway, five each, and the Barnsdall and Miley and Marland interests have four each.

DRILL IN SAND

Twenty-eight companies are operating in the new field. They are Union Oil Company, Barnsdall Oil Company, Associated Oil Company, Bankline Oil Company, J. B. Dabney, Federal Drilling Company, W H Fisher, General Petroleum Corporation; George F Getty, Hercules Gasoline Company, C. C. Julian, Mohawk Oil Company, Pan-American Petroleum Company, St. Helen's Petroleum Company, Sentinel Oil Company, San Joaquin Oil Company, Shell company, Standard Oil Company, Star Petroleum Company, Superior Oil Company, Tidal Oil Company, U. S. Royalties Company, United States Oil Company, Miley and Marland, Pacific Petroleum Company, Petroleum Midway Company, Hub Oil Company and Marine Oil Company.

Of the rigs in the field, twenty-three are drilling in the oil sand out of a total of fifty-six drilling. Eight rigs are idle, and six are rigging up.

Credit for discovery of oil in the Rosecrans area goes to the Union's Rosecrans No. 1 well in the southeast section of the field This wildcat, drilled in a location made historic by the old Rosecrans rancho and two previous failures to master mechanical and water difficulties, spouted high-gravity oil in February. While the fact established the presence of oil in the new district, the honor of being the first producing well went to the Union's Howard Park No 1, which was brought in three months later, while the Rosecrans No. 1 was still having water trouble

Entering the grocery store of William Sembech at 729 North Mott street late Saturday night on the pretext of buying cigarettes, two armed bandits held up the proprietor and robbed him of $70, according to a report to the Boyle Heights police. The robbers, who appeared to be Mexicans, escaped on foot.

Ore in Tailings Dump Expected to be Recovered

MIAMI (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—According to George Booth of the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, the corporation's tailings dumps contain $30,000,000 worth of copper, expected some time to be recovered in the march of inventive mineralogy.

These tailings, which now cover hundreds of acres near the town have been heaped up in operation of the company's 30,000-ton concentrator, the largest in the Southwest.

Some of the waste copper is in oxide ores that could not be handled cleanly in the mill, but which will be susceptible of much closer extraction in the new $6,000,000 leaching plant the company now is constructing.

ELK HILLS TAX SUIT IS AUTHORIZED

Pan-American Receivers to Sue Kern County for Assessment Refund

Court action to recover taxes assessed by Kern county against the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 is authorized in instruction issued by Federal Judge McCormick to H. H. Rousseau and J. Crampton Anderson, receivers. The authorization was made on petition of the receivers who reported Kern county had taxed the property while it was in the hands of the receivers, and that the taxes were paid under protest that the reserve was not subject to taxation because it belongs to the public domain of the United States.

The Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve has been operated by receivers since action was instituted by the government last summer to have the court cancel leases whereby the property was operated by the Pan-American Petroleum Corporation. The case was tried recently but the judgment of the court has not been announced.

Work to Start Soon on Unit of Catorce Plant

The Mexican Catorce Silver Mines Company of Catorce, San Luis Potosi, Mex., will soon begin the construction of the first 100-ton unit of its proposed 500-ton milling plant. The Catorce is a subsidiary of the Dolores Mining Company, adjoining, which is now extending its underground workings into Catorce territory, in which many thousands of tons of ore have been disclosed, it is asserted, which carry silver value running from $10 to $70 per ton at present quotations.

The Dolores has its thirty-ton cyanide mill in constant operation. M. D. Stackpole, who is well acquainted in Los Angeles engineering and mining circles, is president and general manager of the Catorce Company. Cadral, a few miles from Catorce, is the mailing point.

E. E. Thomas, a director of the Catorce company, is in Los Angeles, and will establish headquarters here

OIL OUTPUT GAIN IS SEEN

Dominguez Field Said to Have Prospect of Being Largest Producer in State Within Year

The petroleum industry of this State enters upon the new year with prospects radically different from those which witnessed the ushering in of 1924. A year ago the industry was confronted with the certainty of a considerable drop in production, in spite of the fact that a new field of great promise was in the initial stages of development.

A decline in the output of the major fields of Santa Fé Springs and Signal Hill already had set in, and while Torrance was increasing steadily, the rate was not sufficient to justify the expectation that it would offset the decline in other districts.

Dominguez, although recognized as a field of ample potentialities, was considered as being in the hands of two large corporations which would develop it conservatively, without flooding the market.

INCREASE SEEN

The beginning of 1925 finds the industry with the prospect of a considerable increase in production. The decline of the old gusher fields has apparently about found its level. Dominguez is forging steadily to the front with the prospect of being the largest producing field in the State before the end of the year.

The Rosecrans field, although its history has been checkered with success and failure, presents the probability of production which may approximate the record of the Torrance field during the year past. In short, the new year comes with the curve of decline in the old fields reduced almost to a dead level, and the curve of increase in the new fields showing a decided rise.

SHALLOW FIELD

In addition to these factors is the possibility of more or less intensive development in the Baldwin Hills-Culver City district. Two wells have been brought in at widely distant locations in this field, whose shallow depth, and substantial initial production hold out the prospect of profitable development.

Part of this district is held in large tracts by large corporations, and may be expected to develop slowly and conservatively in line with the usual policy of these organizations. But the area adjacent to Culver City is held in comparatively small tracts by individuals and small companies, and may become the scene of intensive development.

Conditions in the northern part of the State increase the probability of greater production during the coming year. The old fields in the northern districts have long since reached a stage of steady production.

MAXIMUM ACTIVITY

Where, a year ago, new activity in these fields was at a minimum, it has now reached a maximum unknown for several years. At least two wildcat wells, one in the Kettleman Hills, and one in the Weed Patch hold forth unusual promise, and a score of others are regarded by oil men as distinct possibilities. The situation in general is one of probable increase of production, with small chance of any noteworthy decrease.

Operators throughout the State recognize these conditions, and are accordingly preparing for a period of expanded activity, even greater than a year ago. Large and small companies are making plans for a year of extensive development, which centers largely in the fields around Los Angeles, but extends to the old oil fields of the San Joaquin Valley.

PREPARE CAMPAIGN

The Union Oil Company, which has been one of the most aggressive as well as one of the most successful operators in the State, is preparing for a campaign of drilling which may outstrip its record of 1924. During the past year the Union branched out and began active operations in many other States, including Texas, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

It discovered one new field—the Rosecrans—and is by far the most active operator there. At present the Union is running thirty-eight strings of tools, of which twenty are drilling in the Rosecrans field.

In spite of this past record, the Union is practically forced to outdo itself this year. As the largest owner of leases in Rosecrans, its operations in that field must necessarily increase to protect itself and its leases against drainage. The company has drilling obligations which must be fulfilled, not to mention a number of wildcat wells, the success of any one of which may mean the drilling of many more.

FORCED TO ENLARGE

The Pan-American Petroleum Company is virtually forced to enlarge its operations. This company has expended in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 on refinery, service stations and pipe lines in Southern California during the past three years, and has comparatively little California production. To justify its enormous capital expenditure, Pan-American is certain to expand its productive operations in some manner.

With the approaching completion of its pipe line from the Kern fields to Los Angeles, Pan-American may be said to have finished a period of preparation, and to be ready to take its place among the leading producers of this State.

The Standard Oil Company, whose principal achievement during 1924 was the establishment of the productive possibilities of the Baldwin Hills, already has started a drilling campaign in that district, which is likely to be intensified by developments in the area northwest of its large holdings.

The Associated Oil Company, and its allied companies, are conducting new developments which are likely to lead to more intensive operations later in the year. This company is drilling in the Baldwin Hills and on its old Beverly Hills holdings, with the prospect of an increase in its program in both areas.

In Rosecrans the Associated is already one of the principal operators, and in Dominguez has made a sensational record the last two months, although its development in that field has almost reached its limit.

The General Petroleum Corporation, whose southern operations have been conspicuous for their lack of productive results, is beginning a period of new development in the Kern county and the Coalinga field, which promises to be more successful.

In the Kettleman Hills district General Petroleum has large acreage, which is generally considered by geologists to give good prospects for production. The present well is now at a critical stage, but even should this test be unproductive, the company is unlikely to abandon the district without at least one more well.

PLANS LAID

The Shell company, the success of which in petroleum production in the last few years has, perhaps, been unsurpassed by any other company in the State, has laid plans which are likely to continue its drilling activity, even after its program in the Dominguez field, the scene of its present chief endeavor, has come to a close.

This company has proved the presence of oil in Seal Beach, and is making a determined effort to develop a profitable field there. Oil men in general believe that Seal Beach will some day be an important producing district.

The Shell has several other wildcats drilling, including three near Los Angeles, and one in the Weed Patch district of Kern county. The Weed Patch is generally considered highly probable oil country and, whether the present well succeeds or not, the Shell is certain to drill some in other parts of its 2000 acres of holdings.

NEW ENTRANTS

Two new entrants into the California field whose records in the Mid-Continent fields warrant the assumption of activity here are the Marland Oil Company and the Barnsdall Oil Company.

Both corporations have comparatively small production at present in this State, but each has been preparing energetically for a program of development that is likely to equal that of any other single company in the State.

The Marland Oil Company in particular has acquired leases in every part of the producing and probable producing districts of the State, and is now engaged in wildcatting on a large scale.

The Barnsdall company operates along a different line, and is more interested in the acquisition of properties, already developed, and in the production stage. The smaller companies are no less actively preparing for an energetic year.

AGGRESSIVE COMPANY

Among these the Superior Oil Company is probably the most aggressive. Its record for the last year rivals, and even surpasses, that of some of its larger competitors. Since the beginning of 1924 the Superior has increased its production from 5800 barrels to 8000 barrels, with a high point of 12,000 barrels a day. It increased its number of drilling wells from fourteen to fifty-five, and its acreage of proven oil land from thirty-nine acres to 366, but many of its wildcat drilling ventures proved to be unprofitable undertakings.

With this record behind it, the Superior begins 1925 with the acquisition of concessions in Lower California totaling 13,800,000 acres, which it proposes to explore thoroughly, and to develop actively, if the facts warrant. The Superior plans to seek production in the Mid-Continent and Rocky Mountain fields.

FULL CAPACITY

In the California fields the Superior plans to develop its proved and semiproved holdings to full capacity. The company owns 1850 acres in the northern and southern fields, which are due to be tested.

Among the wells which are likely to be put down by this company in the immediate future is one in the Culver City district, where the Superior has acquired a sixty-eight-acre lease.

E. J. Miley is another independent operator whose plans for 1925 contemplate a drilling campaign of which many a larger corporation might be proud. Miley holds some of the best acreage in the Athens field, which he is now developing intensively. He is drilling wildcat wells in several districts, where he holds large acreage that must be developed in the event of success in any single test.

Other smaller companies whose operations in the aggregate will have a large influence on the industry are the United Oil Company, the Sentinel Oil Company, the Marine Corporation. All of these companies have records of substantial and successful production behind them, and are now pursuing an active operating policy.

JUSTICE IN LAW FIRM

PHOENIX, Jan. 4.—Frank C. Lyman, who retired with the old year, as a member of the Arizona Supreme Court, will become a member of the old-established local law firm of Kibbey, Bennett, Gust & Smith.

TEXAS WILD ON COTTON RAISING

Season's Profits Stir Frenzy of Production

Gins Established Hourly; New Lands Broken

Increased Acreage Guesses Run Into Figures

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Jan. 4. — New cotton ginning companies are being incorporated in Texas at an average rate of four a day, and it is expected that there will be a large increase of the number of new companies of this character during the next several weeks. The activity in organizing these companies is regarded as evidence that preparations are being made all over the State for increasing the cotton acreage next season.

This prospective increase of acreage is estimated by some men connected with the industry as high as 20 per cent. Never before in the history of the State has there been known such a movement for converting raw ranch lands into farms as is now in progress in the northwestern part of Texas.

The past season's ginning records of that region show that the cotton production was more than double that of last year. There are many more millions of acres of land in the South Plains and Panhandle that are susceptible of producing cotton, and these vast unbroken areas are now rapidly coming under the plow.

This same trend of agricultural development is found in the southern part of the State, extending all the way from San Antonio to the Rio Grande, 150 to 200 miles north and south, by 200 miles east and west.

Cotton has become a staple crop in the lower gulf coast region and large areas of chaparral are being cut and grubbed preparatory to placing the land in cultivation early next spring. In the older cotton-growing sections farmers are planning to increase their cotton acreage by reducing their small grain and forage acreage.

There is already a shortage of feedstuff in Texas and many farmers are paying high prices for grain for their live stock, using money obtained from the sale of cotton for the purpose.

FRANCE HIT BY FLOODS AFTER GALE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Another storm is brewing in the southwest and weather men fear it will come to replace the gale that ended by blowing itself out today, leaving a trail of disaster in every part of France except the favored Riviera. The worst consequences of the gale were the floods in Normandy. The River Vire has reached the highest mark recorded since 1852 and the city of Caen is entirely surrounded by floods.

In Southern Britanny the situation also is grave. The town of Pontivy is in a desperate plight, being almost entirely flooded out, while at Morlaix, the central part of the city is flooded to a depth of two feet, a sight which had not been seen for forty years.

The rivers in the northeast of France and Belgium are also very high and at many places are already over their banks. At Bruuy-En-Artois, the dyke burst and the river flooded the town in the middle of the night. The inhabitants were awakened by the tocsin and escaped as best they could, abandoning everything. Hundreds are now without shelter.

The Lorient wireless station has received a message that the steamer Dahomey had been taken in tow and is being brought to port. The Dahomey was crippled by the storm and yesterday was picked up by tugs from which, however, she broke loose. Last night the steamer was reported to be in dangerous shoals. She has seventy men aboard.

BELIEVE SIX PERISHED IN EXPLOSION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) Jan. 4.—Six persons were reported missing early this morning following an explosion that wrecked a two-story brick building at Wilkinsburg, a suburb, and was immediately followed by a fire which spread to two adjoining buildings.

Police report the explosion resulted from an accumulation of gas. The missing persons are Frank Dasta, a fruit merchant, his wife and their four children. Neighbors report that the Dasta family was not seen after the explosion, and police fear that the family was caught in the debris.

Dasta conducted a fruit business in a one-story frame building in the front of his home. This structure and buildings on both sides of the demolished house are ablaze. The heavy dense smoke is hampering the work of firemen in penetrating the burning buildings and fighting the flames.

The sound of the explosion was heard throughout the town and windows in numerous buildings across the street from the place where the explosion occurred were shattered.

DEAL FOR CARGO CARRIERS AFOOT

Report From Capital Gives Color to Story

Quarantine Rules Applied to American Craft

The purchase of several coastwise lumber and freight steamers by Swayne & Hoyt, Inc., Pacific Coast steamship operators, was yesterday indicated at Los Angeles Harbor when it became known that negotiations were underway for the taking over of the Cadaretta and Frank Lynch by the concern.

Both vessels are now under charter to the operators, maintaining regular schedules in the Pacific Coast-Gulf freight trade. The Cadaretta, built during the war for the Shipping Board and now owned by the Nelson Steamship Company, is expected to call here within several days to load for Gulf points. The Frank Lynch, a motorship owned by Frank Lynch of San Diego, is now loading for this port at Mobile.

Strengthening the report of the proposed purchase of the vessels by Swayne & Hoyt, are the recent advices from Washington that a syndicate of San Francisco steamship men is completing arrangements with Shipping Board officials for the buying of the fleet of government vessels now under charter to Swayne & Hoyt for their various world trades. It is understood here that within a few days the sale of the government-owned steamers will have been completed.

Of steel construction and each of approximately 1500 tons net, the Frank Lynch and Cadaretta are rated among the finest ships that have been assigned to the coastwise lumber trade. They recently were withdrawn from lumber activities to engage in the freight trade between Gulf ports and the Pacific Coast.

QUARANTINE RULES IN FORCE AT HARBOR

That Los Angeles Harbor, as well as San Francisco and New Orleans, is to be affected by the recent quarantine regulations issued at Washington, was indicated yesterday when the orders were made effective. All inbound vessels were boarded by members of the Public Health Service and submitted to thorough examination before proceeding to their berths.

Steamship men yesterday stated that the first occasion whereon American vessels from American ports were forced to undergo quarantine at Los Angeles Harbor.

The passenger liner Tahiti, inbound from San Francisco, was the first ship to meet with the experience. Following her arrival the vessel shielded her speed in the outer harbor and was delayed some time in reaching her berth at Wilmington.

The Mexican steamer Guerrero, with passengers and freight from Mexican points, will land a lot of fifteen aliens into port at Los Angeles Harbor today. Other arrivals will include four tank steamers, four freight carriers and a number of coastwise lumber steamers.

The list of arrivals yesterday, according to the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce Marine Bulletin, was the smallest recorded here for some months.

On her regular cruise along the coast, the lighthouse tender Madrona tied up at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday after some days at sea. The Madrona berthed alongside the lighthouse tender Pioneer, another craft assigned to Southern California waters as a means of increasing the aids to navigation.

Reports were received yesterday that the cutter Tamaroa is expected in the next few days from sea to prepare for a general overhauling in dock afterward.

Three Union Oil tankers from widely separated points of the seven fleet tied up yesterday at the harbor oil pumping stations. They are the Montebello from San Francisco, the La Brea from Rotterdam and the Santa Maria from Antofagasta.

Both the La Brea and Santa Maria recently were in the vicinity of the Mexican steamer Olivo Maru, which caught fire off the Mexican coast, and assisted in sending out calls for assistance for the burning craft.

The La Brea on the voyage just ended sent wireless messages which informed her agents of her arrival at Rotterdam, marking the first instance where a report of this distance has been received on the Pacific Coast from a steamship. The message was received by the new powerful wireless station which has been set up at San Francisco by the Union Oil Company. The message was relayed to the La Brea's owners here from the northern port.

With a substantial consignment of freight for local consignees the steamer Orianda, under charter to the Williams Line, is expected here late this week. The vessel is stopping at San Diego on the voyage.

Christine of the Hungry Heart

by Kathleen Norris

The story so far: After a few years of marriage Christine Knight, young beautiful and rich, realizes that she is desperately unhappy. However, because she does not believe in divorce, she decides to make the best of her life with her adored little daughter Betty Lou and her openly bored and neglected husband, Stuart. So she and Dr. Alan Monteagle, who have recently met, and found themselves in love with each other, decide not to see each other again. Then one day Stuart, dining with the woman whom openly calls his mistress, runs into his mother's car, and almost kills Christine. Alan Monteagle carries to her side and, by working night and day, pulls her back to life. She decides to divorce her husband and marry Alan.

Resolutely, quietly and always with the singing joy of the beloved and the confessedly loving woman in her heart, Christine set about the steps that would free her from the hated name of Knight, and for the new honor of becoming Alan's wife.

On the day she left the hospital, the famous surgeon left Washington, and he did not return. In the dignified activities of young Mrs. Knight he had no part. The papers recorded her application for divorce with mild comments, but even Chrissie's closest friends did not speak to her of it, for her manner forbade all comment and all discussion.

"But what an extraordinary business this marriage is!" she wrote to Alan, in one of the long letters that went to and fro. "It is the most delicate, the most illusive, of all human relationships, and yet even when the whole world knows—as in my case—that love and respect and conventionality have been absolutely outraged, and shattered, made null and void, two reasonable human beings, like Stuart and myself, just as well able to decide for ourselves as any other jury or judge in the world, must go through this painful time of giving evidence, and submitting to the stupidest cross-examinations and delays!

But I see daylight now. Dan tells me that there will be no delays.

It is the first thing on the calendar, on the 4th, and can be settled, Dan says, in five minutes, and then I'll write, and plan to come up immediately. Much better then having you come here—I want to be married, and simply disappear. Here everyone knows me, and everyone will be watching. It's all so stupid, and it makes one so self-conscious.

"I hope you're experiencing the utter serenity of spirit that I am. Sometimes I imagine your worrying, as to the effect of a woman and baby—a family full-fledged, upon your quiet bachelor menage. And then I say to myself, 'Is it true? Does Alan Monteagle, the big man that I heard lecture less than a year ago, really and truly love me?

"So answer this question carefully, when you write. Yes, I know Dr. Vianney's name, on the chemistry books, and am thrilled to think that he is your friend. Is the wife French, too?

"We're deliciously comfortable, here at the hotel, Cordelia is a real comfort and, of course, I feel disgracefully rich. Stuart's mother insisted upon the larger figure, and with that, and my rent to make me feel like a robber, you may expect to see me making port under the Jolly Roger when I come up! I think Mrs. Knight felt I was conceding a good deal, when I said that I would really lend them Betty Lou two or three or four times a year. But she is the only grandchild and apt to remain so, and they do love her so. Of course, they don't realize yet that you are so definitely in my plans. I imagine Mrs. Knight thinks the affair at a deadlock. She touched me when she thanked me about Betty Lou—poor old lady, she was a bad mother to her son, but I felt sorry for her!

"Enter the hair-dresser, L. I have to stop. God bless you always, my own dear, dearest boy, and make me a good wife to you!"

Alan Monteagle read this letter twice, and kissed it more than twice, and put it away with wet eyes. She grew sweeter and sweeter, this Chris of his! Bitter winter still locked in the city, but he felt some mysterious inner spring time flood his heart with perfume and greenness, and a sort of heady sweetness that was at once strong and infinitely weak.

In the cold, blue late afternoon light he drove slowly up through the swarming street near the Queensboro Bridge, and into a quiet back water of a street that hung just above the river.

He was standing, five minutes later, in the setting of square piano and potted ferns, and shabby books and green student lamp, and watchful canary and mismatched, comfortable chairs and rugs, when Kate Vianney came briskly in.

"Well, Alan—I expected this! Sit down—and let's have the confession this instant!"

Alan laughed and flushed.

"Now what have you got into your head, Kate?"

"That your pretty Mrs. Knight is free," she answered briskly, "and that you're going to be married, almost at once?"

"Very well," Alan admitted resignedly, "since you're so smart!"

"Oh, not really, Alan!" Mrs. Vianney said, with a changed color, and in a changed tone,

"Well—Thursday? Or perhaps Friday?"

"But Alan, not really—" The woman murmured, coldly and quietly, all her kash and sparkle gone. She sat back in her chair. "Well, that's news," she said, heavily.

"News that you expected," he reminded her.

"Well, yes—of course! But not so soon!" Mrs. Vianney fell silent for a few seconds, when she said abruptly. "Congratulations, Alan. I'm horrid to be just—a little—sorry!"

"You're not really sorry!" he assured her, smiling.

"No, of course not. But we've had a wonderful friendship—and a woman needs a friend like you—to be the better wife!"

"Chris asked me if you were French," Alan told her. "All women are French, I believe."

"And all men Turks!" she countered, ruefully. "Well, so it is to be at once."

"You'll be her friend, Kit?" he asked, standing up to go.

"Kit!" she echoed. "I suppose you call her that? Isn't it just my luck that she should have my name!"

"No, I call her Chris. It fits her, too."

"Don't go Alan. Emil may be in at any moment now."

"I must. But I'll see you soon!"

"Oh, surely!" She said it compossedly. And walking with him to the garden gate, she talked of her sons, one a stepson studying medicine, abroad, and the other due home from school at any moment now.

But when he had gone she stood at the gate for a long time, bareheaded, and staring blankly down the empty street, into a suddenly empty world.

Two days later Christine quietly left Washington. She went with Cordelia and the baby to the old Knight home, and had perhaps half an hour's talk with Stuart's mother and father. Then she kissed Betty Lou good-bye, and went out to a waiting cab, and at noon she was surveying the moving environs of the city from a Pullman window. She reached New York in a swift-falling snow storm at 5 and went straight to a hotel.

There was a telephone in the big room, but Chris only looked at it once or twice before she set about the business of brushing, bathing, resting, making herself fresh and sweet. She trembled a little as she went to and fro, and there was a continual happy flutter at her heart.

It was a quarter to 7 when she was finally arrayed in the crepe de chine with the dull blue linings in the wide sleeves, and the broad black hat with the one great rose upon it, and the blue repeated in the lining of its brim; her hands were bare of rings, but there was a chain of pearls about her round, beautiful young throat, and big pearls showed under the curving, shining sweep of hair over each ear.

She sat down at the telephone. This time there was no delay.

"Alan—?"

"My darling. Where are you?"

"At the hotel. And about to go down to dine. Could you dine with me?"

"I—Chris, you mean you're in town?"

"Right here. Not a mile away from you!"

"Do you know what tomorrow is?"

"No—no. But I suspect!"

"Any day, he said. At 4. Does that suit you? Chris, I'm dressing. But I can be there in fifteen minutes!"

"Don't hurry, dear. We have—we have all the rest of our lives."

New Hospital to Make Specialty of Plastic Cases

A new hospital, which will devote special attention to plastic surgery, will be built on the site of the present Hollywood Community Hospital, 1601 North El Centro street, at a cost of $150,000 to $200,000, it was announced yesterday. The project is planned by Drs. Sidney R. Broadbent and William E. Balsinger. The latter is the surgeon who remodeled the nose of Jack Dempsey.

The institution will be one of the largest private hospitals upon the Pacific Coast, with a capacity of fifty patients, and work will begin upon it in early spring. Dr. Broadbent will continue as superintendent of the Community Hospital and remain head of the department of accidental surgery to which the present hospital and its facilities are committed. Dr. Balsinger will head the department of plastic surgery with a number of assistants. There also will be departments for the specialized treatment of ear, nose and throat cases and X-ray work.

Dr. Broadbent was formerly on the staff of the Los Angeles Receiving Hospital. Dr. Balsinger was formerly resident physician of Alleghany General Hospital, Pittsburg, and was a captain in the division of oral and plastic surgery during the war. He was one of the first three American surgeons sent to France.

Registration on for Law School Today at Loyola

With greater prospects than ever for a large registration, St. Vincent's School of Law of Loyola College will begin today the registration of students for the coming semester, which begins on February 2, next. This announcement was made yesterday by Rev. Henry Welch, president, and Rev. Nicholas P. Bell, vice-president and director of studies. Law classes for the new students will begin on February 2, but, because of the rush of work at the beginning of the semester, the college authorities have requested future students to register at once.

It was announced at the law school that a joint debate has been arranged for early in February with the law school of the University of Southern California.

LIVE STOCK AID DECISION NEAR

Farm Commission Expected to Act Quickly

Formal Meeting Will End Six Months' Recess

Co-operative Marketing Also to be Considered

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The President's Agricultural Commission, appointed to recommend measures for agricultural relief, will convene at the Department of Agriculture tomorrow, after a recess of six weeks.

The members will meet, Chairman Robert D. Carey, cattleman and former Governor of Wyoming, has announced, with the expectation of arriving quickly at a decision on means of relieving distress among live-stock men. The cattle industry and co-operative marketing also are before the commission for priority consideration.

Members of the commission said today it was hoped to present to this Congress some relief legislation and they were of the opinion that such legislation should be purely of an emergency nature and not designed for a long-time policy. Assistance for the cattlemen, it was thought, would be sought chiefly through financial and tariff channels. It is planned to establish connections with banking organizations now dealing with live-stock men and to devise a program which would meet the support of the bankers. Further relief is expected to be found in the marketing end of the industry.

Before concluding its recommendations regarding co-operative marketing of agricultural products, the commission plans to confer with leaders of the National Council of Co-operative Marketing Associations, which is to meet here early this week. It is understood others will be asked to appear at hearings of the body.

COUNTY EMBARRASSED BY TAX WITHHOLDING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Refusal of the United Verde Extension Mining Company to pay taxes assessed against it has left Yavapai county in bad plight financially, especially in regard to payments on school bonds due.

One of the principal matters of default will be on redemption of a part of an issue of $190,000 of Jerome school bonds, which happens, oddly, to be in the hands of James S. Douglas, president of the Extension company. Not later than February the county will have to begin to register interest-bearing warrants on its treasury.

The tax problem has been taken by the Extension company to the Federal courts, on the ground of unconstitutionality of the State's tax laws. In Territorial days, mining companies at times forced compromise by refusal to pay.

Tema: El Galicismo de Construcción

Reprochan (y con razón sobrada) los lingüistas castellanos, el abuso que hacen los autores modernos, no solo de voces afrancesadas, sino de giros franceses, sustituyendo a los genuinamente castellanos. Es indiscutible que en nuestra época nadie habla ni escribe usando el léxico del arcipreste de Hita, ni de Cervantes, ni siquiera de Quintana; la evolución del idioma requiere nuevos giros y el uso de distintos vocablos a los que emplearon los clásicos. Pero de una evolución que gradualmente va enriqueciendo nuestra lengua, a la rebelión de que dan muestras los autores que indiscretamente acomodan frases extranjeras y retuercen los conceptos para acomodar traducciones literales, que resultan exóticas en nuestra literatura, hay una enorme diferencia.

Uno de los giros más comunes en la literatura moderna, es el abuso del posesivo en las construcciones, constituyendo un galicismo digno de corrección. Dice de Toro y Gisbert que "los franceses todo lo hacen suyo: se ponen su sombrero en su cabeza, se meten sus manos en sus bolsillos." La oración: muy común por cierto: "volvieron sobre sus pasos", es un galicismo que fácilmente se corrige diciendo "volvieron pies atrás", o simplemente "volvieron atrás", siendo más breve y tan elegante como la afrancesada.

Es muy común ver escrito, por ejemplo: "combatió con un valor a toda prueba" frase en la que el artículo indeterminado "un" está sobrando, pero que imita la construcción francesa." Tuvo un cierto gesto de sorpresa", escribe un autor moderno que debió escribir en castellano: "tuvo cierto ademán de sorpresa".

También se abusa ahora extraordinariamente del gerundio: "La ley concediendo pensiones, ordena . . ." en vez de "la ley que concede . . ." "no soy más que un filósofo, entendiendo la filosofía como la entendían los antiguos", es locución de un escritor moderno de nota. Si el autor aludido hubiera puesto "que entiende la filosofía. . ." nada hubiera perdido en cuanto a elegancia y hubiera ganado un elogio por apegarse a la Gramática de su lengua. El eminente Cuervo, al referir este mismo ejemplo, dice: "Es galicado e insoportable el empleo del gerundio cuando refiriéndose a un sujeto que desempeña la acción del verbo, (o sea el sujeto de la frase, como dicen los gramáticos), sirve para darle a conocer o para limitar y fijar su significado."

NUMERO 12

Mientras más se profundiza en los estudios filológicos, más se adquiere la convicción de que es imposible llegar a escribir o hablar el castellano sin cometer errores reprochables por los puristas. Las opiniones contradictorias que encontramos en los tratadistas, opuestas muchas veces a las reglas establecidas por la Real Academia Española, explican por sí solas la actitud de rebeldía de muchos autores que no se resignan fácilmente a gastar su tiempo en la busca de vocablos y construcciones de intachable factura, con mengua quizá de la forma en que concibieron sus ideas. El mejor consejo que puedo dar a los lectores de estas pláticas, por lo tanto, es que lean mucho de los autores clásicos castellanos y que de los modernos escojan aquellos consagrados por la crítica; de esta manera, insensiblemente irán adquiriendo una manera elegante y muy aproximada a la perfección, para expresarse en el hermoso lenguaje de Castilla.

Estas consideraciones las he hecho al pasar revista a una lista de galicismos que contiene un tratado de filología que he consultado, para insertar en esta plática una parte de la referida lista, y encontrar que mas de la mitad de los términos que contiene y que aconseja el autor sean rechazados al hablar o escribir en castellano, aparecen sancionados por la Academia, en la última edición de su diccionario.

A., Esta preposición está mal usada en las siguientes frases: "El yugo de la virtud es pesado al hombre" (debe decirse para el hombre). "A tales hombres nada les es imposible", (para tales hombres nada es imposible). "Vender a pérdida", (con pérdida). "Bordado a la aguja" (de aguja) "A lo que veo, nada hay que hacer." (por lo que veo). "Desprecio a todo lo venerable", (de todo) "Odiar a muerte." (de muerte). De igual manera que los títulos de las tiendas, que tan comunes son, principalmente en América, que se llaman: "Al puerto de Santander" "A la Villa de Paris" y que para nada necesitan de la preposición.

"ACUSAR un buen corazón", frase muy común; debe rechazarse y en lugar de acusar puede ponerse revelar o manifestar. APERCIBIR, se usa muy comunmente en lugar de divisar, atisbar o advertir. Apercibir significa siempre prevenir, disponer, preparar lo necesario para una cosa, amonestar o hacer un requerimiento legal.

ATACAR, es un error si se aplica en vez de impugnar o de combatir. Es muy común decir "Atacar un dictamen, atacar las instituciones, atacar el régimen" y en estos casos está mal aplicado el verbo.

Vol. XLIV. MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 5, 1925.—PART II. 18 PAGES. POPULATION (By the Federal Census—(1920)— 576,673 By the City Directory—(1924)—1,142,132)

TRANSIT SURVEY ALMOST READY

Subways and Elevated Roads Are Recommended

Population of 2,200,000 by 1940 Provided For

Major Traffic Street Plan is Commended

The comprehensive transportation survey now being completed for the Los Angeles city and county governments by Maj. R. F. Kelker, Jr., and Charles E. De Leuw of Chicago, who prepared the Chicago Rapid Transit plan adopted here, is expected to be filed with the City Council and Board of Supervisors within ten days, according to an announcement by Engineer Kelker, and recommends transit facilities, including subways, elevated lines, street-car and motor-bus attendance to handle an estimated population in the urban district within a radius of eight miles of Pershing Square, of 2,200,000 by 1940.

The contract was made by the city and county governments with Messrs. Kelker and De Leuw on May 1, and calls for a total expenditure of $40,000 for the work in preparing the survey, the expense being divided equally between the city and county. Additional appropriation will be required to make possible some of the recommended facilities and this is set forth in the report.

MOUNTAINS TO SEA

The metropolitan district considered by the transportation engineers lies within a radius of eight miles of Pershing Square, which is generally speaking, the distance from the mountains to the sea at Redondo or Long Beach, Alhambra and other beach cities.

In presenting the report, Engineer De Leuw, who has been in charge of the transportation engineering offices here since the start of the report was started, worked with local organizations and is especially commended for the major traffic street plan approved by the Traffic Commission and approved by the voters at the May 6 election. The recommendations including the comprehensive downtown subway system will fit in with the major traffic street plan, Engineer De Leuw says. The subway system will include the use of the Hardy Street's $2,500,000 tunnel now nearing completion under Bunker Hill for the Hollywood and Vermont cars. Soon after entering work on the transportation survey, Engineer Kelker and De Leuw recommended that the engineering plans for the Pacific Electric's tracks be changed so that the Hill-street tunnel would be at sub-grade instead of at grade on Hill street so that the tunnel could be made a part of the downtown subway system.

BELOW GRADE

This suggestion was adopted and the tunnel will be below grade

SIXTEENTH GAS VICTIM SUCCUMBS

Wealthy Man Found Dead in Rooming-House; Two Others Revived

Carbon monoxide claimed its sixteenth victim of the season in Los Angeles yesterday. He was Hugo Witzel, 65 years of age, said in police reports to be a wealthy ranch owner, who died in a Japanese rooming-house at 236 East Second street. In addition two victims of gas poisoning were treated at the Receiving Hospital and revived.

According to Detective Lieutenants Thompson, Hamilton and Baldridge, they were called to the place by the proprietor who said he had looked through the transom and seen Witzel apparently unconscious. They entered with a passkey and found all windows tightly closed, the gas heater burning full force and Witzel dead in bed.

An investigation by the Coroner and District Attorney is expected, in view of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Davis's recent announcement that owners of rooming-houses, who do not provides gas heaters with proper vents are liable to prosecution on manslaughter charges. The detectives declared there was no flue leading to outside air from the heater.

Jack Fullam, 48 years of age, of 1173 West Jefferson street, was treated at the hospital early yesterday and restored to consciousness by Police Surgeon Renfrew. Fullam's relatives returned from an entertainment to find him unconscious on a couch, near a burning gas heater.

The other man to escape death was Joseph Smello, 36 years of age, of 313 South Boyle avenue. His room-mate found him unconscious in bed, the gas heater burning. He also was resuscitated by Dr. Renfrew.

A conference of city and county health officials has been called to take action regarding the menace, and ordinances requiring all gas stoves to be connected with a flue or vent are expected to be one result. The county health officer has announced he will start a campaign of education.

Manufacturers of gas heating devices, it is learned, are taking a deep interest in the situation and at least one manufacturer has sent out crews to inspect the installation of his devices in households and see that they are in proper working order.

FRENCH SHIPPING LINE OFFICIAL VISITS HERE

Capt. B. Aillet of New York, recently appointed Pacific Coast representative of the French Line, visited Los Angeles this week on a preliminary inspection tour prior to the opening of offices for his company here. Capt. Aillet was in command of mine sweepers off Cherbourg and in the Dardanelles during the World War, and at its conclusion returned to the service of the French Line. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor and the "Oulsman Alasuite," the latter the order of the Sultan of Morocco.

WHITTIER BANK HEAD SUCCUMBS

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

WHITTIER, Jan. 4.—John Cook, pioneer banker and an important factor in development of the citrus industry, died last night at his home at 421 East Philadelphia street. He was 72 years of age and had lived here for twenty-three years. He had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Cook was president of both the First National and the Whittier Savings Bank and was formerly a director in the Whittier Citrus Association. His holdings in the citrus industry are large. He came here from Wisconsin where he had been in the hardware business for more than twenty years.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Rosilla Cook and two sons, Frank P. Cook of Whittier and Colver J. Cook of Long Beach. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at the Whittier Congregational Church by Rev. E. E. Day and Rev. M. T. Edwards. The body will be laid to rest in the Whittier Memorial Cemetery.

POLICE HORSE KNOWS RULE

"Nick" Persists in Returning to Seventh Street Beat When Rider is Shifted to Broadway

"Members of the police department engaged in patrol duty must not leave their districts except in the actual performance of duty." This rule is number one in the Los Angeles police department manual but when put into practice by a police department traffic horse yesterday morning threw traffic on Broadway and also on West Seventh street into an uproar.

Also the persistent efforts of the horse to follow department rules set Mounted Traffic Officer V. B. Eubanks afoot the greater part of the day, resulted in a pair of very sore knees for the traffic officer, and ended with the horse being taken from the streets and sent to the department stables.

The horse, a 6-year-old bay, sixteen hands, called "Nick" by Officer Eubank, went to work for the Los Angeles police department fourteen months ago. The animal was assigned to Eubanks and was placed on duty on West Seventh street, between Hill and Los Angeles streets. With Mounted Officer Eubanks, "Nick," until yesterday, patroled the same district every day.

HORSE KNOWS BETTER

Yesterday morning when he reported for duty Officer Eubanks was notified to take his mount and patrol Broadway from First to Third streets. "Nick" carried his rider to Third street and Broadway without any trouble, but when Eubanks attempted to have the animal at the street intersection, "Nick" refused to stop. The animal knew his beat even if the officer didn't and continued south on Broadway to Fourth street when Officer Eubanks was forced to dismount and lead "Nick" back to the new district.

Up and down the three blocks the horse was led by the police officer in an effort to show the animal that its beat had been changed and then Officer Eubanks ordered "Nick" to follow him and started checking the automobiles parked at the curbing. Every thing went well until the pair reached Third street and Broadway and then "Nick" broke into a trot and never stopped until Seventh street and Hill had been reached. Eubanks followed on a street car.

Back on his new district Officer Eubanks rode the animal slowly up and down the three blocks over and over again, but at Third street "Nick" always refused to turn to the north and, when forced around, turned his head to gaze at his rider for a moment and then nipped him on one knee and then the other.

Unable to check up on the automobiles parked in his district from the back of his mount and afraid to dismount because of "Nick's" persistent efforts to return to his old district, Officer Eubanks rode the animal into an alleyway and hitched it to a post. There "Nick" was left for several hours.

FRANTIC FOR OLD BEAT

Returning to his mount early in the afternoon, Eubanks discovered that "Nick," after several efforts to tear away and return to Seventh street, had worked and fretted until sweat was pouring from the animal's body in streams and the horse was in such distress from worry at not being allowed to return to the post where for fourteen months it had labored that it was necessary to return it to the police stables.

"My horse seemed to know that we belong on West Seventh street," said Officer Eubanks to Captain of Traffic Gifford. "I never saw an animal act like "Nick" did while I was attempting to force him to work on Broadway. I was afraid that he would injure some of the pedestrians if I didn't take him off the street. The old boy also got it into his head that I was to blame for his troubles and tried to take out his spite by nipping my knees. I believe that 'Nick' thought that I didn't know what I was doing and was attempting to do his part in setting me right. Anyway, I will have to spend quite a few hours walking that horse up and down Broadway to show him that we are off of West Seventh street for good and that we really have been detailed to Broadway."

KID M'COY'S ALTARRIVAL IS HUNTED

Muchly Married Man and Asserted Check Artist Bobs Up Once More

Donald Duncan Stewart, under that or any other name, and he has several, apparently qualifies as the champion short and long-distance altar jumper, jail hurdler and bad-check sprinter, on the face of latest returns from two States last night.

Two years ago, Stewart created more than a mild sensation in Los Angeles when arrested at Sierra Madre on a telegraphic warrant from Boston charging bigamy and embezzlement. A woman posing as his sister, who later admitted having gone through a ceremony of marriage with him, was arrested with him.

The inevitable diary of the woman scorned whose fury spent itself in forgiveness, coupled with exhaustive data of private detectives, revealed Stewart as an unfrocked minister, a militant prohibition advocate, an itinerant pillar of various churches, but withal a dashing Beau Brummel, assorted check forger of parts, and a hit with the women he wedded. He admitted here he couldn't be quite sure of the number of times he escorted a blushing bride to the altar. Detectives said six or seven.

He was released here on a writ of habeas corpus because Boston authorities forgot for a while that they wanted him.

Last week, Ruby Gardner Lynch Mitchell, who thinks she was Stewart's seventh wife, but who drew the name of Mitchell instead of Stewart in the love pirate's list of aliases, filed suit for annulment, charging that he was a first-class crook but a seventh-rate husband. The annulment was granted in San Francisco.

Arthur W. Van Lopik of 417 East Del Norte street, Colorado Springs, read about it, thought the circumstances had a familiar twang to them and dashed down to the police station with a complaint charging Stewart with bunkoing him out of $450 on a worthless check in June, 1921.

So now, police officers in various communities throughout these United States have divided themselves into training groups of sprinters and marathon runners in the hope of catching up with the world's best fugitive.

LONG BEACH SKYSCRAPER IN ON TRADE

Manager Announces Deal Involving Piece of Fresno Property

Confirming persistent recent rumors that the Markwell Building, Long Beach business skyscraper, is to have new owners, E. H. Pattison, resident general agent and manager of the property, last night verified the report that a deal involving approximately $1,500,000 was pending. He added that negotiations are not complete but are virtually so.

The structure faces the Pike at Ocean Boulevard and Pine Way, fronting six stories toward the Pike and four on Ocean Boulevard. Its linear frontage is 132 feet and its depth 170 feet.

In confirming the negotiations, Mr. Pattison let it be known that the building is not being sold outright, but is involved in a trade for an extensive piece of property in Fresno. Two blocks in the Raisin City go to make up the other portion of the transfer, the deal at that end being handled through D. W. Mitchell. Frank P. and Charles Markwell of Los Angeles have hitherto held the controlling interest in the Long Beach structure bearing their name.

Thousands of Motorists Jam New Highway

Several thousand motorists who sought to travel on Mulholland Highway yesterday were caught in a traffic jam greater, according to Hollywood police, than ever was experienced before in that section. By 2 p.m. the traffic was so dense at Highland and Cahuenga avenues that police were detailed to keep the cars moving in a systematic order. Traffic was not normal until 7 p.m., police reported.

Despite the abnormal traffic, no accidents were reported as a result of the jam.

THREE KILLED IN TRAFFIC'S TOLL

Five Other Mishap Victims May Not Survive

One Car Plunges Into Crowd at Angelus Temple

Three persons dead and fourteen injured, four probably fatally, was the toll in traffic accidents in and near Los Angeles yesterday. Two persons, a boy and a girl, were injured fatally when a small coupe in which they and another young couple, bound for San Diego for an outing, went over a 150-foot embankment on the highway south of San Juan Capistrano; seven women were injured, two probably fatally, when an automobile plowed through a crowd of 100 or more persons who had just left services at Angelus Temple last night; the third person killed, an elderly woman, was riding in an automobile that was struck by a Los Angeles railway car at Thirty-first street and Grand avenue.

Two sailors in the crowd at the church held the driver of the car, George E. Benz, 37 years of age, a stage hand, living at 3870 West Second street, until arrival of police. According to the police, the man was felled by one of the sailors when he attempted to escape. He was held by the police after, it was asserted, a bottle of liquor was found in his car, and booked on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

REPORTED DRINKING

Officer Bailey, who made the ambulance call to get the injured, reported Benz had been drinking. Although wrought up over the occurrence, the crowd did not attempt violence against the driver. The machine was traveling at a speed estimated at between twenty-five and forty miles an hour when it hit the crowd.

The dead are Cecil K. Burrows, 19 years of age, son of Fire Chief and Mrs. George S. Burrows, of 521 West Valley Boulevard, Alhambra; Nellie Spencer, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Spencer, 304 North Stoneman street, Alhambra; and Mrs. Amelia Connley, 75, of 237 South Bunker Hill avenue, Los Angeles.

TWO DEAD

Burrows was almost instantly killed; Miss Spencer was dead when she and the two injured members of the party were taken to Orange County Hospital in Santa Ana. The injured in the accident near San Juan Capistrano are Hazel Hamm, 16 years of age, of 415 North Marguerite street, Alhambra, and William Clayton, 19, of 1712 Acacia street, Alhambra. Miss Hamm suffered bruises and shock and Clayton received bruises and a broken shoulder. It was stated at the hospital. The body of Burrows was taken to Berry's mortuary at Oceanside.

The Alhambra party, it was said, left home about midnight Saturday for San Diego. They were riding in two machines at that time, but changed to the small coupe later, according to reports.

An unidentified Mexican, about 70 years of age, was probably fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile in the 600 block on East Slauson avenue. The driver did not stop. The victim was taken to the Receiving Hospital.

SEVEN INJURED

The injured in the accident near Angelus Temple are:

Mrs. W. R. Hutchinson, 45, colored, 3453 East Second street; bruises; refused treatment.

Mrs. Mary K. Williams, 70, 633 East Twenty-second street; fractured left knee, bruises; may die on account of advanced age.

Mrs. Anna McGee, 66, 127 Rivera street; sprained back and bruises.

Mrs. Bertha Crawford, 52, 3423 Gleason avenue; both legs fractured; may die.

Mrs. Remento Hopkinson, 58, 707 West Eighteenth street; fractured wrist and knee injuries.

Mrs. Frances E. Johnson, 61,

MERCHANT SHOT TO DEATH

Vendetta Tragedy Seen in Discovery of Body in Rear of Huntington Park Store

Mike Campanle, about 36 years of age, an Italian merchant, was found shot to death in the rear of a small fruit stand he operated at 1606 East Irvington street, Huntington Park, yesterday.

The position of the body, which partially concealed an automatic pistol, caused police to believe that the many may have been the victim of a minor vendetta and either was shot when he refused to submit to blackmail threats or through a revenge motive.

Campanle, according to the police, lived alone in a room adjoining his small fruit stand. He had apparently been lured to the rear of the building and shot before he was able to fatally wound his assailant. Deputies Hackett and Hanby of Chief William L. Bright's homicide squad who were assigned to the case, said there was a possibility of suicide due to apparent powder burns on the man's forehead where the bullet penetrated his brain.

Police were unable to find any witnesses to the fatal shooting and were also unable to locate any threatening letters that would indicate that the dead man had been a prospective blackmail victim. Neither could they find anyone able to tell of possible enemies of Campanle's.

Several clews, thought to have an important bearing on the tragedy were discovered by police when searching the home and premises of the dead man. In the event of suicide, police officers pointed out that it would not seem probable that after shooting himself the man would have fallen in such a position as to cover the gun. The victim was sprawled in the yard near a wall and could either have been shot from ambush or by someone who accompanied him to the rear portion of his home. After a more thorough investigation, police officers expect to be able to shed considerable light upon the apparent mystery, it was said.

WOMAN FALLS IN AIRSHAFT

Plunge of Three Stories from Apartment Roof May Prove Fatal to Mrs. Katie Harowitz

Mrs. Katie Harowitz, 53 years of age, wardrobe mistress for the Elko Studio, was probably fatally injured early yesterday when she fell three stories through an airshaft from the roof of the Bon Air Apartments at 2002 Sunset Boulevard.

According to her version of the accident, she had arisen shortly before dawn to go on a fishing trip with a party of friends. While awaiting their arrival she climbed a small flight of stairs which lead from her room to the roof of the building and was enjoying the early morning air on the housetop when she lost her balance and fell through the uncovered opening of the airshaft.

Her screams attracted other tenants, who summoned the police. She was rescued from the bottom of the shaft by Police Sergeant Kirk and Officer Vannice and taken to the Receiving Hospital. After being treated by Police Surgeon Renfrew, she was removed to the General Hospital. She suffered a compound fracture of the left hip and a basal skull fracture in the fall. The mishap was purely accidental, according to Detectives Miner and Ellis, who investigated.

ANOTHER CONTEST TOMORROW!

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

FLOODS of letters come to the Lancer. This, perhaps, was to have been expected. Such a column is a fair target.

It has been interesting, however, to observe the gradual change in the character of the letters.

At first, most of them were stupid and abusive. There is a kind of person who sleeps with his boots by his bedside like a fireman—ready to leap up at the slightest warning and squirt invective at every head that shows.

My psychoanalysis friends tell me that these are always starved souls with an inferiority complex.

CHARMING AND WISE

More recently the character of the letters has changed.

Many of them are written by people of culture and education—who show the most charming and unusual qualities of mind.

They are not people that any one knows about. One is the wife of a country doctor out in the desert. Another is a librarian of a foothill town—another a retired cavalry officer—a British barrister—and so on.

What impresses me about these letters is the hint they give of the extraordinary quality of the people who are settling Southern California. We don't hear of these people, but it stands to reason that each one, in his own sphere, is making himself—or should I say herself?—felt.

A NEW RACE COMING

Scientists say that a new race type is being evolved in California—a race which will be different in appearance, in accent and in thought. This is easy to believe.

THE AVIATOR'S RETORT

Not all the letters are flattering.

With the sweetest courtesy, he simply blew me and my amateur airplane theories out of water—out of the sky. He told some remarkable military secrets about the performances of the air observation officers during the war. On the other hand, he pooh-poohed the recent around-the-world flight. He said it cost $3,000,000 and accomplished nothing. That longer sea flights had been made than any single leg of the world flight. He was hard on the Navy's antiaircraft service. He said he would be glad to spend a quiet vacation afternoon flying all day long over the fleet, letting it shoot antiaircraft guns at him. The "archies," he says, are a failure.

AN ANXIOUS ADMIRER

I have another correspondent who writes from the Athletic Club without signing his name. With absolute anguish, he informs me, again and again, that I am a punk writer; and why don't I stop trying to do it.

SEEING THE FOLKS

At any rate, these letters give one a chance to see the audience. It changes newspaper writing from a blind man's job. No doubt every writer has the same trick; I always think of some particular person and tell my story directly to him, sometimes with amusing results.

THE FIGHT FAN

When I was a prize-fight reporter, I always imagined myself telling my stories of gore and carnage to a certain rich, aristocratic woman of an old California family, whom I knew slightly. I don't know why I picked on her; I hadn't seen her for years; but I was bound to make her read prize fights if I lost my shoes in the process.

One of the biggest thrills I ever had in my life was when she stopped me on the street one day and blushingly confessed that she had become a fight fan. She asked me if it wouldn't be possible to bring Ad Wolgast—then champion of the world—to her house some Sunday afternoon.

NOPE—I DIDN'T

Sequel, no I didn't take the illustrious Mr. Wolgast out there.

Life is after all a give-and-take proposition and the takers of the world are to be more pitied than envied. The true progress of civilization is no longer measured by marble palaces or monuments. The best of these crumble and fall. Spiritual insight, which leads the individual to lose a sense of personal possession, in the understanding of the higher law of sharing with his brother, is contributing a corner-stone of that temple, "not built with hands." This is the thought which came to us with the advent of a new type of fairy godmother.

The program last evening was presented through the courtesy of a Beverly Hills society woman who desires that her name be withheld. For many months the radio had been a source of extreme pleasure to her and last night she paid back into the treasury of life her debt of gratitude, pressed down and running over! The arrangement of the program was in the capable hands of Julie Kellar and presented the following artists: Sylvia Marotta, Spanish pianist; M. Pierre Carta, violinist; Harry L. Porter, baritone and the Julie Kellar Trio, composed of Julie Kellar, harp; Joseph Heindl, 'cellist, and William Hullinger, flute.

If the choice of the selections played last evening was any criterion of the good things which our Beverly godmother has enjoyed from our station we are to be congratulated on the high standard maintained. Miss Marotta played a Chopin "Impromptu" and a Moszkowski "Waltz" with the ardor and zeal of her Spanish temperament. M. Pierre Carta, made his first KHJ appearance last night and made a very favorable impression upon radioland. Harry L. Porter possesses a pleasing baritone voice and his numbers showed unusually fine musicianship.

The fame of the Julie Kellar Trio is too apparent to need any additional comment and I am one of their warmest admirers.

Due to an oversight on my part the name of Celeste Nellie-Ryus, pianist, was omitted in the review of Carrie Jacobs-Bond's program of the 2nd inst. We regret this, as Miss Ryus added much pleasure to the program of her artistic reading of two of Mrs. Bond's compositions. She is a pianist in whom Los Angeles should take pride and her appearances are always greeted enthusiastically.

VALUE OF A BEAN

Peter F. Dailey Turned a Mishap Into an Impromptu Joke

As a young man, Walter Prichard Eaton had the good fortune to hear the famous comedian, Peter F. Dailey, spring one of his best impromptu jokes during a burlesque performance of "The Merry Widow."

In his new book, "The Actor's Heritage," he describes the scene in which Dailey is leaving a restaurant where the prices were something terrific. As he was making his exit, the comedian accidentally stepped on something and started to fall. Being an extremely heavy man, there was actual danger. The other players sprang to catch him and the audience gasped. But, he righted himself and then in silence stooped down and picked up a tiny object on which he had slipped.

The play stopped. In an expectant silence, Dailey drew out a pocketbook, counted the money in it and then deposited the total sum in the head waiter's hands.

"Here," he said, "is $13. I stepped on a bean."—[Kansas City Star.

MANY WORKERS ARE AIDED

Almost $1,000,000 in Unpaid Wages Obtained by State Labor Board During Last Two Years

Nearly $1,000,000 in unpaid wages has been turned over to workers during the past two years through the operation of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics, according to the biennial report of Labor Commissioner Matthewson, which was made public Saturday.

Activities of the Labor Department during the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1924, were more far reaching than in any period since the department was established in 1883, the commissioner states. In the collection of unpaid wages alone, according to Mr. Mathewson, 90 per cent more money was obtained through the department than during the fiscal years of 1921-1922. During its last biennial the department collected $858,163.85.

The commissioner points out in the report that the department has received a total of 23,801 complaints against labor-law violators in the two-year period. Of this total approximately 87 per cent involved nonpayment of wages.

The thirteen permanent and seasonal State free public employment offices operated by the bureau filled a total of 474,691 jobs in the two years, more than a third more than were procured in 1921-1922, declares the report. The cost to the State for this service amounted to 56 cents a job, or 18 cents less than in the preceding biennial.

As a result of this free service Mr. Mathewson estimates that workers have been saved $489,000 in fees during the two years.

In districts adjacent to the congested district, the report leaves open for a vote of the people the question as to whether subways shall be extended or the cars be carried on elevated structures, as the cost of subways is three times that of elevated tracks.

Engineer De Leuw said that the installation of rapid transit facilities in the downtown district would relieve much of the street and sidewalk congestion as the passengers will enter the subway stations to take cars in all directions.

FLEET WILL BEGIN HARD GRIND TODAY

Eleven Dreadnaughts to Rehearse for Long-Range Battle Practice

Hard work, after three weeks of leave and liberty, will start this morning for the United States Battle Fleet, beginning on a gunnery and tactical schedule that will continue until next fall. Eleven dreadnaughts will steam out to the drill grounds off San Clemente today for their initial rehearsals and practice runs for long-range battle practice, to be fired during the next fortnight.

The U.S.S. Tennessee will open the fleet's final half of gunnery training on the 8th inst., when she fires long-range battle practice, carrying out the exercise ahead of the other ships in order to conform with her overhaul program.

The biggest event of the long-range schedule will be carried out on the 15th inst., when the huge superdreadnaughts of Battleship Division Five fire their sixteen-inch batteries together in long-range battle practice for the first time in naval history. They include the West Virginia, Colorado and Maryland, while the U.S.S. California, below them in effectiveness only in that she mounts twelve fourteen-inch guns rather than eight sixteenth-inch rifles, will also participate in the exercise. The practice will be fired at a range exceeding 20,000 yards.

Towing targets and observing the practice for the four ships will be the Arizona and New Mexico.

REVISED INCOME LAW IN EFFECT

Collector Cites Changes in Returns for 1924

Married Persons' Exemption Limit Now $2500

New Ruling Very Definite on Earned Income

Married persons whose net income in 1924 was less than $2500 will not have to file income returns. This provision of the 1924 Revenue Act is one of several important changes in the revenue laws, according to Rex B. Goodcell, collector of internal revenue. Under the old law returns were required of married persons whose net income was $2000. Single persons, under the new law, must file returns on incomes of $1000 or more as heretofore. Returns must be filed for all gross incomes of $5000 or more, regardless of the amount of the net income.

The Revenue Act of 1924 allows all taxpayers, heads of family, a personal exemption of $2500, whereas under the old law the $2500 exemption applied only to incomes of $5000 or less. An exemption of only $2000 was allowed previously on incomes in excess of $5000. The $400 allowance for each dependent remains unchanged.

Under the new law, a rate of 2 per cent applies to the net taxable income of $4000 or less, and 4 per cent on the next $4000 or less.

Formerly a taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year determined the amount of his exemptions. Under the 1924 Revenue Act, Collector Goodcell explained, the status of the taxpayer is determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months he was single, married or the head of a family. For example, a taxpayer who married on July 1, 1924, will be entitled to an exemption of $1750. This amount includes an exemption of $500 for the six months he was classed as single, and $1250 for the six months he was classed as married.

The Revenue Act of 1924 contains a special provision for reduced taxes on "earned income" which did not appear in previous laws. All net income up to $5000 is considered earned income. On this account the taxpayer is entitled to a credit of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. For example, Collector Goodcell said, a taxpayer unmarried and with no dependents, whose net income for 1924 is $5000 would pay, without this reduction, a tax of $80. From his net income of $5000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1000, leaving $4000 on which the tax of 2 per cent amounts to $80. One-fourth of that amount, or $20, may be deducted.

In no case is the earned net income considered to be in excess of $10,000. A taxpayer receiving a salary of $20,000 can claim only $10,000 as "earned net income."

For a married man with no dependents whose earned net income is $7000 and who has other income of $1500, the tax, without the benefit of the 25 per cent reduction, would amount to $160. This would represent a total income of $8500, less a personal exemption of $2500, leaving $6000 on which there would be a tax of 2 per cent on the first $4000, and a tax of 4 per cent on the next $2000. On the earned net income the tax amounts to $100—$7000 less the exemption of $2500, leaving $4500 on which the tax on the first $4000 at 2 per cent amounts to $80, and the tax on the remaining $500 at 4 per cent amounts to $20. As one-fourth the tax on earned net income may be deducted under the new law, the 1924 tax on such an income will be only $135.

On a net income of $12,000, derived entirely from securities by a single taxpayer having no dependents, the tax, considering the first $5000 to be earned, amounts to $420. Computing without the benefit of the deduction, it would amount to $440.

Earned income is defined by the new law as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other compensation for personal services actually rendered," but does not include that part of compensation, derived for personal services rendered to a corporation, which represents a distribution of earnings or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services actually rendered.

In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income producing factors, a reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services actually rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 30 per cent of his share of the net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income provided the allowance does not exceed 25 per cent of the tax computed in the ordinary manner. The limitation is applicable in cases where there is a loss, and the earned net income is greater than the taxable net income.

WILD WEST SHOW REVIVED

Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Spectacle Due to Take Road Again After Eight-Year Suspension

The 101 Ranch Wild West show is coming back again this spring after having been out of business since 1917, it was announced yesterday by Col. J. C. Miller, one of the three Miller brothers who own the famous ranch at Martin, Okla., from which the show takes its name and where it originated.

"This circus, which is the first wild west show ever organized, was on the road every season from 1906 until 1917, when this country's entry into the war made it advisable to discontinue," said Col. Miller. "Conditions have been restored to such a state of normalcy by this time, however, that we have decided to revive the attraction. Preparations are under way now and the show will again take the road when the circus season opens."

HISTORY OF RANCH

The 101 Ranch, which was established by Col. Miller's father, the late Col. George Miller, is one of the largest ranches in this country, containing 110,000 acres, the ranchman said.

"My father settled there in 1871 when the land was still a part of Indian Territory," said Col. Miller. "He did not start to expand his original holdings to any great extent until 1886, when he leased some hundreds of thousands of acres for grazing purposes at 2 cents an acre. Of course, those were the days of free range, and the cattle roamed at will not only on the leased ground, but elsewhere. The free range is gone now and grazing lands lease at anywhere from 50 cents to $1.50 per acre."

Of the area comprised within the boundaries of the 101 Ranch, some 90,000 acres are devoted to pasture, with 20,000 acres under cultivation. The ranch owns the largest herd of registered Duroc-Jersey hogs in the world, numbering 10,000 animals. It also maintains a herd of 500 registered Holstein cattle.

"The town of Marlin is located on the ranch and there we operate a packing plant where 15,000 cattle and an equal number of hogs are slaughtered every year," said Col. Miller. "This packing business is largely an outgrowth of the oil development in that section of Oklahoma. When the oil brought a great influx of people, we set out to meet the demand for meats. Most of our product is disposed of in Oklahoma."

The wild-west show started as an annual rodeo event on the 101 Ranch. Many of the men who have since become famous for dare-devil stunts in motion pictures began their careers on the ranch. Among them is Tom Mix, who was arena director of the 101 Ranch Show in 1908. During the last two years of his life and after he had retired from his own organization Buffalo Bill was a member of the 101 Ranch circus, Col. Miller said.

FILM MATERIAL

"Members of the show first appeared in motion pictures in the winter of 1911," said Col. Miller. "A large part of our aggregation spent that winter at Venice, and in a picture produced by Ince at that time he needed rough riders and other features reminiscent of the wild and woolly West. Our show furnished the material, and this started many of our performers in the film game."

Col. Miller has been adopted by the Ponca tribe of Indians and is now chief in that tribe, his Indian name being Mushamontaha, which means "one going up." He is next in importance to the head of the tribe, Chief Horse Chief Eagle, and is entitled to sit in at all councils of the Poncas.

LOCAL FILM FOLK START RELIEF BODY

Thirty-one Leaders File Incorporation Articles With State

For the expressed purpose of providing a home and means of sustenance for members of the motion-picture industry who are in straitened circumstances, in ill health or incapable of work because of age or infirmity, thirty-one of the leading figures in the local film colony have organized the Motion-Picture Relief Fund of America, Inc. Articles of incorporation of the fund, setting forth the purposes and plans of the institution, were verified and filed last week in the office of the Secretary of State.

The money so raised is to be invested in interest-bearing securities, the income therefrom to be used for the betterment of the "condition and welfare of persons engaged in the motion-picture profession and their families and the aged, indigent and sick of the profession."

The articles of incorporation provide that the affairs of the fund are to be governed by a board of thirty-one trustees and directors, of which number at least twenty-two shall be actively engaged in or connected with the motion-picture industry.

Marchetti Will Take Post Today as Peace Justice

Justice Joseph Marchetti today will assume the duties of Justice of the Peace of Los Angeles Township, to which office he was appointed last week by the Board of Supervisors.

Marchetti, formerly a deputy District Attorney, was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the election of Judge Hanby to Superior Court, who today takes up his duties in Department 23.

Justice Marchetti is 29 years of age. He served for some time in the Navy and in the merchant marine. Later he practiced admiralty law with Roger Marchetti, his brother.

HEAD NAMED FOR BETTER HOME WEEK

Mrs. Marian T. Whiting to Act as Chairman of Local Campaign

Mrs. Marian Tracy Whiting has accepted the invitation of Secretary Hoover to be chairman of the Better Homes Week committee for Los Angeles. Better Homes Week is May 10 to 17 throughout the country and was observed last year by more than 1500 communities. The objects of the week are to put knowledge of high standards in construction and furnishing within easy reach, to encourage erection of sound, attractive and economical one-family houses, to study the housing problem, to eliminate needless burdens in housekeeping, and to encourage instruction in home economics in the schools. The Better Homes movement is supported by civic associations generally.

Of $5,000,000,000 spent for construction in 1924, $2,000,000,000 went for residence construction and many hundreds of millions in addition were spent for furnishings, says a statement from national headquarters, which indicates the importance of giving advice and aid to home builders and furnishers.

Stolen Clothes Were Efficient Burglar Alarm

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Harold Webster, an actor of West Forty-ninth street possesses a suit of clothes, which, when stolen from him, was recovered by the police solely because it was so loud most pawnbrokers refused to lend anything on it. The suit, which is a Norfolk plaid, bought in Scotland, according to the actor, was taken by a youth he befriended.

The young man who said he was "Sandy" MacGregor, was out of work and had no home. On Christmas Day "Sandy" disappeared with the suit of Scatch tweeds, the actor charged. Webster had a piece of the cloth.

"We will get it," said Detectives Maney and Flood of the West Forty-seventh-street station. "If he is wearing it we will see it a block away. If he hocked it it will be singing 'Annie Laurie' on a top shelf somewhere."

They trailed the suit up Eighth avenue as one pawnbroker after another told them he had refused to lend on it because of being so loud. Then they found the "Uncle" who had taken a chance for $5 and Webster got it back. "Sandy" is still missing.

Lesser Brothers, Film Magnates, Leave for East

Irving arrived just a week ago to spend the holidays with his brother, bringing with him his bride of a month, who was Helen Shaw, a Philadelphia society girl.

Plans are under way for a larger production this year than ever before in the history of the company, the first picture to be a picturization of one of America's wild est known and best-loved novels. Sol Lesser will stop off in Chicago for two or three days before proceeding to New York where business incidental to the affairs of the company for the ensuing year will be completed.

Poison Taken in Suicide Attempt Fatal to Woman

Mrs. Dorothy Hill, estranged wife of A. V. Hill, who swallowed a quantity of poison following a party in her home in the Duane Apartments, Ninth and Hoover streets, early Saturday morning died in the General Hospital yesterday.

According to friends who spent a festive evening in the apartment, Mrs. Hill had apparently been in the best of spirits. Shortly after her last guest had departed, neighbors, hearing groans issuing from the apartment, called the police, who found the young woman, unconscious, clutching a vial that had contained a deadly poison.

a raw throat invites infection from disease -

Give it continuous antiseptic treatment

THERE is always danger that a sore throat may have grave consequences. The discomfort is by no means the most serious part of it.

The soreness and inflammation—bad as they are in themselves—are worse as indications that germs are at work—poisoning your whole system, reducing your vitality, laying you open to influenza, grippe, pneumonia—many dangerous diseases.

Whenever your throat feels raw and feverish, don't wait to begin treating it until you can get home to use a gargle or spray. Get a bottle of Formamint tablets and begin at once giving it continuous antiseptic treatment—wherever you happen to be.

FORMAMINT is the only throat antiseptic of genuine germicidal power with which you can keep up your fight against germs all day—in your office, at the theatre, in the street car.

Carry Formamint with you and every half hour or hour dissolve one of the pleasant-tasting tablets in the mouth.

As it slowly dissolves it bathes every fold and crevice of the throat tissues with one of the most powerful germicidal agents known to science in a form which is perfectly safe.

Scientifically tested—recommended in standard medical text books—endorsed by over 10,000 physicians.

Wherever you are, you can always renew the germicidal action with another tablet. And this uninterrupted, all-day-long treatment clears out the poisonous throat germs as the momentary and occasional action of a gargle cannot do.

Keep Formamint always on hand and begin to take it the moment you notice the first sign of sore throat.

To prevent sore throat, to protect yourself when exposed to contagious disease—during epidemics, in crowds, in dusty streets—take a Formamint tablet about every two hours. Ask your druggist.

ONE THING NEEDFUL

Some of the educators are trying to abolish athletics in the colleges, but it would perhaps be easier to abolish the colleges.

IT WORKS WELL

The combination of pork and beans was invented by an Englishman. After all, there are a lot of good points to the mother country.

PICKING TALENT

It takes something more than a reputation for being a desperate mah jongg player to commend one for place in the diplomatic service under the present administration.

POETRY IN DEMAND

Good poetry is still in demand. The increased sales of the poetic works of recognized craftsmen during the late holiday season points infallibly to this conclusion. Nor is the growing popularity of the poem confined to the aged and the fair sex. College youths are displaying a strong interest in both the best modern as well as in the recognized classic verse. Of course, the land is always flooded with immature effort in rhyme and rhythm. That means little. But good poetry is being read. And that means a whole lot.

GUN ELEVATION

Great Britain's note protesting against the elevation of the big guns on the battleships of the United States as a violation of the Washington treaty raises an issue of treaty interpretation. It is still purely an academic question because Congress has not authorized the elevation of the guns—a job necessitating the expenditure of a large sum of money. It should be kept in the academic stage by referring the dispute to The Hague court for a decision. There are no questions that tease the repose of nations more suitable for judicial determination than those of treaty interpretation.

THE WEDDING HABIT

In many of the commercial contracts and industrial enterprises in which women are extensively employed the number who wear wedding rings is not on the increase. It is not that these rings are going out of fashion. A survey of the Western Electric Company shows that of 8700 young women on the pay roll less than 13 per cent have ever been hitched. At that more than 700 of them are admittedly over 35 years of age. In other lines there is evidence that the married women are not ousting the men from their positions. It is the girls who are competing. They are taking the job and holding it until the right man comes along and parts them from it. After all, a competent man has very little to worry about.

WHY SHOULDN'T GRANDMA?

No doubt some captious people will smile sarcastically at the news that a 94-year-old Porterville woman has bobbed her hair. And yet—

One of the chief reasons, or excuses, advanced for bobbing is that it saves so much trouble, makes the care of the hair so much easier. Then why shouldn't it be just the thing for aged women? Who else is so well entitled to take things easily, if possible? Girls and women who are young and vigorous haven't half as much excuse for bobbing, that's plain. Bobbing should, in fact, be distinctively the privilege of aged women and mothers of large families whose strength already is taxed to the uttermost.

It might even be an excellent idea to encourage all women to bob their hair as soon as they reach the age of 60. There ought to be some way of distinguishing the grandmothers from the girls.

No one should criticise the Porterville nonagenarian. She simply has shown herself to be wise beyond her years.

Besides that, she doubtless has the satisfaction of feeling that the operation makes her look as if she weren't a day over 30—as it does all the other grandmothers.

WOMEN OF NEW EGYPT

It was thought that when the women of Turkey were accorded all the liberties now allotted to the sex the Mahometan dames everywhere would be coming out into the open, bobbing their hair and taking off their blinders. This was the effect in part, but some reactions are noted. According to advices from Cairo, there is a wonderful growth in the membership of the Vozli, which is a religious grouping of Mahometan women. Those who belong must pledge themselves never to wear bright colors. They must never appear in public unless veiled and dressed in black and white. They are taught that the lure of gorgeous colors is responsible for much of the evil in the world and they are going to keep this poor old earth as pure as possible. It is possibly true that some purification would come if all our maidens hid their faces and garbed themselves in black. However, we are glad that this trend to moral safety has its origin on the other side of the world. It may be a long time in reaching us. Cairo gave us Little Egypt and the hoochee-coochee. It may now be merely doing penance.

"PORK BARREL" COUNCILMEN

The voters of Los Angeles will soon be urged to vote for this or that candidate for the City Council on the ground that "he will get us improvements for our district." It would be well for the voters, before promising to support any of these self-nominated municipal statesmen, to again look at their tax bills and read over President Coolidge's remarks on the subject of governmental economy. Improvements cost money. The whole country is still paying taxes on monumental and unnecessary postoffice buildings and other Federal "improvements" secured by "pork-barrel" Congressmen, who secured them for their districts in order to make a showing and retain their names on the Congressional pay roll.

The new charter, which will take effect July 1, at the same time the fifteen district Councilmen assemble at the City Hall to begin their two years' terms, provides that the annual budget of the expenditures of the city government shall be prepared by the Mayor, with the advice of the Director of the Bureau of Budget and Efficiency and the Comptroller. Requests for additional appropriations made during the fiscal year after the budget has been adopted must also first secure the approval of the Mayor.

Now the next Mayor, it is hoped, will take his duties seriously and make every effort to keep down the expenses of the city government and in carrying out this policy of Coolidge-like economy will be forced to say "No" to many requests from heads of departments for money, more money and still more money. The new charter provides that the Council can, by a two-thirds vote, overrule the objections of the Mayor to proposed appropriations. Thus, ten of the ward Councilmen can authorize the wasting of the taxpayers' money. Ten "pork-barrel" Councilmen can have a perfectly gorgeous time spending the people's money for the sole purpose of showing their district constituents that these ten Councilmen can "deliver the goods" and hence should be re-elected.

The city's finances are limited to $1.25 on each $100 valuation of Los Angeles property. During the next two years much of this $1.25 will be allocated by the charter to the park, playground and other departments, so that it will require the most careful work by the Mayor and his Director of Budget and Efficiency to provide the city with governmental necessities. In this work the Councilmen should co-operate to the utmost with the Mayor, and this they will do if they are not "pork-barrel" representatives.

A forceful Mayor and Council can put "pep" and efficiency into the city government without extra cost to the taxpayers, but when it comes to increasing the army of city employees and salaries, buying fleets of trucks and limousines, building a police substation where none is needed—these things cost money. It will be up to the next Mayor and City Council to exercise most careful judgment and to keep in mind the greatest benefit to the city as a whole before voting to spend the taxpayers' money. If they waste it, the people of Los Angeles may expect financial troubles at the City Hall, and a re-enactment of the occupational or business license tax in order to raise money enough to keep money in the city treasury to meet the running expense of the city government. Therefore, the greatest care should be used in selecting Councilmen under the ward system, for this method, more than all others, by its very nature often results in Councilmen being elected upon a platform of promises to their districts which they cannot fulfill without bankrupting the city government. And a "pork-barrel" Councilman will be more interested in trying to make good on his promises in order to retain his $4800-a-year job than he is sincerely interested in the welfare of the city of Los Angeles.

TAX EXEMPTION

It is time to call a halt on the hit-or-miss juggling of the mouth-filling phrase, "tax exemption." It has become quite the thing for amateur economists to rush into print with financial and industrial cure-alls based, for the most part, upon the mistaken theory that tax exemption is the same thing as tax relief.

Tax exemption does not relieve, reduce or delete the burden which rests upon the citizens to meet their share of the cost of government. At best it "robs Peter to pay Paul" by transferring funds from one pocket to another; at worst it increases the burden upon the taxpayers because of unequal distribution and maladjustment.

The overhead of government is bound to be met, and for every dollar of tax that is exempted another dollar must be inexpertly tacked on wherever it will make the least display.

The Tax Relief Association of California proposes, according to newspaper reports, to ask the Legislature to submit to the voters an amendment to the Constitution which will exempt $2000 worth of improvements on land to each individual. It is also proposed to seek abolishment of the personal-property tax, which, in a letter addressed to the Tax Relief Association of California by a retired manufacturer, is denominated "a good deal of a joke to everyone except the merchants and manufacturers."

Whatever else taxes may be, they are no joke. It is conceivable that our system of taxation may stand in need of revision, but we can't revise a tax by eliminating it any more than a corporation can do away with its operating cost by passing a resolution against paying its employees or its bills.

The science of taxation is a finely balanced, delicately adjusted mechanism and The Times hopes that well-meaning but perhaps misguided enthusiasts will not be led into the error of preaching an attempt to eat our cake and keep it uncut on the table at the same time. Tax exemption and tax relief are not synonymous terms and should not be confused in the public mind.

COURSE IN AUTO-DODGING

A school up in Oregon has established a course in automobile-dodging.

That's what you call practical education. That's keeping learning abreast of the times. Latin and trigonometry are all right in their way, but they won't save you from a skidding truck—and won't be any good to you after it has run over you. But the school which teaches auto-dodging marries learning to longevity. Its graduates should not only have much more chance than other graduates to serve the world through their full terms of usefulness, but should receive material rebates on their accident and life-insurance policies.

It is good for anyone to know that nowadays the open road is no place in which to do one's dreaming. One is far too likely to drop into the sleep which knows no waking.

Besides, educating pedestrians to dodge seems to be the only hope left. For all attempts to educate drivers to respect human life appear to have failed miserably.

"WHAT PRICE GLORY"

Let us not fool ourselves on the subject of battleship building. It is a familiar hypnosis that a public treasury exerts on people who are used to drawing on it. And don't let the Navy builders fool you by pretending to believe that you fool yourself. The argument that great navies and armies induce war is faulty. It was a mistake to hold that view and it is a mistake to use this argument with yourself on a strictly economic question, which is the waste of public money in military display.

It is great for Washington bureaucrats to dream vast navies—which we pay for. It is profitable business for industries interested in their construction and maintenance to urge military extravagance. But we support it and support it with more than our money, very much more, by the perversion of a very definite element in our national character.

Armies and navies neither prevent nor encourage wars. War is no longer the sanctioned and accepted politics of international dealers for which the blood and spirit and means of citizens pay.

Armies and navies do not attract war; they do not prevent war. The only way to keep other nations from picking on yours is the way individuals have found to prevent the world from treading on their toes—a bank account against a rainy day. A nation's resources are the surest way into or away from war. A nation is safe from attack in proportion to its ability to finance a defensive war, not in proportion to the size of its navy or army. It is a groundless superstition that armies and navies keep a country fit. Work keeps a country in trim for war, both in the prosecuting and paying for it.

This nation needs to curtail its talking about the horrors of war and think more about what war really is, its true causes and now common sense is its best preventive, not great armies and navies.

Once more President Coolidge is right in guiding his Navy policies by common sense instead of the hollow patriotism of contractors, the naturally professional bias of Washington bureaucrats, and the blither of sentimentalists who can't yet understand that there is nothing miraculous, supernatural or mysterious in international relations. Look at it from a cold business viewpoint—it is absurd to keep ourselves nationally broke building battleships in foolish rivalry with other nations. Should there ever be another great war, which heaven forbid, it will be decided by the economic power of a nation to hold out longest, not by the actual armament at the time when hostilities commence.

MAD MIXTURES

An eminent writer on world politics and diplomacy carries an illuminating story concerning President Kalinin of Soviet Russia in the Saturday Evening Post. It is also an interview and indicates some of the ideas that flutter through the Kalinin brain. The Russian executive is merely a figurehead so far as the government of the nation is concerned, and it is said that he was picked by Lenin because of the trust and confidence reposed in him by the peasantry, who might become terrible if aroused against the government. It is his mission to convince rural Russia that soviet rule is spreading over the world and is a worthy advance in government. This is a hard task in the face of the terrifying facts, but Kalinin is still holding the line.

According to the interviewer, this bulky Russian has some strange fancies which he would like to inflict upon America. For one thing, he says we have too much money in America; also too much luxury. He says that here there are lots of men who have motor cars for their own use. He would put such a high tax on gasoline that nobody would use an automobile except for practical purposes. There would be no riding for mere pleasure. That would be attended to through busses provided by the state. He also asserts that there is too much class and race distinction in this country. He would correct this by compelling racial intermarriage for several generations. In this way a nation of real workers would be produced. That at least is the Kalinin opinion as indicated to an American journalist. To a man up a tree it would seem that the program which the Reds have arranged for America would not be very popular even with our advanced Socialists. Better a blind beggar on Broadway than a soviet boss in the Kremlin.

Just About It
by James J. Montague

NOTHING TO FIGHT ABOUT

Time was when a couple of heirs to a throne
  Got suddenly out of accord,
Over which when the King passed away, should be known
  As the sovereign ruler and lord,
The world sat up swiftly and bated its breath,
  And business was almost suspended
For it knew there'd be battle and murder and death
  Till the trouble between them was ended.

Full half Mr. Shakespeare's most blood-curdling plays,
  As the person who reads them will find,
Recited the many and various ways
  That they fought out disputes of this kind.
These dramas, we're told, very easily stirred
  The people the bard used to write for,
But John and the Henrys and Richard the Third
  All really had something to fight for.

As for Cyril and Nicholas, who, it appears,
  Although safely in Paris they are
And closely secluded, are both by the ears
  Over who has the right to be czar,
One cannot quite see why they mutter hard names,
  And grow extremely unpleasant,
In pressing their futile and tenuous claims
  For a job that's not open at present.

  In the seat of his royal relation,
He wouldn't dare take it, because he'd be chased
  By the Bolsheviks out of the nation.
And so all the rumpus and fuss that they make
  In this most unimportant endeavor
To strive for a crown that they never would take Occasions no interest whatever!

HOW IT STARTED

BY JEAN NEWTON

"Duffer"

Since gold came into popularity our ears are becoming more attuned daily to the sound of the word "duffer." And there is food for thought in the history of the word.

A duffer was originally a peddler or hawker of flashy articles such as sham jewelry, silks and imitation laces. Since there was much sharp practice in the selling of such goods, which were frequently represented as of great value and offered cheaply under the pretext of having been smuggled into the country, the word "duffer" came to be used as synonymous with a sham or cheat. The implication, of course, was one of particular sharpness and shrewdness.

By what turn or twist of mind or circumstance the word was extended or changed to indicate awkwardness and incompetence, as it is used by us today, has not been discovered. It is a clear jump, therefore, from the origin of the word to its modern use, no trail having been blazed over the route it has traveled in its journey.

It Can't Be Done

All sane persons agree with the ruling of a Baltimore magistrate that it is a crime for a fellow to be driving a motor car when a girl's arm is around his neck. Anyhow, 'tis foolhardy to face two perils at one and the same time unless the crisis is unavoidable.—[Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

LETTERS TO The Times

DIVIDED WE FALL?

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Re your most excellent cartoon in today's Times dealing with the question of increasing the gasoline tax to the unfair disadvantage of southern California, allow me through your columns to give vent to the feelings of these many years.

Fellow-citizens of our Southland, you know in your hearts that the far-flung fame of California would have long since passed and died with the ending of the gold rush which in '49 first brought fame to this State were it not for the ever alert, wide-awake, progressive, far-seeing Southern Californian; why then should we of the south continue to live in the house of our brother of the north, when we well know that our brother would strip us of our birthright were he given the opportunity, yea, verily does he speak evil against us to our enemies on every occasion.

I am a man of peace, a believer in harmony and unity, for in unity is strength, but I also believe that a house that is divided against itself cannot stand any better today than in the days when the Scriptures were written; then, friends of the Southland, I ask you, is it not time that California of the south divide itself from California of the north? Let us have two States, Southern California and Northern California and then watch the greatest era of expansion and prosperity that Southern California has ever known or ever even dreamed of.

"In His Name"

PASADENA, Jan. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Many hearts have been touched because of the sad loss of life in the country schoolhouse down in Oklahoma. It seems to me that it would be fitting to send some real Christmas to those unfortunate survivors who must carry the burdens of the terrible calamity.

I am inclosing a check, and if the many who can, will just contribute a few dollars each, it will be of great help to those whose hearts have been sorrowed so much. Some have been left orphans, and California, with all her love and generosity for humanity, should send several thousands of dollars to aid those stricken souls.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The Savior of mankind—who gave us Christmas—sanctions and pleads for just such deeds, and I trust that your splendid paper will back this move, and that you will find some way to properly divide the donations.

I suggest this in His name.

Getting Data.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24, 1924.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This is a note to express the season's greetings and our appreciation of the great part which your newspaper is playing in the collection of motor accident data, to the end that these hazards on our highways may be minimized.

You may be interested to know of Secretary Hoover's comment on this situation in his address before the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in which he said:

"It is interesting to note the attitude of our great daily newspapers. . . . Today over two hundred great newspapers are co-operating with the national associations in a daily study and analysis of the accidents happening in their respective communities. I dare say there is not a progressive newspaper in the United States which is not making an organized drive on traffic conditions in their cities."

Blames It on Nature

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your editorial on prohibition of December 23, you say that we should not condemn the Volstead Act because it is violated, as other laws such as those against murder and burglary are also violated. I hardly think that your reasoning is sound. The Volstead Act is violated by all classes of society, while laws against murder and burglary are only broken by the worst elements in society. I happen to associate with many of the best people in this State and all of them, except those who are total abstainers, freely violate the Volstead Act. As an engineer I also come in contact with the best part of the laboring class and the same is true as to them.

The laws of nature cause fruit juices to ferment and to produce up to 14 per cent of alcohol without the intervention of human agencies. God never intended human laws to repeal the laws of nature, nor can this ever be done and successfully enforced. Hence, people who use their reason refuse to bow to any human law which seeks to repeal a natural and unchangeable law of physics.

A Child-Lover

Among the treasures of Field-Marshal Lord Allenby is a remarkable collection of children's letters, most of them written to him during the war by tiny refugees.

All children worship the famous soldier, and when he visits a children's hospital or a nursery—as he does on every possible occasion—he is claimed at once as that most benevolent of relatives, an "uncle."

One of Lady Allenby's duties during the war was to keep her husband supplied with toys and sweets for his innumerable child friends in the war zone.—[Western Weekly News, England.

The Woman and Her Job

By Gertrude Christian

[Letters concerning the problems of women will be answered in this column if addressed to Mrs. Watrous at The Times.]

POUNDS, SHILLINGS AND PENCE

Isn't it fine to be convinced that your own country and its institutions are the best in the world? You know, it's a lot like family pride. It's a bit amusing, though, when we take the stand that everybody's crazy save thee and me, and sometimes thee is a little . . .

There was an English woman in town a little while ago who seemed to believe it her mission to tell me how futile our commercial methods really were. Her special grievance seemed to be the confusing way we applied to our money . . . Ha, I don't mean "easy." She told me it was dreadful that we placed a certain piece of money under one day and 25 cents the other, the one quite solemn about it. And then to add further insult to an orderly mind we called something a "two-bit piece."

I was mean enough to remind her that her precious shilling was called a "bob," when one wandered about Piccadilly. She grew quite excited about it.

Of course, her trouble was that in counting her money in her hands, our silver pieces in her hands, naturally translated them into pounds and pence; our dollars into . . .

I had been a book-keeper in a very superior one." I said, but she couldn't work out of our "ridiculous system."

"Well now, Madame, what am I to do? I am here . . . I want my money getting here. I ask you, am I to live if I must practice my profession?" I was not about the way she said it.

For a full minute I staggered under the weight of my responsibilities. Nothing ought to be done . . . We Americans had got a shabby trick. Should Washington? The Secretary of the Treasury might change our "coin of the realm" into pounds, shillings, pence, bobs, angels and . . . I almost summoned a telegram.

I was near my dinner hour. I feared that she should come . . . She was lonely, poor dear; didn't have a soul in Los Angeles. A tear went on my shoulder . . . I astounded that I should . . . to sit at the table of a woman with a strange woman. . . . Is it every night, of course . . . sometimes it's a man. I . . . to tell her she was taking . . . dinners as I was. I remember . . . she might not understand my American humor.

I remember the Englishman . . . told it took a surgical operation to make a Scotchman see a . . . and then a Frenchman said; "Oh, no English joke." . . . It had a long talk that night. . . . told me how rude all the . . . women in the employment . . . were and how she had been . . . them properly." It didn't . . . like a very good "approach" . . . selling herself for a job. If . . . going to get something the . . . follow her to give, honeyed . . . will go farther than acid. . . . don't tell me that . . .

I'll get to the understanding . . . she had come to California . . . because she wanted to live . . . that the quickest way to get . . . was to fall in line with . . . do that; to adopt the ways . . . country. First of all she . . . learn to think in the language . . . new land.

I met her in the cafeteria where . . . a supply of silver coins . . . to make. She had her first . . . thinking of nickels and . . . a shilling is twelve pence, . . . a quarter is . . . a . . ."

"Well," says I. "A quarter . . . which we call copper, . . . they are made of . . . and 25 takes 100 of them . . . Therefore each one . . . 1 per cent of $1." And . . . to know in coins, foreign . . . dimes, went on.

. . . very minutes of intensive . . . been speaking the tongue . . . adopted country. When we . . . decide we stood beside . . . cashier's desk a few minutes. . . . standing in your jolly . . . way, you know," she . . . you're really not half bad . . . to get to know you."

I met another alien thrusts . . . the exit.

SHARING A NAME

Do I not consider it an unforgivable affront for her sister to employ a maid of the same name as herself? Is she not right in declaring she will never enter her sister's house while that maid is in it.

This, if you please, is the palpitating question I am asked to decide. Mrs. Esther G. says that, upon her mother's recommendation, she has agreed to accept my advice in the matter.

It appears that Mrs. G. and her sister live in the same block. And both are socially prominent in their small town. And, until this painful denouement, they were the best of friends.

But sister went and hired a maid named Esther—who turned out to be a peculiarly good maid. Excepting only that when Mrs. G. protested about her having the same name as herself and suggested that Esther, the maid, should thereafter respond to the name of Annie, Esther, the maid, announced that she jolly well wouldn't do anything of the sort. She would remain Esther or leave.

Mrs. G. therefore considered that Esther should be allowed to leave forthwith. But, alas, sister opined otherwise and saw no reason why she should part with a good and satisfactory maid just because her name was Esther.

It was then that the insulted and affronted Mrs. Esther G. issued her ultimatum. "I told her I would never enter her house again so long as that girl was there," she writes.

For two unpleasant months she has kept her word. But their mother, distressed at the situation, has tried to make peace. And now she has persuaded both sisters to accept my verdict.

Well, dear Esther G., I am afraid I am against you. You have missed an opportunity to be gracious. You are making a mountain out of a molehill. I certainly advise that you magnanimously rescind your ultimatum.

But, at the same time, you weren't entirely unusual in your resentment. It is a very human trait to object to sharing one's name. We scarcely ever like people whose name is the same as our own. They seem to possess something that should be exclusively ours. We can bear up bravely enough if the person happens to be a stylish celebrity, we can endure it when they are our social equals, but we all have that queer little sense of resentment when their walk in life is less impressive than our own.

Haven't you been in companies where persons of the same name are of the party? And you will surely hear both of them hastening to explain that they are in no way related. None so quick to repudiate all the other Almas in the world, for instance, as myself.

But all the same, it isn't a human trait that we should encourage. It is, of course, a species of cheap vanity that we should be ashamed of. So although I can quite understand you not liking your sister's maid answering to the same name as yourself, you were wrong not to conceal your feelings.

And oh, my dear, it couldn't possibly be worth quarreling with a beloved sister over. Besides, we all know how precious a good maid is. Think of her very righteous emotions had she been dismissed for no other reason than that her name was Esther! And really, I don't think she can be blamed for standing firm against "Annie" — that really was offering her a very gratuitous insult. I am not sure that you don't owe her an apology.

And lastly, most ardently do I advise you to "avoid ultimatums." Swallowing an ultimatum is quite horrid—and one so often has to.

Mrs. E. M. Potts and Mrs. William S. James were hostesses at a dinner party given to their family and a few intimate friends at the California Club Sunday evening, the occasion being to announce the engagement of Miss Sigrid Braten to Laurence Harry Cooper. Mr. Cooper is a relative of Mrs. James's, and for the past year has made his home with her. Miss Braten will be remembered by a host of friends as a graduate of Marlboro School and a student at University of California, in Berkeley, where she was deservedly popular. Miss Braten makes her home with her father in North Virgil street.

Dinner and Ball

Fairly launched on the tide of 1925, society of Los Angeles and Pasadena finds itself still dancing and, although the holidays were filled with so many smart affairs that attention to one's engagement book was essential, there are still many other affairs planned for this month, among them being the formal social opening of Hotel Maryland's season next Saturday night. This is always one of the loveliest affairs of the winter and of great social importance, marked by an unusually brilliant entertainment, taking the form this year of a dinner with entertainment and followed by a ball, the theme of the evening to be "California, the All Year Land of Play," the entertainment in song and dance suggesting the quick transition from the snowbound East to the land where golf, motoring, polo, tennis and the varied water sports are always available. The Maryland was unusually brilliant at its New Year's Eve ball, bidding farewell to old 1924 and welcoming in the young 1925 with noisemakers of all kinds and descriptions and the ball following the Rose Tournament and football games was one of the most attractive for many seasons, many guests motoring over from Los Angeles and adjacent cities as well as a coterie of visitors from the north, Santa Barbara and San Francisco.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon

AT ELEVEN in the morning the elegant Parisienne alights from her motor on the Avenue Bois du Boulogne or at the entrance of the Allée des Acacias in the wood itself and walks briskly for an hour before lunch. If she has no luncheon engagement, she wears a gray tailleur, but if she is going to the Ritz and from there to her dressmaker, she wears one of the new tailored frocks. The redingote line which one arrives at by way of a long-vest front is smart and makes a very correct costume for the fore-and-after noon engagements of a non-social nature.

PROTECTION OF DAM SITE REQUESTED

Angeles Forest Supervisor Asked to Deny Permits for Erection of Cabins

R. H. Charlton, supervisor of the Angeles National Forest, has received a request from the Board of County Supervisors to withhold permits during the next ten years for the erection of cabins or summer homes near the site of the new San Gabriel dam. The permits referred to are those allowing individuals and resort owners to rent government land for the purpose of making improvements.

Supervisor Charlton announced work has been started on new firebreaks in the Arroyo Seco watershed. The purpose is to more adequately protect the Pasadena water supply against depletion through forest fires. Additional firebreaks will be constructed throughout the Angeles National Forest this winter, Charlton said.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

TWO-THIRDS SHRUNK

If you joined our reducing class on January 3 you have completed your three-day shrinking-the-stomach period.

I notice other writers are giving this term "shrink the stomach" now for reducing. It really is a good term. I coined it and if anybody should be able to coin terms on reducing it is truly yours. Now I'm boasting and boasting is usually considered an evidence of inferiority complex, but in this case we will have to think of it as the reverse. I have had to fight overweight myself ever since I can remember and I have succeeded—most of the time—and if there is anything that makes me feel superior it is the conquering of overweight. The Good Book hath it that "he who conquereth his spirit is greater than he who ruleth a city," or something to that effect. You have been conquering your spirit (in this case, your appetite) for three days now, and I'll warrant that you feel superior and wonderfully exhilarated both in mind and body.

You have been having 600 calories for three days in the form of your morning beverage and one slice of toast with a scraping of butter and with four glasses of fruit juices or five glasses of skim or buttermilk the balance of the day. I told you that today you might have 200 calories more of food in the form of two extra slices of bread or eight dates. If you feel that you are strong enough to continue this semiliquid diet longer, it will be a good plan to do so. Those of you who have only ten or fifteen pounds to lose can lose nearly all of it. Some of you have lost ten pounds already. Those who do not wish to continue on the 600 or 800, can have 200 more tomorrow, making a total of 1000 calories. You can divide these 1000 calories to suit yourselves, but if you want most of them in one good meal, either at noon or dinner, or if you want them in several smaller meals, it makes no difference.

It is wise to get on to the regime that you are going to carry through your reducing period as soon as possible, and for that purpose I suggest: Breakfast, 100 calories; lunch, 400 calories; tea time, 100 calories; dinner, 400 calories.

For breakfast, if you are used to coffee, you will want that. If you take cream or sugar, or both, you will have to count a tablespoonful of thin cream thirty-five calories, and a tablespoonful of thick cream seventy calories. A cube of sugar is approximately twenty-five calories. It is best to learn to like your beverage unsweetened. You certainly can do without cream and sugar together. If you take your coffee plain that will allow you 100 calories for toast or fruit.

Lunch: Plate of clear vegetable or meat broth (no fat,) twenty-five calories; ten ounces of skim or buttermilk (one ordinary glass is eight ounces); 100 calories; one slice of whole wheat bread (toast if preferred) (one-half inch thick) 100 calories; one-fourth level tablespoonful of butter, twenty-five calories; one poached or boiled egg, seventy-five calories; one good-sized apple or orange, seventy-five calories. Total, 400 calories.

Tea time: 100 calories for fruit or skim or buttermilk.

Dinner: Clear soup (see lunch time,) twenty-five calories; very lean meat or fish, three by two and one-half, or two heaping tablespoonfuls of cottage cheese (no cream) 100 calories; one-half cupful tomatoes, canned or raw (no fat) twenty-five calories; one large serving lettuce, or raw spinach, twenty-five calories; Dressing made from one-half tablespoonful oil (fifty calories) and lemon juice, one tablespoonful (practically no calories) fifty calories; one slice bread (one-half inch thick) or one medium potato, 100 calories; one medium baked apple (no sugar) seventy-five calories. Total, 400 calories.

You may save your twenty-five calories of hot soup to take before retiring. Or you can get some of the vegetable and meat bouillon extracts and make a cupful of broth from these. They are practically calorieless.

Tomorrow—What You Will Sidestep by Reducing

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 10 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible if they are of general interest. Don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

ORE BODY EXPLOITED

Kay Mine Near Phoenix Working on Extensive Development

Development of the original ore-body of the Kay mine, fifty miles north of Phoenix, recently found on the 1200-foot level, is proceeding satisfactorily under direction of Manager Ralph L. Healy.

The body at that level is eighty feet wide, of good milling grade and carrying streaks of antimonial sulphide and grey copper running up to over $2 per cent, with about four ounces of silver and some good values in gold. Drifts are being run north and south along the footwall of the ore-body and at last reports were both in good ore.

A Prescott pump, with capacity of 250 gallons a minute against 1250-foot head, has been installed at the 1200-foot level and is expected to take care of the entire flow of the mine, pumping direct to the surface.

S. J. Tribolet of Phoenix who developed the property in its earlier history and is now a director of the Kay Copper Corporation, recently completed an inspection of the mine.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Tod C. Woodworth has taken an option from L. W. Johnson on the Walkover mine, eight miles from Hackberry. The property, at 300 feet depth, is said to have a developed tonnage of milling ore which will be treated in its own mill. Tax sales have been advertised by the County Treasurer against the White Hills Mining Company and Emerald Isle Copper Company, covering some of the best known mining property of Northwestern Arizona.

HE LOSES SLEUTHING GARB

Detective Whose Fine Raiment Was Seized in Raids on I.W.W. Asks Supervisors to Find or Pay

Maybe this explains the crime wave.

Officer William F. Hynes of the city police, has lost his detecting clothes. When the old-time detective went a-sleuthing, he used to pack up a half-dozen wigs, four or five false beards and mustaches and some assorted costumes of street-car conductors, blind beggars, drunken sailors and so on, and fly to it.

But not so the modern sleuth. No wigs. No trick whiskers, no exotic disguises.

Silk shirts and plenty of them. Brand new B.V.D.'s. A new gray hat. Blue pants. Such is the equipment of the up-to-date sleuthhound, it is revealed in a letter received by the Board of Supervisors.

HE WANTS 'EM BACK

Hynes wrote the letter. He wants his silk shirts, his B.V.D.'s, his blue pants and his new gray hat, and several other things back or he wants $145 from the county, he declared in definite terms.

"When this man goes detecting, he goeth like the bridegroom, or at least equipped to blossom out like a bridegroom any minute," observed County Counsel Bishop, to whom the Supervisors referred Hynes's claim. Bishop took it home with him to ponder on over the week-end after all the crossword puzzles in the papers were attended to.

Officers Hynes in his letter declared that his trousseau got tangled up in a court case as Exhibit D or something, and that he never was able to get it back, and he wants to know what the county proposes to do for a citizen in that kind of fix.

CIVIC CENTER TO BE TOPIC AT CITY CLUB

Toyohiko Kagawa, famous Japanese social worker and author of "Across the Dead Line," will be the special guest of the City Club next Saturday at noon when he will give an address on "Social Reform in the Orient."

COURT EDICT IN DIVORCE IS APPEALED

Man Holds Judge Erred in Directing Him to Build Home for Wife

Whether R. E. Sullivan must buy a lot and build her a home in order to obtain a divorce as required by Superior Judge Summerfield is expected to be decided today when Sullivan applies to the Second District Court of Appeal, Division Two, for a writ of mandate to compel Judge Summerfield to issue a final decree contrary to orders.

As a condition of the interlocutory decree Judge Summerfield provided that Sullivan should see to it that his wife was properly housed before they separated. When Sullivan applied for the final decree he was ordered in contempt of court and denied the separation because the house had not been built.

It is the contention of Sullivan's attorneys in asking the higher court to order the issuance of the final decree, although conditions of the decree have not been complied with, that Judge Summerfield overstepped his legal authority and cannot require Sullivan to build a home.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

HALF MILLION HENS WANTED

That Many Layers Sought by Association

Contracts Now Being Signed in San Fernando

Output of Million Future Plan of Organization

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, Jan. 4.—The Poultry Producers of Southern California, the association in which most of the poultry and egg-raising interests of Van Nuys are allied, is in the midst of a campaign now to sign up contracts for 500,000 hens of the white leghorn variety, it is stated today by Bert R. Holloway, largest producer here and one of the pioneers of the Van Nuys chicken industry. According to Holloway the association already has signed up ranchmen with 458,000 laying hens, and he gives assurance that the remainder will be obtained before the annual meeting of the association on the 30th inst.

MARKET STABILIZER

The poultry association was organized in 1917, and within the last eight years has made Van Nuys and other parts of San Fernando Valley an egg-raising center in Southern California through the stabilizing of markets and guaranteeing sure sale for every egg produced in this section. The association operates from its own building in Los Angeles and ranks among the best of the co-operative marketing organizations of the State.

The new contracts about to be made between the association and egg-producing members will be predicted upon the signing up of the 500,000 hens. Holloway states that all contracts on that basis, from now on will be indeterminate, the idea of the association for the future, being to operate on the 500,000-hen basis as the minimum source of contracted supply.

PUTS VAN NUYS ON MAP

"Our association," Holloway said today, "is now among the best functioning in the State. Time and again its has proven its ability to stabilize our selling markets, and, more than anything else, it has placed Van Nuys and the rest of San Fernando Valley on the map as a poultry and egg center.

"We are just beginning to show results on large scales. Scores of eastern people are coming into the valley and are opening up chicken ranches of various sizes from one to five acres, all of which will increase egg and poultry production in this territory.

MILLION HENS WANTED

"The association aims this year to operate on a 500,000 laying-hen output. In 1926 new contracts probably will call for 750,000, to be further increased to 1,000,000 hens as fast as new producing egg ranches are developed.

"There will never be any doubt about a quick-consuming market for these eggs. Los Angeles now is using more eggs than we can produce, while California eggs in the East or Middle West are just like so much actual cash if we can continue to guarantee a steady supply to meet the demand."

AWAIT DECISION

Court Ruling Promised in Case of Long Standing

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 4.—Decision by the Appellate Court at Los Angeles on the question of the legality of the proceedings under which East San Diego was annexed to San Diego is expected any day by City Attorney Shelley Higgins, who said he had been assured the question would be determined shortly after the first of the year.

Antiannexationists in East San Diego have consistently fought the case on the ground that election at which the adjacent community voted to become a part of San Diego was not legally held. East San Diego's municipal offices were taken over by San Diego more than a year ago, but a special set of books has been kept, pending the higher court's decision.

The election was held late in 1923, but the case has been in court ever since. City officials are confident the court will decide the election was valid.

SAN DIEGO CASE IN COURT AT SANTA ANA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 4.—Arguments of law in the city's suit to condemn that part of El Capitan dam site owned by the Cuyamaca Water Company will be heard in the Orange County Superior Court next Friday. The arguments will be on the demurrer of the Cuyamaca company to the city's petition to condemn. The Cuyamaca company contends in its demurrer that the city has no legal right to condemn the property.

If the ruling is in the city's favor, a jury then will be impaneled to fix a valuation of the dam site. A number of witnesses for San Diego will testify.

OFFER ATTRACTIVE SITE FOR COLLEGE

CITIES COMBINE TO ATTRACT NEW BRANCH OF STATE UNIVERSITY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, Jan. 4.—A meeting will be held here on Monday of representatives of a score of neighboring cities to agree to an offer of 1000 acres of land, including the crest of the Palos Verdes Hills, on which can be built the most magnificent Acropolis in the world, for a site on which to locate the $6,000,000 branch of the University of California.

The site, which the committee which meets here Monday is empowered to offer, includes, it was stated, all the factors which its sponsors believe make it the most desirable, two of the greatest being size and location. Another factor, transportation, is equally desirable, it is promised. Hugh Pomeroy, secretary of the County Regional Planning Commission, has promised a 200-foot highway, an extension of Angeles Mesa Drive, through from Manchester avenue straight into the proposed campus. There is also assurance that the Pacific Electric would extend its lines should the site be accepted.

Figures given out at a meeting yesterday at Redondo by Prof. H. T. Corey, noted engineer, were that there are four times as many high school graduates at Berkeley from greater Los Angeles than from greater San Francisco, and more than half as many more from south of the Tehachapi than from north of that range. He predicted that 10,000 students would be enrolled the first year the university would be opened.

A stadium to seat 150,000 people, a Greek theater to seat from 5000 to 10,000, a senior high school not only for the pupils of the university community, but also to be used as a training school, would be included in the plan. The lofty location, overlooking land and sea, would attract the biggest educators in the country, it was said by Prof. Corey, and would eventually lead to making this the greatest university summer school in the world, because of its unrivalled and commanding site, at an elevation of 1600 feet, above the fogs.

Redlands Plans Floral Clock as City's Welcome

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, Jan. 4. — On the crest of Smiley Heights, several hundred feet above the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, where all those going or coming from the East may see it, Redlands will place a great flower clock that will be one of the attractive features of the best-known park and drive in the West.

W. C. Guerth, who is chairman of the committee of the Redlands Realty Board, is now studying the problems connected with the unique project. The cost of the flower clock has not been estimated, but will be installed by the city and taken care of by the park department.

The tentative plans call for a twenty-foot dial with ten-foot hands. The clock is to be set on the hills just above the new station of the Southern Pacific and the plan is to have it controlled by electricity or run by water power.

Mr. Guerth says that there will probably be no numbers on the face of the clock, but that letters will be used to form a greeting for those entering California. Greetings of fourteen letters have been suggested and the word "at" or "to" would be placed in the center. Planting of flowers would be such as to insure blooms all through the year.

MAKE CITY SURVEY

Glendale to Gather Facts About Municipality

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

GLENDALE, Jan. 4.—As the first move in a plan to conduct an industrial survey of Glendale, questionnaires will be sent out on February 1 to all Glendale firms with a view to gathering data which are to be included in the report that will be made to the Chamber of Commerce by M. N. Alderman, who has been working on Los Angeles and Burbank surveys, and who is now engaged in making a study of business conditions in San Bernardino.

The delay in sending out the questionnaires is to permit the merchants and factory owners time to compile the records of their 1924 business, so that the latest figures may be available. All Glendale industries will be listed and the resources of the surrounding territory will also be included in the report.

DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

AZUSA, Jan. 4.—The St. Francis Catholic Church, which has been completely rebuilt, was dedicated with impressive services this morning by Bishop Cantwell of the Catholic Diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego, assisted by many of the clergy from surrounding cities.

The beautiful little church was filled to overflowing with the congregation and visitors who attended the dedication. A Cabrillo of the Knights of Columbus of Monrovia and Pasadena in the full uniform of the order, and a Mexican society of Azusa, El Apostalado Socieda Oracion, with its 350 members in uniform added to the impressive services with their solemn rituals.

Solemn high mass, the Soram Episcipo, was celebrated and Bishop Cantwell delivered the dedicatory sermon in English. Monsignor McCarthy of Pasadena, followed with a dedicatory sermon in Spanish.

The visiting clergy who, in addition to Rev. Peter J. Quinn, priest of the Azusa parish, assisted the bishop in the mass were, Monsignor McCarthy, secretary of the bishop; Monsignor Cantwell of San Francisco; Monsigner McCarthy of Pasadena; Rev. Father George Donahue of Sacred Heart Church, Los Angeles; Rev. Father Mather of Ontario; Rev. Father Galvin of Pomona; Rev. Father David O'Connell of Pasadena; Rev. Father M. J. Hourican, S. J., of Hollywood, uncle of Father Quinn; Rev. Father Bennett of Sierra Madre; Rev. Father Lampkin of Pasadena; Rev. Father Marron of Monrovia; Rev. Father Devlin, the bishop's secretary.

The Roswig's Mass in G was sung and the music was especially beautiful. Armond Le Cuyer, a French artist and a friend of the rector, sang the baritone solos and other solos were sung by Jose Gutieres, Cassaria Achoa, Lupe Margula, Virginia Hatterick and Tony Ortuno, Jr.

The church and the priest's house just completed which have been made possible largely through the energetic efforts of Father Quinn, who came to Azusa about a year ago, have been built at a cost of about $13,000.

A grotto for the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, who is deeply venerated among the Mexicans, is one of the interesting features of the church. Like many of the shrines in European churches, it is a canyon cave showing a grotto with running water trickling over the rocks and mystical lights shining over.

The church is artistically and beautifully furnished and decorated.

At last night's meeting, it was decided to make the new organization a permanent one, a committee being appointed on constitution and by-laws, one on a dinner and organization meeting, to be held in Riverside in the near future and a third on publicity for all of Riverside and San Bernardino counties from which district it is proposed to draw the membership and in which it was announced there are now 120 members of the reserve officers as a nucleus, in addition to members of rifle and other clubs.

THIEVES HAVE CODE

Bay District Robbers Mark Homes of Victims

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 4.—Belief that thieves, responsible for the plundering of many homes in the last few days in Santa Monica's residential district, may have an efficient code method is revealed this morning with the findings of detectives of two code signs found on a house in which a robbery had been committed.

In small, neat handwriting under the doorbell at the home of M. E. Sayre, 537 Alta avenue, from which more than $300 worth of jewelry was removed, detectives found FM-1 inscribed. On the bottom of the door was found FM-4.

That the code is typical of that used by burglars is the belief of investigating officers, who hold that similar writing has been found on homes recently ransacked while occupants were away. The code system uncovered will assist, police said, in tracing the robberies to one organized gang.

DR. AKED READS FIRST SERVICE

Makes Plea for Fellowship in All Things

Congregation Divided Into Two Theaters

New Pastor, Dr. Dyer Conduct Twin Ceremonies

BY ALMA WHITAKER

With the coming of Rev. Charles F. Aked, D.D., LL.D., to co-operate with Rev. Frank Dyer, D.D., the Wilshire-Boulevard Congregational Church actually became twins yesterday. And two huge services were conducted—Dr. Aked's in the Forum Theater and Dr. Dyer's at the Ambassador Hotel Theater.

Dr. Dyer attended the Forum for a few minutes to introduce Dr. Aked, who, he declared, was timid in addressing the church as a stranger, in a strange city, but that rather did he feel that he himself needed the introduction, since he had only been in Los Angeles three years, during which time 470 members have definitely joined his church.

The beautiful Forum Theater was filled to capacity and many were turned away. It lent itself quite exquisitely to a religious service, with its hallowing lighting effects, its soft grandeau, its fine organ, and its veritable semblance of the canopy of Heaven overhead.

GIVES BIBLE READING

Dr. Aked appeared in his flowing academic robes, with the large sleeves striped in velvet. Dr. Dyer offered the invocation, and all sang the doxology—which Mr. Julius Johnson of the Forum, enhanced with his organ accompaniment.

Dr. Aked then gave us a Bible reading, which was followed by the singing of Dr. Aked's own hymn, "By Thy Spirit, God of Glory," and the extemporaneous prayer that followed was transformed into a peaen of thanksgiving by Dr. Aked, who enumerated so many of the world's blessings, including "this land of life and light and love and beauty here about us," and the ministrations of Dr. Dyer to the community.

The offertory was taken with the theater flooded with its sunshine lights and during a soprano solo by Mrs. George B. Gookins. Mr. C. Sanford Laird also contributed a bass solo during the service.

Dr. Aked opened his sermon with gratitude for "the overwhelming reception" that had been accorded him, and proceeded to express special gratitude for the generosity which prompted the Forum Theate, Company and Mr. Julius Johnson, manager and organist, to lend them the theater, which, he wished the congregation to understand, was not a commercial transaction. Dr. Dyer had previously asked the congregation to express their appreciation by attending the theater during the week.

Dr. Aked, who had been advertised as confounding the fundamentalists, took his sermon text from Hebrews XI, 39-43.

PICTURES COLISEUM

He pictured the Coliseum of Rome filled with its 87,000 spectators, the greatest known in that day, and its arena where the gladiators and athletes had "run well, fought well, lived well and died well." These, he said, were looking down upon the Hebrews addressed in the epistle, their spiritual ancestors, who, in the words of the text, "Without us could not have been perfect; could not have been complete."

The preacher enumerated the great who had preceded us, from Abel, who made better sacrifice than Cain, and down through the saints and prophets. And we, from whom "better things had been reserved," since we had known the revelation of "Jesus Christ, the Son of Righteousness, with light and healing in his wings" must so live that they might be perfected.

He told of the living creed, and quoted the words "I believe in the Holy Catholic Church, the Communion of Saints"—all good men in history were "at home with their God in the Holy Catholic Church."

In every nation, said Dr. Aked, every man who upholds righteousness is acceptable to God, and shares the faith, hope and love with the Saints in the Holy Catholic Church.

Dr. Aked declared there were few blessings that could be enjoyed in isolation. We cannot grow without fellowship. Lack of fellowship is death. He used the expression "Capital is so sensitive" to remind his congregation of the "living nerves, the invisible forces that connect the whole world, so that a 'rumor on Wall street'" can affect commerce in California. We are humbugs, the worst kind of humbugs, he said, when we say that we can benefit spiritually in lone and silent meditation.

SCIENCE COMMON SENSE

Science, he declared, is common sense at its best. And Darwin, properly understood, is one of God's greatest gifts to the human race, his thesis on evolution being great and true.

It was this fellowship with the departed saints, the great ones, who "could not be perfect without us," and our fellowship with the world, which should correct and evolve better business methods than buying in the cheapest market, selling in the dearest, trying to cut each others' throats, the everlasting rush and crushing struggle against each other.

"There is no hell but a common hell, no need but a common need, and fellowship is essential to mutual happiness, mutual help," said Dr. Aked, who analysed the psychology of the crowd, to prove that the mass mind was bigger and better than the individual mind, that the individual ever gains from the crowd. "Emotions are quickened, enthusiasm is easier in crowds." We could not last a month without Christian fellowship, he said.

Dr. Aked concluded by reciting a poem which embodied his text, an inspiration toward co-operation, not alone with the living but with the saints who have died before us and cannot be "complete without us."

The Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church will hold a banquet at the Mary Louise Westlake Park, on Thursday evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Aked and Dr. and Mrs. David Starr Jordan, the latter also being an associate pastor of the church.

PASTOR ADVISES TUNING IN TO "GOD'S WAVE LENGTH"

Rev. Mr. Urquidi Preaches From "The Times" Radio Station on "The Unchanging Christ"

"Tune in on the wave-length of God's Radio" was the advice offered the KHJ audience yesterday by Rev. Benjamin Urquidi, pastor of El Salvador Mexican Baptist Church, in his sermon, preached in Spanish, from The Times broadcasting station. Preaching on "The Unchanging Christ in a Changing World," Mr. Urquidi spoke in part as follows:

"Christianity, Based on Christ and His teachings, is the one unchanging factor in the ever-changing universe. Christianity is today the same power unto salvation that it always has been and always will be. Christ has power to heal infirmities according to His will and according to the power that worketh in the believer, but much more important than the healing of the body is the healing of the soul. The great business of the church should ever be the cleansing of the soul.

"The unchanging love of Christ has come down to us through the ages as the greatest thing in the world. Whatever peace there has been between individuals and nations was the result of the brotherly love inculcated by the greater love of the Prince of Peace.

"Men have attempted to get rid of Christ in two ways, by critical analysis and by logical analysis. However, when they have completed their destructive work, and done their worst, there stands Christ towering above the troubled sea of human speculation and doubt, like a lofty rock at whose solid base the angry waves foam out their rage in vain. There stands Jesus, in the firmament of human hope, like a star of the first magnitude above the multitudes of sorrowing, suffering, sinning humanity, growing larger, brighter and more splendid with each generation. Today, all over the earth, the nations are in commotion as they gaze upward, pointing with yearning and hope to Him as the lodestar of their lives."

MEANING OF HEAVEN DISCUSSED BY PASTOR

Dr. H. C. Culbertson, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, preached yesterday on "Three 'Excepts' of Jesus." He said in part:

"The word heaven has two meanings. First, it is a condition, not a place. When your heart is filled with love, faith and hope, then you are in heaven, regardless of all outward surroundings, sickness or health, riches or poverty. There is another sense in which Heaven is the circle of friendship binding together all those in whose hearts this heavenly attitude prevails. In this meaning of the word there is a heaven beyond the grave for all of the immortal ones who love Christ and seek to grow in the radiant character of the infinite God. In this sense also we pray 'Thy Kingdom come,' believing that this earth is to become a kingdom of heaven when the spirit of Jesus shall triumph and become the rule and ideal of life for all mankind. Jesus not only portrays heavenly character in the Beatitudes, but at various times He stated three absolute requirements for attaining it. One of these exceptions is that we must be born anew, that is, enter upon a new type of living as much superior to the selfish earthy type as the kingdom of flowers is superior to the kingdom of stones. Another is that we must enter this type of life by becoming like little children with hearts utterly trustful, teachable and humble. The third requirement is that our righteousness must be a righteousness not merely of conventional rules, cold pride and selfish respectability, but the righteousness of pure hearts."

HITS THEOLOGICAL DOCTRINE OF HELL

Declaring that the doctrine of eternal punishment outrages reason and blasphemes the loving Father of mankind, E. D. Sexton, in an address given yesterday at the Trinity Auditorium, under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association, drew for his audience a glorious word-picture of a redeemed world which he said the race is destined to enjoy. Mr. Sexton spoke in part as follows:

"Not many know that everlasting life upon the earth has been provided for mankind. We have been taught that there are but two places—Heaven and Hell—to one of which we are bound. If we leave heaven as our inheritance we cannot escape 'eternal torment.' The Christian religion has come largely into disrepute through this false premise. The doctrine of torment is not only false but blasphemous, for it outrages reason and belittles God Almighty. The Bible reveals the fact that God made the earth to be inhabited and that the earth has been given to the children of men. What a surprise it will be when the redeemed and restored human family discover the facts of God's plan, that they are to live on the earth. Passing over the heavenly phase, we see the earth made glorious and the human family restored to mental, moral and physical perfection. The people shall learn righteousness and inherit the land and dwell therein forever. The Lord will provide the panacea for every ill—financial, social, industrial and religious."

SPIRITUAL BIRTH IS DISCUSSED BY ISETT

"What did Jesus Teach About Rebirth?" was the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. W. C. Isett at Amanda Chapel. Mr. Isett said in part:

"Scientists deal with facts. Religious truths are facts and should be dealt with scientifically. When Jesus told Nicodemus, 'Except one be born anew he cannot see the kingdom of God,' He was stating a fact. Physical birth is a scientific truth; mental awakening is a scientific phenomenon; spiritual regeneration is a scientific fact: We are now in the period of the kingdom of God upon earth. Both John the Baptist and Jesus announced that it is at hand. But it is not yet fully established, for the disciples were taught to pray, Thy kingdom come. The kingdom of God is set in opposition to the kingdom of Satan or the kingdom of this world, as the kingdom of God is the kingdom of heaven. This material life had a beginning and will have an end. The spiritual life is eternal. Only by birth can one become a citizen or child of the kingdom of God. Evidence of rebirth is an interest in spiritual things. We therefore find regenerated people everywhere in the world, for the Spirit is as free as the wind that blows, and by Him are we regenerated."

LECTURER SAYS BIBLE IS SCIENTIFIC BOOK

That the Bible includes all truths of science and philosophy is the opinion expressed yesterday by Dr. Woodruff Sheppard in a lecture given to students of theosophy at 5617 Hollywood Boulevard. In part, Dr. Sheppard said:

"Consider what the story of creation, if taken seriously, would yield in the field of science. The biologist would be able to account for protoplasm through the organization of sensory with physical matter. The neurologist could approach an understanding of the evolution of the nervous system through the organization of mental matter with sensory and physical. The psychologist could ascertain the seat of consciousness in this three-phased personal man. The philosopher would have material from which to study relationships of body, soul and spirit. The religionist could locate the matter type in which his purgatorial and heaven worlds are located. Life after death would swiftly yield itself to demonstration for those not yet possessing knowledge of the continuity of life, the passing shown as passage from the physical body to one in and of the type of matter next in order. The Scriptures teach that the Christian should be leading in the ranks of science and philosophy owing to bigness of concept and adequacy of theory."

SAYS CHRISTIAN MAY BE VICTOR OF TIME

Rev. E. T. Coyner preached at the Epiphany Lutheran Church yesterday on "Our Victory Over Time." He spoke in part as follows:

"Time is short, irrevocable and evil. It behooves us to realize this. When we see the brevity of time we should not be discouraged. Our God has so arranged it that there is enough time for all necessary work and effort. There is time for everything under the sun. There is time enough to be saved in and time enough to help others to salvation. Let us only realize this and use the time alloted us faithfully for that purpose. We shall never have to beg for one moment more of time, and that, too, in vain. While knowing with Job, My days are swifter than a post, we are to be perfectly content that it is God's will."

REV. FRANCIS ABLE TO RETURN TO HIS PULPIT

On the first Sunday of the New Year, Rev. Dr. James A. Francis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, was able yesterday afternoon to return to his pulpit for the first time since he was taken ill eight weeks ago.

"It is the birthright of the human soul," said the pastor, "to be able to know God and to make itself like Him.

"There are two things that the Bible never argues. It takes them for granted. The one is the existence of God; the other, he can be known by men.

"In the Fourteenth Psalm are words: 'The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God,' but if you read a careful translation even of that verse you will find he is not talking about a man who has concluded that there is no God, but he is talking about the man who does not want any God.

"Everywhere the Bible takes for granted that the human soul is capable of knowing God. It teaches how God can be known, what kind of a God he turns out to be when known and what the effect is upon the soul knowing Him."

The great book of Nature, the revelations of history and His own Son reveal God to man, the pastor stated, and along this line he said:

"The God that make the universe must be greater than the universe.

"History from beginning to end is an unfolding of the nature, character and purposes of God.

"Turn to Jesus and in knowing Him you will know the only and true God."

Knowing God and knowing about God are very different, Dr. Francis said. What Jesus invites, he said, is to know God and when we know Him there comes to us divine help that we may be like Him.

Greater than business, greater than daily bread, greater than all, the pastor said, is this:

"The certainty of a personal acquaintance with Jesus Christ through obedience, faith, prayer, the blessed Book and through what He reveals in the secret chambers of the soul."

In closing, the pastor advised:

"Think who God is and who Christ is and tell me, do you think the living God would have come to earth unless He thought He was adequate to do the thing that He wanted to do—to be your Saviour and mine?"

TOOTHPICK CAUSE OF PAINS; NOT APPENDIX

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 4.—In October Jasper Roberts, living southeast of Warren, ate dinner and went into the living-room and lay on the sofa with a toothpick in his mouth. He dozed off and while sleeping swallowed the toothpick. He was ignorant of the fact at the time. A week later he suffered an attack of what was believed to be acute indigestion. Later he had intestinal suffering, and his case was diagnosed as appendicitis. An operation was performed and the toothpick was found protruding from the large intestine. It was removed and Roberts is recovering.

COLLEGE GIRLS INCREASING

Advent of Suffrage Brings Many More Women Into Professions, Seminary Mistress Asserts

The increase in the number of students at the colleges and universities of this country has been greater among women than among men during the last several years, particularly since the advent of women's suffrage, according to Miss Jean Dean Cole, head mistress of Mt. Vernon Seminary for Girls at Washington, D. C.

"With the right to vote has come an expansion of the field of women's activities," said Miss Cole. "When I first became connected with Mt. Vernon the student preparing herself for some vocation was the exception, while now it is the rule. The day has gone by when a woman thinks of an education merely as a means to acquire a smattering of learning and the usages of polite culture. Most women students today are bent on a career in the professions or business and they train accordingly."

LONG WAITING LISTS

The increase in the number of women seeking to enter the higher institutions of learning is revealed by the fact that at all the leading women's colleges in the East it is necessary to make application for entrance four or five years in advance, Miss Cole said. All have long waiting lists.

She added that coeducational institutions are also reporting a constantly growing number of women students. In this connection she expressed the opinion that attendance at a women's college is of greater advantage to a woman student than enrollment where coeducation prevails.

"A girl usually enters college at the age of 16," she said, "which is an age at which she is not ordinarily prepared to endure the double strain of keeping up her studies and at the same time taking part in the social activities of which there is always a greater number at a coeducational institution than in a women's school. I have no objection to coeducation in graduate work, but I believe a girl should spend her undergraduate years in a women's college."

TO ORGANIZE CHAPTER

Miss Cole, who is at the Biltmore, came to Los Angeles for a brief vacation and during her stay here will assist in the organization of a California chapter of the Mt. Vernon Seminary Society.

"We number fourteen Los Angeles girls among our students at the present time and our California alumnae number probably about 200," she said. "The organization will be formed at a tea to be given at the Biltmore this afternoon, with two of our former students, Mrs. James R. Page and Miss Margaret Martin, acting as hostesses."

CLEW TRACING TO BE SHOWN

Crime Experts to Explain Secrets of Bullet Tests, Blood Stains, Fingerprints and Writing

How a trained investigator may determine the caliber of a bullet fired and even the exact make of a firearm by studying the rifling marks on a piece of lead will be shown by J. Clark Sellers and Cecil C. Adams, experts on criminal identification and crime problems who will appear before the Southern California Academy of Criminology Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in Science Hall of the University of California, Southern Branch. Mr. Adams is in charge of the Los Angeles county bureau of criminal identification and Mr. J. Clark Sellers has a wide-spread reputation as an expert on questioned documents and is an authority on ballistics. Lantern slides will be shown of tests made with bullets, explosives, blood stains, finger prints and handwriting.

Capt. George S. McClary, commanding the Crime Prevention Bureau of the Los Angeles Police Department, will read a paper on "Juvenile Delinquency" and discuss the causes and prevention of crime, drawing largely upon his experience and observation as a police officer.

Dist.-Atty. Asa Keyes will deliver an address entitled "The Young Criminal," discussing the daily increasing number of crimes committed by persons of immature years and suggesting various remedial measures necessary in combatting this tendency.

The Southern California Academy of Criminology stands unique in the United States, and its membership comprises the Chief of Police, his executive staff and twenty division or bureau commanders of the police department; Sheriff W. I. Traeger, Undersheriff Eugene Biscailuz and the executive staff of the Sheriffs' office, Dist.-Atty. Keyes and his staff, State, county and municipal magistrates, the presidents or heads of educational institutions in this district and a large number of psychologists, neuropsychiatrists and criminologists. Membership in the organization must be obtained by unanimous election and there are no membership dues.

At each of its regular monthly meetings a dinner is served for members of the academy at the University of California, Southern branch, 855 North Vermont avenue, at 6:30 p.m.

TELLS OF MATE'S LOVES

Wife of Mexican Capitalist Asserts Husband Paid Heavily for Romances

Details of the love adventures with which Albert Francis Andrade, wealthy Mexican capitalist, is charged by his wife, Helen Louise Andrade, were supplied in an amended complaint in her divorce suit, which she has filed with the County Clerk.

These details were largely financial, relating to the amounts of money Mrs. Andrade asserted her husband had given to his asserted charmers out of the community funds.

First, according to the wife, there was a Miss Harris, who got $8000. Her successor, Mrs. Andrade related, was Margaret Plato. Miss Plato offered to turn over to her for a consideration—cash to accompany order—a bundle of burning love notes, she said. Mrs. Andrade declared she declined to take advantage of this opportunity.

The last of the trio of women named by Mrs. Andrade was Judith Lane Lavender and, according to her complaint, her husband's attachment in this instance was such that it caused him grief to be separated from her, even temporarily. For he told his wife, she said, that he came mourning around to her once, when Miss Lavender took a trip to Chicago. Andrade gave Judith real estate worth $8000, according to Mrs. Andrade.

Now he is in Mexico, and Mrs. Andrade is afraid he will try to take advantage of that fact in some way to deprive her of her share of the community property, she declared. She asked for $500 a month as temporary alimony and a fee of $25,000 for her attorneys, Newby & Palmer.

POLICE NAB SUSPECT ON DOPE COUNT

Asserted Peddler Taken After Chase; Two Others Lodged in Jail

Captured after a chase of several blocks, Leon Cleveland of 1431 Wilson street, an asserted dope peddler, was lodged in the City Jail yesterday on charges of violating the State Poison Act. He was arrested by Officers Shefield and Randolph, who searched him and reported they found ten bindles of morphine in his possession.

Expecting Cleveland to make a delivery, the officers waited for him at Fourteenth and Wilson streets. When he sighted the plain-clothesmen, Cleveland made a hasty retreat, running into a grocery store several blocks away where he was caught.

Two other suspected dope peddlers were arrested at Commercial and Los Angeles streets by Officers Seager, Phillips, Southard and Murphy after a similar chase. At Central Station the prisoners gave their names as Juan Gonzales and Francisco de la Cruz. Three bindles of cocaine were found in their possession.

SEEKS MISSING HUSBAND

An appeal to The Times to help locate her husband, Harvey J. Fleck, formerly a salesman for the G. B. Guyton Company, Twelfth and Los Angeles streets, was made yesterday by Mrs. Fleck, who lives at 320 South Sangamon street, Chicago. Mrs. Fleck said that her husband left his home address, 1511 South Vermont, on February 19 driving his automobile apparently to work and that she has not heard from him since. He is 50 years of age. A reward of $25 is offered for information as to his whereabouts and Mrs. Fleck says that their son is seriously ill and constantly calls for his father.

UNIVERSITY HAS TWELVE OIL CLASSES

Extension Division First Conducted Only One as an Aid to Those in Industry

Increasing interest in oil engineering subjects is indicated by the fact that the University of California extension division started one class in this subject two years ago and now has twelve.

From a single thirty-hour course, which covered the whole subject of oil engineering, the State university now gives 360 hours on the subject of refining alone.

Classes are conducted at Los Angeles, Long Beach and El Segundo. The Standard Oil Company requested that two courses be given in El Segundo for their employees and the university granted the request.

Shell Company employees take a course in lubrication in Los Angeles. Members of the classes are mostly men directly connected with the oil industry in both the field and refining departments. Included are chemical, electrical and mechanical engineers connected with the industry.

Siegfried Fischer, who gives these courses, trained at Columbia University and abroad. He has taught at Lehigh University and the Colorado School of Mines, been research chemist for the American Casine Company, in charge of the laboratory of the Leffler Celluloid Company, and in the research department of the Bureau of Water, Power and Light of Los Angeles. For the last three years he has given the courses in oil technology for the University of California extension division.

A course in combustion and heat met in Room 816, Hillstreet Building, the 2nd inst., from 7 to 9 p.m. A class in lubrication meets the 13th inst., from 7 to 9 p.m., in Room 15, Woodbury Building. The Long Beach class meets February 12, next, from 7 to 9 p.m., in Room 34, George Washington school.

BRIGHT FARCE

A BARE BEAR IS MAJESTIC'S "JUST MARRIED"

By Grace Kingsley

Authors of bedroom farces have been trying for years and years to put the unwed hero and heroine to bed together. They almost do it in "Just Married," which opened to hilarious laugh returns down at the Majestic yesterday afternoon. But don't be deceived by the title. They weren't married at all!

And while we are perfectly used to the heroine's being in undress, we gasped, all of us, a great, big, rousing gasp—when Eddie Horton leaped from his bed clad only in the briefest undies and his shirt. Poor Eddie! I'll just bet he catches the rheumatiz before the week is over!

A bedroom farce on the bounding main, in other words in the stateroom of an ocean liner, that's "Just Married." And a very funny farce it is. Now that Avery Hopwood has gone in for respectable drama, it would almost seem that his kimono, so to speak, has fallen on Miss Matthews's shoulders. She is also the author of "Nightie Night," and other b.r. farces. Anne Nichols helped her design "Just Married."

Eddie Horton, as the polite Van Bibberish souse who starts hazily off on somebody else's honeymoon, but without any bride—that is, who takes his bridegroom cousin's steamer tickets and steamer because his cousin finds he cannot go—is nonchalant, humorous, clever in his own quite inimitable way. Lovely little Dulcie Cooper as the girl in whose stateroom the said gentlemanly souse finds himself, deserves all the nice things that could possibly be said of her. She makes a most charming little character of the girl, where it would have been so easy to have been a mere stick, since most of the funny lines fall to others in the play.

There are some clever lines in the play.

"You are very wise, my dear," says one woman to another.

"Oh, you have to be, now-a-days, in order to seem as innocent as the men expect you to be," retorts the other.

"Say," says the bride, "it must be something just awful that's going on in there when it takes two men to tell me nothing!"

Excellent work is done by everybody in the cast, especially, other than the principals, by Barbara Brown as a little French girl. Barbara was smartly dressed for the part, and she wore a fetching little dagger in her garter. Winona Wilkes deserves praise for her brightly human and vivacious playing of the bride. Henry Shuman was great in the role of the grumpy old uncle, and the others, including Kenneth Gibson, Mildred Young, Elden Bullis, Fanchon Everhart, Pat Cullinan, David Callis, Walter Emerson, Thomas Chatterton, and Nat'an Shindell, were entirely competent.

The stage settings by Dickson Morgan were effective, especially a most attractive stateroom set.

GLENN HUNTER LURE AT METROPOLITAN

I'm just sure that when I see Glenn Hunter in his next role I'm going to exclaim: "Why, that young Merton fellow is doing just beautifully in his chosen profession, isn't he?"

That's how well he plays Merton in "Merton of the Movies," down at the Metropolitan.

"However, did they find anybody to play that Merton part so well?" I heard a sweet young thing remark as we were passing out of the theater after the picture was over. That girl was a discriminating critic, even if not well informed. Glenn Hunter's playing of the part, I was thinking all the time I was watching the picture, never could have been played as it was played without his having had that marvelous stage experience in it. He just is Merton, that's all.

With all due respect to the so-called high-brows, Harry Leon Wilson remains my favorite author. There's so much depth of meaning underneath the gay, bright humor. Most of us find, just as did Merton, that, when we think we have heard a call to do something "finer and better," it is, as Bill Nye says, some other noise we heard! The world wants something entirely different from us from what our dreams of our destiny had been.

As the movie-struck boy from the little town, comically playing the wooden mannikins in the country merchandise store were the heroine and villian of a movie, and who finally does make the grade in pictures away out in Hollywood, Hunter is simply great. He suggests Charlie Ray in his peculiarly boyish, ingenuous appeal. His acting is full of color and subtlety.

"Merton of the Movies" as transferred to the screen by James Cruze, is a combination of the book and the play, with just a very few changes. It is a painstaking job, and there are moments, I must confess, when one realizes the pain! It is too meticulously done to seem quite spontaneous. But no "Merton of the Movies" could be wholly bad, and this one is very good indeed. I did miss the lady casting director of the story, who was fashioned, I understand, after Nan Collins.

I think the public is ready to laugh at its own favorite indoor sport, the movies, and so it will welcome this gentle satire.

And when I saw Viola Dana as the "Montague girl" I knew just how the Montague girl must have looked and acted! Viola was saucy, daring, sophisticated, sympathetic, wholly delightful. But, oh, dear—why didn't they choose Viola for "Peter Pan"? Well, it's no use crying now.

BEN ALEXANDER IS STAR IN THIS

The wide open spaces between good pictures are getting to be very wide open, indeed, it seems to me. One of these gaps is "Frivolous Sal," at the California. It is just the old stuff, hokum mountain drama, even though the scenery of the wide open spaces of Oregon does almost redeem it. As a drama, "Frivolous Sal" is a great travelogue.

Why do the picture producers still employ writers of so little imagination that they have to butcher an animal to make a Roman holidays? And why, while the censors are about it, instead of looking to see if Lotta Legs hasn't enough clothes on, don't they take a peek at pictures like this, and investigate the things that are done to dumb beasts? A horse is deliberately killed to give a kick to one scene of the picture, and as for me and my companion that scene made us positively ill.

A horse falls off a cliff into jagged rock, and presumably passes out. I don't know how it could be otherwise. A lot of other people seem to feel the same way we did about it, for there was a real gasp of horror went up from the crowd.

Some day Will Hays is going to do something about the manner in which both actors and animals are subjected to great cruelties and risks in the pictures, to provide a cheap thrill to the nobrows. For there is tremendous potentiality of crime impulse in such scenes as these.

Mae Busch is the heroine, who grows into a serious girl after she marries a ne'er-do-well, and has Ben Alexander for a son. And Eugene O'Brien retrieves his wicked past when he fights the villain in one of those ore cars on a trolley over a deep valley, pushes the villain out, overturns the car, and falls out himself. Oh, of course, he is indestructible, and he, Mae and Ben walk off into the setting sun with their arms around each other.

"You're not going to die! You're going to live!" exclaims Mae to 'Gene. We knew it all the time.

Bennie Alexander is almost the star, with his marvelous, almost uncanny, emotional acting. Honestly, it almost makes you shiver, and you wonder if he knows an "alley" from a "commony." Mae Busch seems to me just a little more conventional than usual in her acting, though, of course, with her feeling for drama, she is excellent. However, I do so want her to keep her old emotional spontaneity. Eugene O'Brien has a pleasing personality and usually does such excellent work that it is a disappointment to see him, too, relapse into actory ways. Maybe it was the direction. Mildred Harris is a Clytie beauty, and does good work, as do also Mitch Lewis and the always-dependable Tom Santschi.

Walter Hiers makes a good New Year's start in his first two-reeler, "A Fat Chance," and Duane Thompson is dainty and clever as his leading lady.

Huntley Gordon With Warners

Huntley Gordon, after several years in motion pictures, is about to make his debut at the Warner Brothers studio. He starts work next Monday in "My Wife and I," in which he is contracted to play the leading masculine role opposite Irene Rich. He was loaned to Warners for this picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, to whom he is under contract.

GLENDALE PLAYERS TO GIVE MYSTERY COMEDY

"The Hole in the Wall," the mystery drama which will be presented by the Dobinson Players at the Playhouse, Glendale, beginning Wednesday, is proclaimed the best play of its type since "The Thirteenth Chair." Fred Jackson, the author, ingeniously combines the elements of suspense, surprise, deep drama and comedy in this story of the underworld, and while there are crooks in the play, it is not, in the accepted sense of the word, a crook play.

JEWISH THEATER TO INCREASE ACTIVITY

At a meeting last week of the executive board of the Yiddish Art Theater Association of Los Angeles, it was decided, in view of the success that has greeted the establishment of a Jewish Art Theater here, to stage two productions weekly at the Gamut Club, on Wednesday and Sunday evenings. Ellis Ranen, Jewish author and lecturer and formerly with the American Red Cross, administrator of the troupe, is busy rounding out plans for additional activities designed to establish Los Angeles as the center of Jewish art and culture in the United States, through the encouragement of and co-operation with Jewish writers, artists, sculptors, playwrights and the like.

One is invariably refreshed to see Mary Philbin on the screen—her work is always so superior to that displayed by the average film player. There is youth, spring, sunshine in her performances and she endows one with a new lease upon the beautiful things of life.

In "The Gaiety Girl," now screening at the Cameo, she is her old self, the piquant, charming mite of a girl. Much of the fleeting loveliness that was hers in "Merry-Go-Round" is visualized once more. In this picture, though, she seems even finer than in her first great part, for since then she has acquired greater poise and versatility and her role is not so drab in nature.

Though she could hardly be equaled—surely not surpassed —in her part of Irene Tudor, last of the house of one branch of that famous family, still, her best work is given when she has less regal roles to play. She is more convincing when she seems to suffer. In those sequences which take place in the slums, when she is on the verge of starvation, unable to get work, and later, when she joins the chorus, she is infinitely better than she is in the ancestral halls, Castle Pencarreg.

The story opens with Baron Tudor and his grand-daughter, Irene, who are about to lose their baronial estates, which their family has held from all invaders for over 900 years. A rich commoner buys the castle and the two Tudors are forced to leave, penniless, for London.

The girl, after a frantic search for work, finally joins the Gaiety Chorus, through the aid of a girl in the same rooming-house. The son of the man who purchased her grandfather's estate tries to win her hand in marriage, only to be repulsed. The man to whom she is pledged is in Africa, working his mine to buy back the castle.

Receiving word that her lover has been killed, and a few days later learning that the only chance to save her grandfather from dying is to take him back to familiar scenes, she finally accepts the young millionaire and returns to the ancestral castle. But on her wedding night her lover returns.

The possibilities for weaving the plot are manifold for the director, and King Baggot makes the most of them. His treatment makes the story a highly fascinating one, though the picture is somewhat too lengthy.

Supporting Miss Philbin are Joseph Dowling, William Haines, De Witt Jennings, Freeman Wood, Grace Darmond, James Barrows and Otto Hoffman. The cast is remarkably well chosen and enact their roles admirably. Baggot, the director, allows no one to overact or underact. Consequently, the results, taking into consideration both story and acting, are satisfactory.

ETCHES DRAMA

"SMOULDERING FIRES" HAS MANY RARE MOMENTS

By Edwin Schallert

This time, all is not superficial that glitters on the screen. Indeed, in "Smouldering Fires," there are flashes that approach pure gold, and if you are interested in an entertainment that is different—not so much perhaps in essence as in the character and sincerity of its treatment—I feel that I can truly commend the current attraction at the Forum Theater.

This picture is something deeper in idea and theme than the ordinary run of divertissements, and though it is gay with comedy and bright with sentiment, it is by no means wanting in fine shades of dramatic feeling. It has the fault of slowness, and has been too much praised in advance, but it is truly an earnest and zealous effort to tell sympathetically a story of romance and sacrifice that penetrates the shadows of pathos, even as it reflects an illuminating warmth of the heart.

In a way, it is unfortunate, I feel, that so much that is laudatory has been said ahead of time about "Smouldering Fires." Its virtues have been more widely chanted than those of any feature emanating from Universal in months. This has enhanced, even in advance of the showing here, the standing of the members of the cast, and of the director, Clarence Brown.

The picture does, as a consequence, arrive with too much pretentiousness on the screen. It is not, by nature, a spectacular or lavish feature, and though the name of Pauline Frederick is a brilliant one to adorn any cast, and though this feature is also one of the best for her personally that she has ever played in, even this does not alter the consideration that "Smouldering Fires" does not belong in the class of the elaborate.

The facts are, however, that it does tell a remarkable compelling story, in such a way as to convince that its director is destined, with opportunity, to be one of the ruling forces in film-making, even as he is now showing extraordinary promise and even attainment.

"Smouldering Fires" is far and away a stronger production than the last picture made by Brown—"Butterfly." It discloses more penetrating sketching of character and situation, a higher valuation placed on the importance of contrasts and, at times, that rarest of all things, artistic depth. In some of the best scenes, especially those just prior to the matrimonial mesalliance that forms the basis of the plot, one feels a searching emphasis on things not on but behind the screen—the mental states of the principals in the story. Through the very simplest gamut of expressions, and almost without anything in the way of acting, Mr. Brown—probably partly via the aid of his scenarist—has been able to convey here something really reaching the long-sought peak of psychology in the films.

I like immensely the way in which the picture ends without any solution of the problem. The fade-out simply glimpses the wife holding her husband and younger sister one against either shoulder. The fact has been planted that she will seek to free her husband for the sake of his and the girl's happiness. There is only the one present who really knows what she is doing and that is the foreman of the factory that she owns.

As the light fades out, however, you can, if you wish, sense in the faces of the sister, at least, and the husband, possibly, a dawning recognition of the sacrifice.

The fascination of Miss Frederick's performance can hardly be satisfactorily estimated in the space of this review. In many respects she proves more truly her skill in acting in "Smouldering Fires" than in any feature she has made since her return, Lubitsch's "Three Women" even not excepted. I feel that she was forced to overdo the effects in some of the climaxing scenes, but elsewhere her work has a balance and depth that is of the rarest.

Laura La Plante surpasses anything that I have seen her do yet, as the younger sister. The plot is well along before she enters, but even with the late beginning she does her role with such delicate charm and repression that should capture the warmest approval. The one thing only that besets her is, perhaps, that the romantic competition with so fascinating a woman as Miss Frederick is excessive, but that is a matter of casting and not of playing.

Malcolm MacGregor demonstrates all the clean-cut excellence in the lead that has been long expected of him when the right opportunity should arise. He is, I feel, sure of much success on the strength of this picture.

How to commend sufficiently Tully Marshall! It can be said for him, at least, that this characterization is of the finest of many fine ones. He is indeed excellent.

Miss La Plante, and Mr. Brown, among others appeared in person at the evening performance, Lew Cody acting as master of ceremonies.

ST. DENIS COMPANY IN LAST PROGRAMS

Tonight and tomorrow afternoon will bring the last two performances of the St. Denis company now appearing at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Four new dance-dramas, "The Spirit of the Sea," "The Feather of the Dawn," "Cuadro Flamenco" and "Ishtar of the Seven Gates," will be the principal offerings, along with a group of divertissements. The engagement has been very successful and attests to the popularity of these American dancers in their own home town.

Charles Wakefield Cadman composed the music for "The Feather of the Dawn," the choreography of which is by Ted Shawn. The costumes are original Hopi Indian pieces, with masques and headdresses executed from authentic sources.

The matinee tomorrow at 2 o'clock will be the last performance as the company leaves at 5 o'clock for their next engagement in Phoenix.

SEARCH WRITS BEFORE COURT

Motion to Quash Evidence in Awl Case Denied

Five Other Defendants Lose; One Plea Granted

Judge Asserts Ruling Made Without Prejudice

A motion for the suppression of evidence secured by Federal prohibition officers in the case against Elmer Awl, manager of the El Mirador estate belonging to John J. Mitchell at Santa Barbara, was denied Saturday by Federal Judge McCormick. The court said, however, that the denial was without prejudice to renewal of the motion if facts shall seem to justify such action. That case and others ruled on by Judge Bledsoe involve the legality of search warrants used by the Federal officers.

Motions for the supression of evidence were denied in cases against Tigeria Gaitan, Louis Gaitan, Condio Monte, Carmelo Colluro and Dominica Colluro, and was granted in a case against R. P. Damitio. Judge Bledsoe announced that another opinion would give a more detailed statement of his views respecting the merits of the various contentions made in the cases on which he ruled Saturday.

The question of the legality of search warrants has arisen in numerous liquor cases arising in the United States District Court during the last year. Several cases have been dismissed because search warrants did not comply with the Volstead Act as interpreted by Federal Judge James and Federal Judge McCormick.

Elmer Awl was arrested last summer by prohibition agents who raided the home of John J. Mitchell, son-in-law of J. Ogden Armour, and reported seizing fourteen cases of whisky valued at $3500. The agents said Awl had just received the liquor from Chicago and was storing it in a vault when arrested.

The affidavit supporting the search warrant was, according to its terms, "made for the purpose of having issued hereto and hereunder a search warrant to search the following described premises and place, to-wit, office of the American Railway Express, Santa Barbara, Cal." According to the report of the agents, the liquor for which they were searching while acting under this search warrant was found at the Mitchell home, 40 Palm avenue Pasadena.

"Obviously the officer would have no authority, pursuant to such search warrant, to execute it upon different premises," Judge Bledsoe said. "It is asserted that his entry upon the premises at No. 40 Palm avenue, where the liquor apparently was discovered, was without the consent of the defendant. Nothing is contained in the affidavit to the effect that these premises were owned by the defendant or that he was in any wise connected with them, or that the person who did own or was in possession of them did not give full authority to the officer to enter. Every presumption is to be indulged in in favor of the proper performance of official duty, and the moving papers fail to indicate that any violation of the rights of the defendant were had."

TO CUT ACCIDENTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—The St. Louis Safety Council has arranged with the National Safety Council for a survey of accident hazards and problems here. It is hoped a survey will aid in reducing fatalities.

"ABE LINCOLN" HERE

Judge of Reno, Emancipator's Double, in Los Angeles

Judge Charles Edward Bull

Judge Charles Edward Bull of Reno is the only man known to be alive today who doesn't have to make up to look like Abraham Lincoln. The Creator made him the living image of the Great Emancipator down to the minutest detail, including gestures and the twinkle in the melancholy eyes.

Judge Bull is now a Los Angeles visitor, having come here to appear in a motion picture in which Lincoln is one of the characters. When seen about the corridors of the Clark, where he is a guest, or on the street, everybody stops and stares at him, wondering if they really see what they behold.

Judge Bull is six feet four inches in height, as was Lincoln; he weighs 189 pounds, Lincoln weighing 186; he has the same gait, the same creases and hollows in his face, the exact replica of the Lincoln beard. And when he talks his voice has the same high pitch, and he looks out from cavernous eyes shaded by bushy brows, often emphasizing his remarks by unconsciously pointing a long, lean forefinger at his hearer. He wears a long black coat and Congress gaiters with elastics in the sides. He carries an astonishingly gnarled and crooked cane made of Manzanita.

There is also a close parallel between the early life of Lincoln and that of Bull. Both were born in log cabins, Lincoln in Kentucky, Bull at Bull's Creek, Tex. Lincoln was famous as a rail-splitter, and rail-splitting was one of Bull's chief occupations as a young man. Bull's efforts to get an education were no less strenuous than Lincoln's and both developed into lawyers.

Judge Bull said that so far as he knows there was absolutely no relationship between his family and that of Lincoln. He seeks to explain the striking likeness along philosophical and scientific lines.

CLUBS HELP SCOUTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 4.—San Antonio Boy Scout Council has accepted a gift of $2100 given by the Rotary, Lions, Conopus and Kiwanis clubs of the city. The money goes into the Scouts' general fund, to be used for expenses until after the annual drive during anniversary week, February 8 to 14. Among the events for the week is the annual Father and Son banquet in which more than 1000 Scouts, with their fathers, take part.

After a sow at Kent, Eng., had eaten a setting of eggs, the hen took charge of the pig's litter of seven and is raising them.

TORCHIA DUE FOR RETURN HOME SOON

Hospital Stay Likely to End Within Week; Vision and Hearing Improved

Ernest M. Torchia, Los Angeles attorney who was bombed in his home Christmas morning, probably will be able to return there within a week, it was announced yesterday by Dr. H. R. Boyer, his physician.

The attorney's return is contingent on his continued improvement at the Glendale Hospital and Sanatorium, Dr. Boyer stated. He said Torchia now has normal vision in his left eye and that his hearing is improved. Torchia will never regain the latter entirely, however, the physician said.

The wounds on the stomach, which at first were feared to be fatal, are gradually healing, though it is still necessary to keep Torchia swathed in bandages, according to Dr. Boyer.

INQUEST OF HOGUE MAY BE WAIVED

Coroner May Sign Death Certificates in Two Cases Without Inquiry

Coroner Nance will decide today whether it is necessary to hold an inquest over the body of Roland Hogue, who killed himself Saturday after shooting his wife and small son. It was announced Coroner Nance will probably sign two certificates of homicide and one of suicide, as all the known facts point to Hogue having committed the deeds while temporarily insane.

The bodies were at the undertaking parlors of J. J. Mottel, at Long Beach yesterday. At the home of Hogue's parents in Hollywood it was announced yesterday that funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, awaiting the action of Coroner Nance. The bodies will probably be brought to Los Angeles.

Deputy Sheriffs discovered the triple tragedy Saturday when they had gone to a dentist's office in the Recreation Park, Long Beach, where Hogue had taken his family.

The arsenic is stored in the dust that accumulates in the chambers of the smelter. It is stated that the production of arsenic from this new plant will be large and that this product from the ores will add considerably to the proceeds of the mines.
